Reagan's 'State of State' message: cut energy use

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today asked Californians to cut personal energy use by 10 per cent and called for removal of the secretary of state's office from partisan politics.

In his farewell "State of the State" message to the legislature, the two-term Republican chief executive also proposed new spending restrictions on the lawmakers, urged planning of a deep water port for "supertankers" and declared "no need for any general tax increases."

Reagan, at a joint meeting of the Assembly and Senate carried live statewide by radio and television, offered to work with the Democratic-controlled legislature to speed the siting of "environmentally" protected nuclear power plants.

He targeted the energy crisis as "the issue demanding our attention this year," and said "to minimize its potential impact would be a disservice to the people."

Indirectly criticizing activist Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., frontrunner in the polls for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Reagan said Brown's office should be "free of the possibility of conflict of interest and bias" in overseeing elections and campaign contributions reports.

Reagan, who has said he will not seek a third term, asked for a proposed constitutional amendment to make the secretary of state's office nonpartisan, "selected on the same basis as the nonpartisan state superintendent of public instruction."

The governor ticked off a list of energy conservation steps state government has taken to conserve fuel in recent months and appealed to citizens to voluntarily cut back their personal gasoline consumption by at least 10 per cent.

"I also ask every family and every business to reduce energy use 10 per cent by taking similar steps in their homes, offices and other places of businesses," he said.

"California stands ready to cooperate fully in any national program to conserve and fairly apportion available fuel and electric power," the governor declared.

But he added because agriculture is the "backbone of our economy it must have a high priority along with industry. Any severe cutbacks of energy for industry and agriculture means fewer jobs."

The governor, who last year vetoed Democratic-sponsored legislation to create a powerful energy commission with authority to site atomic power plants, announced he is ready to work to reconcile "obvious differences" and agree to compromise legislation.

He blistered as a "needless delay" refusal by the ecology-conscious state Coastal Commission to approve new nuclear generating units at San Onofre.

"Construction of these and other nuclear units must go forward," he asserted.

In addition to calling for development of a California "super port" for huge oil tankers from Alaska, Reagan also disclosed the state is studying possible addition of new hydroelectric generators at Oroville Reservoir and other dam sites.

Reagan, whose ballot initiative to fit a lid on taxes and spending was defeated by the voters in November, proposed a constitutional amendment requiring that any budget approved by the legislature and sent to him be balanced or propose higher taxes to bring it into alignment.

The constitution requires a governor to submit a balanced budget along with higher taxes, if necessary. Reagan asked for the "same restraint" on the legislative branch even though he can veto expenditures he doesn't like.

In another "realistic budgeting" step, he asked the legislature to approve a law specifying that when a program requires higher taxes, the amount of new taxes be spelled out "in capital letters" on the bill.

FLEEING FROM ORDEAL

Two women rush from the First and Merchants National Bank in Richmond, Va., after a youth armed with a revolver held them hostage Tuesday. The youth, who claimed he wanted to die, was disarmed by police. None of the hostages was harmed.

Wrestles weapon from intruders

Man surprises burglars, shot with his own gun

CLAREMONT — A 63-year-old state correctional officer was shot with his own gun early Tuesday evening when he surprised two men burglarizing his home.

David L. Wells, a lieutenant at the California Rehabilitation Center at Norco, was reported in serious condition this morning in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit.

In a similar incident, a woman found a youth inside her home at 963 Amador Ave. and her screams routed him.

The weapon used to shoot Wells was a .38-caliber revolver the burglar took from a nightstand beside Wells' bed.

The victim told sheriff's deputies he and his wife, Alberta, 60, were returning home at 3122 Towne Ave. shortly after 6 p.m. when a neighbor girl, Alisa H. Greer, 12, told them a window in the rear of their house was broken and the screen cut. The girl had gone to the Wells' home to play with the dog.

Wells told Mrs. Wells and Alisa to remain outside and entered the house through the rear kitchen door. He said that after he entered he shouted: "If anyone's in this house, get out." He said he yelled that four or five times.

Wells walked through the kitchen, living room and entered a hallway connecting the bedrooms. In the hallway he was confronted by a man, described as a "hippie type," who stepped from the bathroom, pointing the gun at him.

"I'm going to shoot you," Wells quotes the bearded man as saying. Then he fired twice, with both bullets hitting Wells.

But the victim lunged forward, struggled with his attacker and took the gun away from him. The intruder and a second man fled out the front door to a car and drove away. Wells staggered outside and collapsed on the south curb of Culmore Street east of Towne Avenue.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Wells had gone to a neighbor's home and told them to call the police because someone was in her house. Alisa's stepfather, also was told of the incident, went to the house, picked up Wells' revolver, and entered the kitchen. But the intruders had gone.

Claremont police arrived, followed by firemen. A passing physician, Dr. William Plummer, 1269 N. Park Ave., Pomona, stopped and aided Wells while awaiting an ambulance. He later assisted in Wells' treatment at the hospital.

Authorities said the burglars had put together several items inside the Wells' home, apparently preparing to carry them out.

The man who shot Wells was described as white, dirty, with a full, red beard and mustache and long hair. He was 5 feet 10, weighed about 155 pounds and was 30 to 35. He wore a light-colored shirt and blue jeans. The second man was not described.

In the similar incident, Mrs. Judith L. West, 32, returned home late Tuesday morning and noted a car parked in front of her home. She drove into the garage, entered the house and found a young man stacking loot near the front door.

Mrs. West screamed and the youth ran out the back door to the car, bearing a Nevada license plate, and sped away.

Inside the house he had stacked stereo equipment, cameras, a television set and other items preparatory to carrying them to the car.

That burglar was described as white, about 15, 5 feet 10 weighing 165 pounds. He had black hair.

Schoolwatch a success, project to be extended

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Largely because of community cooperation, Operation Schoolwatch was a success.

The watch, an anti-vandalism campaign launched in public schools here over the Christmas holidays, succeeded in holding vandalism to one-fourth of what it was over the 1972-73 holidays.

Incidents reported were fewer than were reported over the four-day Thanksgiving recess.

School authorities Tuesday said they were going to extend the watch through January, primarily to obtain information which would lead to the arrest and conviction of the arsonist who set fire to the Madison Elementary School Nov. 10-11.

Dr. Garrett C. Nichols, assistant superintendent of business services, said at the school board meeting Tuesday that over the 1972-73 holidays, 17 windows were broken. Only six were broken this year.

"There were 13 incidents of vandalism in the 1972-73 holiday period, compared to only eight this year. Each year, however, eight schools were involved," Nichols said.

"Last year holiday vandalism cost the district $406. This year the cost was $117. That's a 71 per cent decrease in the two-week period.

During the period between Dec. 9 and Jan. 3, all residents of the community were asked to keep their eyes on their schools and call the police if they observed anything suspicious.

During that period, the Pomona Police Department handled between 80 and 100 calls from residents reporting suspicious persons on school grounds. Investigations were made. There were no arrests.

School authorities were pleased with the community reponse, and the marked reduction in vandalism.

"One of the objectives of Operation Schoolwatch was to create an awareness on the part of students, staff and community," said Supt. Robert E. Wentz.

"I believe we made significant strides in accomplishing this goal. Everyone is more aware of the costliness of vandalism and the need for a cooperative effort in reducing this cost.

"Of course, another basic objective of the program was to see some tangible reduction of costs due to vandalism and for this initial thrust, we have been pleased with the results.

"Our major thrust is to have community support on a continuous basis to wipe out vandalism.

"The trial period has brought dividends to the students and the taxpayers. Our goal is to increase those dividends. The tremendous support from community, numerous organizations and various news media will help us reach our goal."

Douglas A. Robertson, district community information officer who directed Operation Schoolwatch, said results prove that "a town can stand up and work together towards the solution of a problem."

To carry out the second phase of the watch — attempt to identify the Madison school arsonist — Robertson has had "wanted" posters printed.

They read: "Wanted! For Arson! $500 Reward! For information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the destruction of Madison's learning center Nov. 10-11."

Robertson stressed that all information received would be held in the strictest confidence.

Anyone with information concerning the Madison fire is asked to call Dr. Nichols or Robertson at 623-5251, or fire inspector Tom Fee at 620-2219.

OIA 2nd runway proposal draws both jeers, cheers

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

ONTARIO — A proposal to construct a second main runway at Ontario International Airport was both cheered and jeered during two public hearings here Tuesday.

Some who supported and opposed the project noted more refinement is needed in an environmental impart report prepared by the Northrop Corp. for the Los Angeles Department of Airports to meet state and federal requirements in its construction.

Public sessions were conducted during the afternoon and evening at Chaffey High School auditorium to allow residents an opportunity to voice their opinions regarding the impact statement and the proposed project.

Testimony will be attached to the Northrop report and sent to the Federal Aviation Administration and the U.S. Department of Transportation for review and possible adoption. Some 200 written communications have been received regarding the proposal.

The Northrop study, released last June, makes the finding that the most positive step to reduce the airport's noise impact is to construct a second runway.

While this will result in a greater number of operations by 1985, the net result will be a decrease in both noise and air pollution by accommodating the heavier and quieter aircraft, it adds.

The proposed project includes extending the present runway 2,200 to the east, and building a new 10,200 foot runway south of the existing runway but with the threshold being shifted 2,200 feet to the east.

The move would allow departing aircraft to be at a higher elevation when going over populated areas.

But during Tuesday's testimony, several persons believed that the threshold should be moved 10,000 feet to the east, thus further reducing aircraft noise and pollution.

Herman Cameron, an attorney and a member of the Southern California Association of Governments airport hearing board, conducted the public hearings, which continue today from 3 to 5 and 7 to 10 p.m.

Tuesday's sessions were opened by Henry Wedaa, program manager for Northrop's impact study, who gave a brief outline of the 600-page document.

He reported the existing runway can't accommodate the quieter, larger capacity, wide bodied jets such as the DC-10, L1011 and Boeing 747.

"According to the noise exposure projections, an estimated 13,274 persons will b exposed to noise levels in excess of 85 DBA (decibels) in 1985 with the proposed twin side-by-side runway configuration. For the existing runway, the number of persons is approximately the same.

"However, with the existing runway, 82 per cent of those people will be exposed to four minutes or more a day compared to 37 per cent with the second runway," he said.

Mayor Howard Snider of Ontario reported the City Council supported the airport's orderly development but also recognized that certain inherent problems are associated with that future development.

"The city has recognized its responsibility in this matter and has under way a major planing program, financed in part by the federal government, to try to find some rational solution for the use of the land lying west of the airport runways," he said.

Snider said the report provided a "wealth of information," but didn't provide as much as desired in specific areas. There are numerous areas where the city would like to see further refinement, he added. These include the noise impact on people living and working in impact areas; the use of the new noise measurement system; impact of surface vehicles using the airport; and further study on the alternative of moving the second runway threshold 10,000 feet to the east.

Rep. Victor Veysey, R-43rd Dist., cited the airport's economic impact in supporting the airport expansion. "Obviously the need for the Ontario airport is well established. If OIA is going to continue meeting the needs and services of this area, steps must be taken

Southland beach areas brace for huge waves

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern Californians looked for the end today of almost a week of disastrous winter storms. Beach home foundations were ripped away by freak tides and eight foot waves Tuesday and rain set off a highway inferno fed by three burning gasoline tankers.

Beach areas were bracing today for more huge waves.

Thousands of mountain dwellers were digging their way out of snowbound high altitude areas in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

Local emergencies were declared in Los Angeles and Orange counties Tuesday, but officials did not plan to ask for a declaration by the governor.

A truckdriver burned to death in a fiery pileup on the Golden State Freeway in Los Angeles that destroyed four trucks and a passenger car.

The accident caused a massive traffic jam that spread through much of the Los Angeles region, closing the freeway's southbound lanes for five hours and the northbound side for 12 hours.

Waves up to eight feet high rode onto Southern California beaches atop freak seven-foot tides believed caused by a rare alignment of the earth, sun and moon.

Residents of beach homes along 130 miles of coast from Santa Barbara to San Clemente fought with sandbag barriers and shovels to prevent the sea from tearing away the foundations of their houses.

Two homes in the exclusive Malibu Colony had to be evacuated when they started to buckle after waves washed away sand around support pilings. Two others in the same region were threatened.

Boats up to 30 feet long were hurled onto the beaches, lifeguard and other beachfront structures were threatened and patios and retaining walls were battered and washed away.

The Arab mind

". . . It is almost impossible for an Arab to come to an agreement in direct confrontation with an opponent. Given the Arab tradition of invective and proclivity to boasting and verbal exaggeration, any face-to-face encounter between two adversaries is likely to aggravate the dispute rather than constitute a step toward its settlement.

"The function of the mediator, therefore, is first of all to separate the fighting sides, to make it physically impossible for them to continue the conflict, to force them to stop fighting, and at the same time to enable them to do so without incurring the shame of exhibiting weakness or admitting defeat."

Although the author of these words is speaking of Arab vs. Arab disputes on an individual or local level, they hold true also in the international sphere. This has been the history of war-cease-fire, war-cease-fire in the Middle East for the past 25 years, culminating in the current attempt in Geneva to resolve the Arab-Israeli impasse.

The quotation is from a book, "The Arab Mind," by Arabist Raphael Patai, now a teacher of anthropology at Farleigh Dickinson University.

The psychological portrait of the Arabs drawn by Patai is a fascinating and frustrating one — of a people at once proud and idealistic yet conscious of its technological retardation and social stagnation, prone to bursts of violence yet with a long tradition of peaceful mediation.

In their repression of women and their sexual puritanism, the Arabs make the Victorians look like hippies. Their need to preserve "face" at all costs puts the Orientals to shame.

They are a people whose language lends itself to florid rhetoric and overstatement, even among the uneducated, encouraging them to substitute words for deeds, and which makes no clear distinction between past and present.

The modern Arab mind reflects more the pre-Islamic ethos of the Bedouin tribes than it does the strictures of the Koran. Among those Bedouin virtues are manliness, personal honor and fierce loyalties ("I against my brother; I and my brother against my cousin, I and my cousin against the world," goes an Arab saying), but also hospitality to the stranger in the camp.

Once it was the Arabs who were the custodians and improvers of the world's store of knowledge while the infidel "Franks" slumbered. Today the situation is reversed.

Since nothing happens but through the will of Allah, their backwardness is cause for shame among the Arabs. Yet because they are only human — but seemingly possessing all the faults and foibles of human beings to an exaggerated degree — they tend to blame outside forces for their ailings.

Indeed, it is because of their one-time military and cultural superiority to the West, suggests Patai, that the Arabs, alone of all former colonial peoples, are imbued with deep-seated resentment of the West while at the same time they are conscious of the necessity to change and adapt in the face of its challenges.

"Thus while opposing the West, and often hating it, the Arab world sees itself through Western spectacles. It compares all its areas of achievement with those of the West, and wherever it falls short of the West it feels itself wanting.

"This is the predicament of the Arab world in the last third of the 20th century."

"The Arab Mind" should be required reading for the negotiators — American, Russian and Israeli as well as Arab — in Geneva.

Keeping roads safe

A year or so ago, Douglas W. Toms, then head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, broached the concept of a "Master Driver License."

He envisioned a program in which "the applicant would have to take some kind of advanced high-performance driver training . . . people, who hold this license may then be eligible for superior privileges in our society. This might range from a reduction of their annual insurance premium, it might permit them reduced rates on tollways, there may be any number of things."

Since then, a study by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety has blasted a rather large hole in this idea.

The highway driving records of 447 race drivers holding Sports Car Club of American national competition licenses, thus presumably, qualifying them for the proposed "Master Driver License," were compared with those of 1,053 other drivers in those states.

The researchers report that the driving records of the racers "contained many more violations and more crashes than the driving records of comparable drivers of the same sex and age."

The report notes that race drivers claim to drive considerably more miles than do other drivers and that the study did not take into account this mileage differential.

Nevertheless, the results of the insurance institute study "suggest a need for caution regarding the assumption that advanced driver education crash-avoidance and related techniques can be translated into reduced crash experience."

In the meantime, of course, the gasoline situation has come into the picture, affecting everybody's driving privileges, those of the experts as well as the run-of-the-mill driving population.

Touchy case gets FBI agent fired

WASHINGTON — A crack, young FBI agent, who had been awarded bonuses for his bravery and skill, was fired after he began to zero in on a criminal fraud case involving Republican bigwigs.

If the case had gone its natural course, it might have given Ohio Republicans an embarrassing scandal on the eve of the 1972 election. Ohio was one of the electoral plums that President Nixon was concentrating on winning.

When the agent took his mistreatment to court a few months ago, the Nixon-appointed judge made the unusual decision to lock up all the records. However, we have obtained the file from other sources.

The suppressed papers include a sworn statement from the agent, William Higgins, that he was ordered by his superior in Cleveland to destroy a summary of the case. A similar incident helped force the resignation of former FBI chief Pat Gray, who burned vital Watergate evidence in his fireplace.

Wouldn't comply

When Higgins tried to tell FBI headquarters about the looming scandal, according to his affidavit, the No. 2 agent in the Cleveland office, Dwight Wells, ordered him to "destroy" a summary he planned to send to Washington.

Since destruction of documents is a serious breach of FBI regulations, Higgins states he refused to obey the order and instead kept the report for future reference. Wells insists he never gave Higgins any such order, although he concedes in an affidavit that the FBI ordered Higgins to stop his investigations.

The summary that Higgins allegedly was ordered to destroy and its supporting documents describes in detail how wealthy Republicans planned to loot a bank. One of the alleged principals was Lloyd Sahley, a far-traveling entrepreneur, who headed the bankrupted Midwestern Securities Corporation.

The documents claim that Sahley was linked through securities holdings with S. Mort Zimmerman, a felon who allegedly has dealt in stolen securities with the Mafia. He also was a business associate of Nixon fund-raiser Fred LaRue.

Two prominent Ohio Republicans, whose names we will omit until the charges against them can be nailed down tighter, were involved in Sahley's financial empire, according to the documents. A well-known judge, the documents also suggest, had a serious conflict of interest in the case.

The timing is significant. Agent Higgins was ordered to break off his investigation in June 1972, just as Ohio Republicans were cranking up for the election campaign. Pat Gray himself, as acting FBI director, ratified the order, saying the Higgins case was not "prosecutable" and "did not warrant further investigation."

Yet after the election, the key figure in the case, Lloyd Sahley, was indicted on some of the precise matters raised by the Higgins investigation. Other serious allegations remain unexplored since Higgins was pulled off the case.

Higgins, meanwhile, became involved in an unrelated altercation with another agent and an auto accident. The FBI used these incidents, plus the charge that he continued to investigate the Ohio case against orders, to drive him out of the FBI. First he was ordered to give up his gun; later he was fired outright.

Out in the cold

This was Higgins' reward for pressing an investigation against powerful Republicans during election time. Forgotten were the 12 commendations and awards he had received from FBI directors J. Edgar Hoover and Pat Gray. Higgins was out in the cold, left with endless appeals to the Civil Service and the courts.

When he laid part of the complex case before Federal Judge Vincent Biunno of Newark, N.J., the judge took one look at the explosive documents and locked them up. Biunno stoutly refused to comment on why he suppressed the records, although his friends insist he didn't recall seeing any mention of the high Republicans.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Comet Kohoutek a celestial flop

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI — It has become obvious in the past few days that the comet Kohoutek was misnamed.

It should have been called Edsel.

This is the week when the comet was supposed to leave us goggle-eyed in the gloaming by trailing a glimmering streak across the western horizon.

But the comet's glowing tail either has disappeared or never existed in the first place.

Astronomers have come up with several curious theories as to why Kohoutek laid an egg. The one I like best postulates that a sticky substance formed by solar heat and a chemical reaction prevents the tail from materializing.

That sounds a bit like Rosemary Woods explaining how an 18-minute segment of tape was erased.

The next thing we know they'll be telling us where the tail should be.

Well, I can tell you this—the American people aren't going to tolerate a Kohoutek coverup.

The public is going to demand the release of all the facts, however embarrassing they might be, as to who was responsible for misleading us.

The first question we want settled is whether President Nixon may have known in advance that the comet was going to be a dud and to some degree acquiesced in withholding that information.

It is logical to assume that White House officials welcomed the comet's appearance as a divertissement to draw public attention away from fuel shortages, the Watergate imbrogilo and assorted other crises.

And had Kohoutek lived up to expectations, it definitely would have been a big political plus for the administration.

With their penchant for citing new records, White House spokesmen could have claimed that the most spectacular comet of the 20th Century was seen during Nixon's second term.

That's the sort of stuff that cools impeachment movements.

Considering their stake in the matter, administration officials naturally would have been reluctant to admit that Kohoutek might be a flop.

Did the President's scientific advisers, who had access to high-powered telescopes, warn him of that possibility?

Or did he not learn of it until Kohoutek's shortcomings became apparent to the naked eye?

Once this matter is cleared up, the inquiry can proceed to fix the blame for the unwarranted buildup.

Goodbye Thomas

I have no children, yet, so I find myself giving much love towards my pets, a cat and a dog, and receiving much affection and companionship in return. Thomas, my cat, is my very special companion, more people than cat. Usually one would find my dog and cat quite inseparable, except at those times when Thomas would go to the neighbors to find affection, since I wasn't home at the time.

Thomas is a very special pet also in that in the past six months of being under heavy medication for a kidney ailment, I didn't need four people to hold him down to give him his pills. All anyone had to do was to walk up to him, pet him, open his mouth, and pop in the pill. No scratching no biting, he'd usually purr. I was quite relieved to find that by December, Thomas' kidney trouble was relieved temporarily. At last I could start saving for his operation on the kidney removal.

It was so great to see Thomas playing again, to see him following me up and down the street as I would walk my dog or go visit a neighbor. But on Wednesday, Dec. 12, a sadistic person decided to use my cat for target practice, using a .22 caliber air rifle pellet, which could also kill a person, I was told.

It seems that cats are of a lesser class than dogs (who bark all day and night, who bite people, who mess all over everything). So to go out and shoot a family pet like a cat creates very little headlines, as opposed to someone shooting a dog.

Well you sadist, your almost trophy survived. For $75, no way could he die on me! Since you hated my friend so much, you should be happy to know that as soon as I get the nerve, I will have to have Thomas put to sleep, since he can't have that kidney operation now. He had at least a 50-50 chance of survival then, now he has none. Beware anyone carrying a rifle in my sight. I am feeling very revengeful for your taking away the chance for life from my friend, a big, black, 12 pound cat who wanted nothing more than to have a saucer of milk, a spot on the couch, and love.

Gossip for today

Total all the illegal contributions made to various candidates during the last Presidential election campaign; add to those illegal contributions the money it is taking to investigate and prosecute such illegalities; throw in the $6 million Watergate has thus far cost us; then for good measure include all the dollars being spent publicizing such tommyrot for a disillusioned peoples mirth. — Well that's just for starters.

Now add to that astronomical sum the $100 billion we Americans wagered this past year; the $5 billion worth of usable materials we discarded during that same 12 month period; the $475 million in subsidies the government overpaid the wheat growers; the money it cost to recall and repair 12 million automobiles; the $14 million illegally spent on the Queen Mary; the $1.7 billion a year being paid to families ineligible for welfare; and you come to one irrefutable conclusion.

It isn't that we don't have the money here in the United States to make this a Utopian paradise. Our real problem lies in the way we use that money.

INSIDE REPORT

Russia overtaking U.S. in arms race

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration will press Congress to let defense spending soar a staggering $8 billion over a year ago, but even that increase will fail to match Soviet military gains.

The defense budget for fiscal year 1975, beginning July 1, was decided on last week amid confusion at the Nixon White House. It calls for spending at least $87 billion—far more than expected.

Yet, that astronomical figure is almost wholly the result of inflation, military pay increases voted by Congress and special aid to Israel during the Yom Kippur war. It does not even pretend to solve U.S. problems in the race with Moscow for technological supremacy.

Nothing could more dismally underline the dangerous predicament of U.S. defense today. Thanks to the crushing burden of the all-volunteer armed services, military pay makes up an ever-larger percentage of the budget. Thus, the grim prospect: rising defense spending that fails to prevent dangerous Soviet superiority in weaponry—in other words, running as fast as possible but still not keeping up.

What further complicates this are vagaries of federal budgeting. While the anti-defense bloc in Congress boasts of a $2 billion-plus cut in the Pentagon budget, that cut affects authorizations for future years only. In truth, the $79 billion listed for defense in fiscal year 1974, ending June 30, actually climbed to $80 billion.

Trying to control spending

This confused none other than Roy Ash, President Nixon's imperious budget chief. Desperately trying to control ballooning spending, Ash took $77 billion (the $79 billion estimate for fiscal 1974 minus the $2 billion cut) as his starting defense figure, aiming to keep the fiscal 1975 projection around $80 billion.

Screams of outrage came from the Pentagon, aided no little by domestic counselor Melvin R. Laird. The former Secretary of Defense, leaving the Nixon administration for good Feb. 1, as a parting gesture convinced the budget-makers that $87 billion is really a bare-bones minimum.

The arithmetic is grim but simple. Taking the real fiscal 1974 spending figure—$80 billion—as the starting point, more than $5 billion must be added for inflation and the inexorable salary demands of the all-volunteer army, plus $1.5 billion for the Yom Kippur war. The grand total of around $87 billion has now been accepted at the White House.

But the total, the Joint Chiefs of Staff believe, will not prevent the Soviet Union from overtaking the U.S. in conventional arms in the late 1970s. It would limit research and development spending to one-half the Kremlin's and provides ship construction funds far less than Russia's. Laird would be the first to admit that the budget battle he won in the White House last week still leaves the U.S. short.

Increases may be unattainable

But the needed increases for research and development seem unattainable on Capitol Hill, partly because the overall federal budget, including a variety of new, high-cost welfare programs, has become so gargantuan. Moreover, the anti-defense bloc in Congress remains formidable.

Pentagon officials had hoped that Israel's reliance on sophisticated new U.S. weaponry in rolling back the Arab armies last fall would stiffen liberal Democrats passionately devoted to Israel, but so far there is no such conversion.

Nor is there a sign that a divided Pentagon is preparing any national propaganda campaign for defense spending. The rupture between Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger and Deputy Secretary William Clements is so severe that two rival secretaries of defense seem to be in office today, say Pentagon experts.

Finally, there is President Nixon. Fighting against the energy crisis and for his political survival, he shows neither desire nor ability to lead any crusade for national defense. That's why the $87 billion defense budget—carrying deadly-dangerous portents for the future—is the most that can be expected.

Oil nations clamp lid on present price level

Simon to order production of more gas, if...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy chief William E. Simon said today he would order refineries to produce more gasoline to meet summer driving needs if the heating oil production reaches a safe level.

The government has directed refineries to give more priority to heating oil to warm the country during the energy crisis this winter, and Simon said it was possible there would be an excess of heating oil and not enough gasoline in production when warm weather arrives.

An unpublished study prepared by Simon's Federal Energy Office showed the United States could be faced with a shortage of between 10.6 and 18 per cent in its oil supplies by April.

The report, called "The National Petroleum Supply and Demand Study," was prepared for use by a panel of private economists.

Officials said the oil shortage percentage depends on factors such as how much Middle East oil leaks through the Arab oil embargo and how successful U.S. conservation measures turn out.

TIDES MOVED BY HEAVEN AND EARTH

Dory fishermen at Newport Pier keep close eye on waves which wiped out their beach base Tuesday and are expected to continue today. The high tides, which did extensive damage to Newport Beach area, are due to an unusual astronomical condition in which sun, moon and Earth are alligned.

Freeze on crude to stay in effect until April 1

GENEVA (UPI) — The world's major oil supplying nations decided today to freeze the price of crude oil at present levels until April 1.

"There will be no increase or decrease in the price of crude oil until April 1," Iran Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar told newsmen.

Amouzegar made the statement following a five-hour meeting of ministers from the 12 member states of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which together supply 85 per cent of world oil imports.

The ministers, who began meeting Monday, debated the possibility of curbing crude oil costs by 6 per cent and holding talks with the big Western oil consuming nations on price fixing.

Amouzegar said after Tuesday's session that Western governments should cut fuel sales taxes and limit oil company earnings to 50 U.S. cents a barrel (42 gallons) to protect the average consumer. The OPEC had been discussing the possibility of cutting petroleum prices by 6 per cent although industry sources expressed doubt the consumer would benefit by the reductions.

Oil officials said the Persian Gulf producers, which tie their petroleum prices to the value of the dollar, were weighing cuts to compensate for the U.S. currency's recent rise on world money markets.

Middle East oil contracts, which are valued in dollars, call for petroleum prices to rise when the U.S. currency falls and to fall when the dollar rises.

The dollar has gained six per cent since Dec. 1, requiring an approximate 60-cent cut in petroleum prices to about $11 a barrel. The reduction would cut the world's total oil import bill by $2.5 billion annually.

Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar said the Middle East nations were considering cuts for Feb. 1, but had not reached a decision. "It has not yet been decided," he said.

Oil industry sources said, however, the big international oil companies would refuse to pass any price drop along to Western consumers.

The Middle Eastern officials were in Geneva to take part in a meeting of the 12-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC).

The OPEC countries, which supply 85 per cent of the world's oil imports, were trying to set up a crisis conference between producing and consuming nations to discuss fuel problems.

Area faces threat of new storm

Although partial clearing is forecast for Thursday afternoon, Pomona Valley residents should keep the rain gear handy for the weekend.

Computers at the U.S. National Weather Service office in Los Angeles have amended an earlier forecast that declared that a storm that is hovering off the coast would bypass Southern California. It now appears that the storm may move into the area by Saturday bringing a "significant amount" of rainfall, forecasters say.

The storm which began in some area communities last Thursday night has brought 7.71 inches of rain to Pomona, according to the U.S. weather station at Cal Poly campus. This brings the official rainfall total for the season in Pomona to 10.39 inches, compared to 6.81 inches recorded last year at this time.

It is by no means the wettest January ever recorded in Pomona but it is a good start. According to weather records, 18 inches of rain fell during January 1916.

For those people who enjoy the snow and cold weather, there's plenty of both at Mt. Baldy Village where roads will be open to the public by Thursday, according to Bob Solari, assistant ranger for this area for the U.S. Forest Service.

Solari toured Mt. Baldy areas Tuesday afternoon and said the snow level is at 3,500 feet. "The Mt. Baldy area is in good shape and could stand another storm if one materalizes this weekend."

He said roads to the village were open today to residents and emergency vehicles only. He said it is uncertain when roads will be open to the ski lifts at this time because of the unstable weather conditions. He said the six-day storm has brought four feet of new storm to Mt. Baldy.

The assistant ranger said heavy snow has been a problem in mountain areas of his district which covers Monrovia Peak to areas of Mt. Baldy. He said a building collapsed Tuesday under the weight of heavy snow at Crystal Lake.

Mountain watershed areas that are now saturated from the heavy rainfall are a concern to forestry officials and to flood control officers of both Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties.

W. A. Sidler of the San Bernardino County Flood Control District said there are no particular problems now however "things are getting saturated. If we get a new storm of long duration, we will have to watch it."

Sidler said his crews are "keeping an eye on the 1970 watershed burn areas above the Cucamonga foothills."

He said up to this point the rain has been a "good conservation rain" but that a another heavy storm could cause quite a bit of damage to foothill areas.

Nixon denies ITT, milk charges

SAN CLEMENTE, CALIF. (UPI) — President Nixon says charges that he raised milk price supports and intervened in an ITT antitrust case in return for campaign donations are "totally false."

He declined to make public tapes and other material on the two matters, and a top aide says "Operation Candor" is now completed.

"We're not going to be responding to the constant maligning of the President," a high administration official said. "We're not going to constantly debate the charges in the public arena."

"At the appropriate time, the President will have something to say about Watergate," he added, "but we are not going to spend 1974 waging a political partisan debate about Watergate."

The new denials were made in two written statements, called "white papers," the name once used for British documents of state. They were issued issued here and in Washington late Tuesday, on the eve of Nixon's 61st birthday.

Charges that Nixon ordered federal price milk supports hiked in 1971 in return for political contributions from the dairy industry were branded "totally false."

As for Nixon's 1971 intervention in an antitrust case involving International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., the White House said the President "was unaware of any commitment by ITT to make a contribution" financing part of the Republican National convention at the time that he tried to halt a Justice Department appeal in the suit.

Nixon acknowledged that he had been informed of the dairy industry's intention to raise funds for him before his decision to increase milk support payments on March 25, 1971.

The dairy industry contributed a total of $427,000 to the Nixon's re-election campaign. The President ordered the higher milk price support partly out of "traditional political consideration," according to the White House.

The statement said Nixon's advisers told him Congress favored even higher supports and that it could be "politically disastrous" for Nixon if he were to veto dairy legislation.

The other statement said Nixon had instructed then Deputy Attorney General appeal of a key court decision in the ITT antitrust battle on April 19, 1971, but rescinded the order two days later when advised by Attorney General John N. Mitchell that Solicitor General Erwin Griswold, who was prosecuting the case, threatened to resign if Nixon refused to prosecute the government case further.

A White House summary said "tapes, papers and other documents" on the two cases, which have been given to special Watergate prosecutors, "are not being publicly released today." It said the President wanted to maintain their "confidentiality."

Israel, Egypt adjourn talks

By United Press International

Egyptian and Israeli officials in Geneva met for just an hour and 10 minutes today and adjourned their talks until next week on the critical issue of troop withdrawals along the Suez front.

No progress was reported, but Tel Aviv press reports said Israel expects an answer from Egypt today on proposals for a first-stage of an Israeli pullback.

Castro to resume U.S. relations?

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The Fidel Castro regime is willing to resume diplomatic relations with the United States if the United States lifts its economic blockade of Cuba, Ferando Lopez Muino, the Cuban ambassador to Mexico, said recently.

Lopez said lifting of the U.S. economic blockade is Cuba's only condition for resumption of relations with Washington "because we are not in a Holy War" with the United States.

The United States broke off relations with Havana in January, 1961.

Impose wheat export controls or face stiff price hikes in bread, bakers say

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Immediate controls on wheat exports are necessary if the United States is to avoid a doubling of supermarket bread prices this spring, the American Bakers Association said today.

"If restrictions are not imposed immediately a bread shortage seems likely and many housewives could well be paying a dollar per loaf by late spring," a spokesman said in advance of a news conference by bakers to air their position.

The government has quietly asked wheat exporters to slow overseas shipments voluntarily during the next few months to make sure there are sufficient stocks on hand to carry the nation into the summer.

The bakers' spokesman explained that historically the United States has had an abundant surplus of wheat. But he said the reserves were depleted 18 months ago when the Soviet Union purchased a huge amount of U.S. wheat because of poor Soviet crop.

"We don't have that excess to lean on now," the spokesman said.

He said that unless exports already under contract are delayed until June when the new U. S. wheat crop is harvested, the nation would be faced with serious shortages.

He said the minimum U. S. wheat needs during the next four months is 390 million bushels. Current supplies total 678 million bushels, of which 497 million are committed to foreign nations. That would leave only 181 million bushels available, less than half what he said is needed.

"The Agriculture Department believes that a lot of wheat that is out there —so called export wheat without a designated country —will really come back into the domestic pipeline," the spokesman said. "But we can't even depend on that."

He stressed that "we'll be okay once we get into new wheat" during the summer.

Government officials said orders that would be delayed because of export restrictions could be filled after June wheat harvesting begins on what is expected to be a record 2 billion bushel 1974 crop.

Black 1st deputy mayor of N. Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph J. Galiber was named the first black deputy mayor of New York City Tuesday and said he wanted "to bring this city back together."

Galiber, 49, a state sentor from the Bronx, was named by Mayor Abe Beame, who said his new deputy would be in charge of coordinating city programs dealing with the energy shortage.

"I know this city and I love this ciyt," Galiber said. He said he hoped "New Yorkers will begin to talk together again."

Zeppo recovering from surgery

HOUSTON (UPI) — Zeppo Marx, 73, who underwent surgery Dec. 28 for an abdominal aneurysm, a weakened blood vessel, was reported Tuesday nearing a full recovery. A spokesman at St. Luke's Hospital said he should be discharged within a few days.

Zeppo and Groucho are the two surviving Marx brothers.

Wayne accepts Lampoon invite

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The college humor magazine Harvard Lampoon says John Wayne has accepted a challenge to answer questions from students at the campus, which the Lampoon said was "the most intellectual, the most traditionally radical, in short, the most hostile territory on earth."

The Lampoon dared Wayne to "have it out, head on, with the young whelps here who would call the supposedly unbeatable John Wayne the biggest fraud in history" in an open letter Dec. 6.

The magazine said Tuesday Wayne has accepted and announced a number of activities, including a ceremonial saloon slug-fest. It also said his arrival would be marked "by a spontaneous stampede of mammals of some as-yet-undetermined species, and a running gun battle between cowboys, Indians, and syndicate triggermen, all in their native dress."

Trudeau planning trip to Europe

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is planning a trip to Europe next month to talk about improved trade arrangements, and hopes to visit Brussels and Vienna.

Government officials said Tuesday details of the proposed trip were still being worked out and additional stops might be added to the itinerary.

The visit would be Trudeau's first official trip to continental Europe since he became Canada's prime minister in April, 1968. However, he has visited England several times and vacationed in the Mediterranean and the Alps.

Nixon fills OAS ambassador post

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon Tuesday nominated Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Calif., as the new U.S. representative to the Organization of American States with the rank of Ambassador.

Mailliard, now serving his 11th term in Congress and the ranking GOP member of the House of Foreign Affairs Committee, will resign his house seat for the post, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said.

The appointment requires Senate confirmation.

Oil credibility gap due to Watergate?

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Watergate has caused the American public to be skeptical of almost everything, and the oil industry's credibility has fallen victim to the skepticism, Rep. William L. Dickinson, R-Ala., said Tuesday.

Dickinson told a group of Alabama oilmen that he believes a part of the lack of credibility for the petroleum industry is "a slop over from Watergate.

"The American people have never before been so disillusioned or so bombarded with conflicting facts from this country's highest elected officials," he said. Dickinson said the oil industry could regain public confidence if it could convince the people that it was not making excessive profits and capitalizing on the energy shortage.

Humphrey making good recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who underwent X-ray treatments for a "pinhead" tumor of the bladder, is making a good recovery according to his office.

"His appearance is good, his appetite is great, his color is good, he's doing office work and he's cheered by literally hundreds of letters and telegrams he's gotten from all over the country," David Gartner, Humphrey's executive assistant said Tuesday.

Gartner said it would be March before doctors are able to check and see whether the X-ray treatment, which started in early November and ended Dec. 19, had removed the tumor. Humphrey, 62, is in Bethesda Naval Hospital in nearby Maryland. His bladder condition had been under medical observation for seven years.

to improve and expand the runways and minimize any unfavorable environmental impact on those living and working in close proximity to the runway.

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair said that good, effective, long range planning throughout the country today demands that airport facilities not be located in highly populated and developed urbanized areas.

"To build a parallel runway as has been proposed by your commission is not, in our judgment, sound planning for OIA." He urged the alternate runway be located 10,000 feet (two miles) to the east of the present threshold as a means of reducing the noise impact on residents of Ontario, Montclair, Chino and Pomona.

Hayes also urged further study be made of the airport before any further expansion is authorized. The studies could focus on noise impact aircraft pollutants, and alternatives to any expansion.

Ernest Martin, president of Inland Action, Inc., of San Bernardino, presented a resolution from that organization supporting the proposed expansion.

Ken topping, San Bernardino County planning director, appeared for County Supervisor Ruben S. Ayala, chairman of the West Valley Airport Land Use Commission. In a prepared statement, he reported the commission finds the Northrop study deficiant and unacceptable in its present form since it doesn't spell out clearly the population assumptions on which the air travel forecasts are based; it doesn't state how its findings compare with those of other aviation studies; it should project noise based on the noisier, narrow bodied aircraft; it uses a measure of noise which has little value for planning future land uses around the airport; and it doesn't spell out the current levels of noise, how this affects people, and how many people.

Mayor Bertye F. Smith of Claremont said it was that City Council's opinion the report is deficient in the analysis of some important factors relating to the environmental impact of the proposed expansion and that a more accurate analysis was needed. These areas include: use of the 85 decibel level is not appropriate; little attention is paid to surface traffic pollution; more information is needed on air pollution implications of the proposed ground transportation system; and an adequate analysis of secondary impacts is needed.

"The City Council believes the present Ontario airport is a needed regional facility and thus the overall merits and disadvantages of the proposed expansion must be weighed from a regional perspective," she said.

Genevieve Jimenez, an officer of the Concerned Citizens of Ontario, Inc., recommended the new runway be moved 10,000 feet to the east with southerly take-offs to eliminate flights directly over Ontario.

Adrian Meewis, president of the same group, presented a resolution which stated the Northrop study was deficient in its discussion of future pollution levels, social costs, alternative runway configurations and the impact of airport and aircraft related operations on the quality of life in Ontario.

Mayor Ray Lepire of Pomona said that City Council believed the new runway is needed to not only enhance the airport as a key factor in the economic development of the entire area, but to take a positive step in the right direction in making the community and the airport more environmentally compatible.

Bob Bush, general manager of the Progress Bulletin, read an editorial which appeared in Monday's edition supporting the new runway.

Hospital also studies use of restaurants

Dinner club for Chino senior citizens now signing up

CHINO — Applications for the Senior Citizens Dinner Club are now available at Chino General Hospital and introduction of the special community program is set for Feb. 3.

The special club for this West End city's senior citizens will provide an afternoon dinner at a reduced cost. The meals will provide hot entrees and a variety of items for $1.45 to the elderly in the Sunday afternoon affairs at the local hospital.

A new note has been added, with the possibility of local restaurants participating, reported John Gaffney, western regional food services director for Dobbs House, Inc. Gaffney, Charlotte Brickler and Gloria Rey Pena of the Chino Meals on Wheels organization are coordinating the new program.

"If it's successful, we would encourage these people to go to a restaurant after I contact restaurants in the area. The preliminary program would start at the hospital, then after a month or so we'd try to get it away from the hospital. In an attempt to make it a real outing, we'd then introduce them to a local restaurant," said Gaffney.

The program could be conducted between 2:30 and 4 p.m., off-hours of service for restaurants, particularly on Sundays.

Gaffney estimated the average food cost difference for the hospital and private eating houses as 51 cents, with the meal at the former $1.45 and $1.96 in restaurants.

"The private restaurant will be subsidized with money for the cost of meals in order to allow a reduced charge for senior citizens. That will not come out of hospital funds. This will be my donation to the community," he noted.

Although no agreement has been reached at this time, the foods director has spoken to two restaurateurs in Chino who have voiced some interest. If they participate, they will authorize inspection of kitchens for sanitation and quality.

Registered dieticians have already prepared the menu for the hospital visits. The choice between two hot entrees such as chicken a la king, beef stew with noodles, chopped sirloin steak with mushroom sauce and tuna and noodles will be served with hot vegetables, a salad, dessert and beverage.

The menu at the hospital will be prepared by Chino General's dietary department, coordinated by Rod Miranda, food services director.

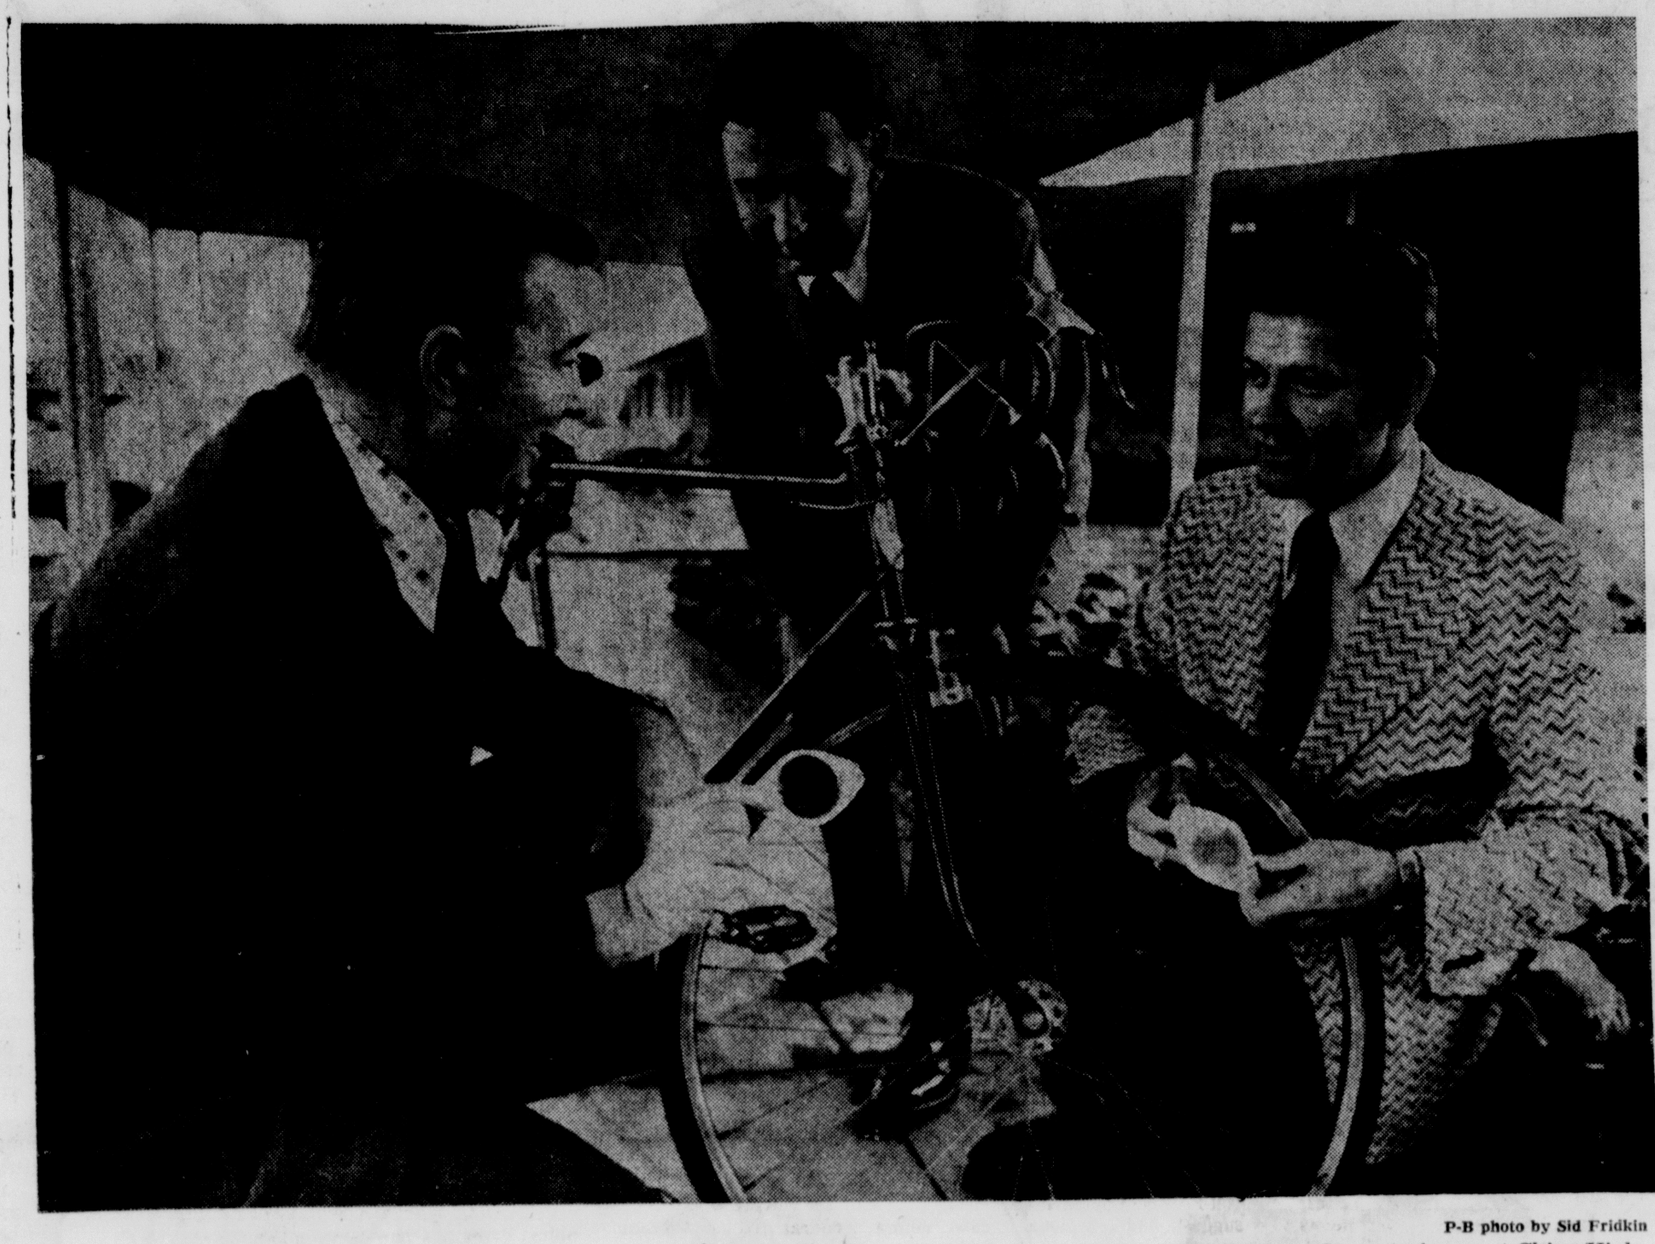

"I would like to strongly emphasize that because of the nature of this program at this point in time, transportation is not available. Transportation would have to be provided by a neighbor, friend or relative.

"We do have an interested citizen in the community with a bus who stated that he would be willing to chauffeur some needy recipients. I'm also meeting with officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and other agencies about the legalities of insurance requirements for which we have not created a fund. But I'm encouraged that someone would come forth to volunteer his services. He, himself is a senior citizen," Gaffney said.

Feb. 3 is the target date for the program to begin. However, much still depends upon community involvement, said Gaffney.

"We have had eight or nine phone calls thus far, but are requesting more calls to the hospital for further information about the program," he said.

Persons interested in information or applications should call either Gaffney or Miranda at 627-6111 Ext. 309.

Upland restores limited busing

By PATRICK SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

UPLAND — School board trustees gave the green light Tuesday night to partial reinstatement of two transportation programs eliminated late last year because of the energy crisis.

According to Dist. Supt. Bill Plaster, the district has sufficient quantities of gasoline to allow at least a partial resumption of transportation for students involved in cross-age tutoring programs and for some limited educational field trips.

Both programs, along with all after-school athletic trips, were eliminated last December to ensure a sufficient supply of fuel to transport students to and from their homes to school.

Commenting further on the energy situation in the district, Business Manager Glenn Hardy said he's experienced no problem in finding additional sources of fuel over and above what is allocated through state agencies. The real problem is finding the money to pay higher prices for the additional fuel and finding places to store it.

Hardy said the district is able to acquire additional fuel from various county agencies that have excess supplies from time to time He added that he has been able to purchase about 5,000 gallons of extra fuel through various outside sources this year.

With these purchases and the previous cutbacks, the district has been able to save about 9,000 gallons of gas, he said. These savings now make it possible to reinstate the two extracurricular programs on a limited number of miles per day basis.

Hardy said there was still not enough gas available to resume athletic trips at this time, but he agreed with Supt. Plaster there was no reason why interested parent groups could not take it upon themselves to purchase gas to provide transportation for their youngsters.

While the board was not required to grant official approval for the resumptions, it did give its blessing to Plaster to find ways to implement the transportation services.

In other related energy crisis matters, Hardy reported that a pilot program of changes in the work schedule of custodians at Upland Junior High had already resulted in a savings of three hours in the use of electric lights. Hardy forecast the district could save as much as 17.5 per cent of electrical use at the school through the new scheduling which will be instituted next at Pioneer Junior High School.

The problem of younger children getting to school safely in the daylight saving time darkness will be studied with a view of possibly starting school at later times, according to Supt. Plaster.

He told the board that the changes, if made, would continue for the next two years and would probably be limited to the kindergarten through sixth grade schools.

He plans to report back to the board on the feasibility of the changes at the board's next meeting in early February.

OPERATION SPOKE-A-ROO

Rotary Club to give bicyclists reflector lights

CHINO — Operation Spoke-A-Roo, a special bicycle safety project for West End youngsters by the Chino Rotary Club, will feature children and adults hard at work in equipping bikes with reflector lights Saturday.

Chino youngsters having no reflector lights as required now by state law are invited to gather in the Chino High School parking lot Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The Rotary Club allocated funds for the purchase of 1,500 pairs of the new legal reflectors.

The equipment will be installed by members of Rotary and the Chino fire and police departments at no cost to bicycle owners 16 and under.

A second operation will be held Feb. 9 at Glenmeade Elementary School.

In conjunction with Operation Spoke-A-Roo, the Auto Club of Southern California will conduct safety inspections for no charge. Those persons wishing to have their bicycles registered will be charged a $1 fee.

Accounting group to hold session

UPLAND — Donald A. Calhoun, assistant controller of ICN Pharmaceuticals, Inc., will speak at a meeting of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the Nationl Association of Accountants Thursday at the Upland Inn.

His subject will be "Petroleum Accounting and Taxation."

The social hour will begin at 6, followed by dinner at 7. The technical session will get under way at 8.

Boating class starts in Chino

CHINO — The Community Adult School will offer a course in seamanship and small boat handling beginning tonight at 7:30 in room 11 of Chino High School.

The course is designed to help the boat owner acquire the knowledge of rules, regulations, seamanship, courtesy and safety in boat handling.

Uplander named to S&L position in Cathedral City

UPLAND — Clifford A. Morris has been appointed branch manager of Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association's Cathedral Plaza Office in Cathedral City.

Morris, with the association since 1957, previously was assistant manager of the Upland office.

He was made an assistant vice president in 1966.

Morris was born in Colton and majored in business administration at San Bernardino Valley Junior College. He holds a Standard Diploma from the American Savings and Loan Institution.

He is a member of the Upland Host Lions Club, Compass Masonic Lodge and the Pomona Valley Chapter of the White Shrine.

He has held positions of assistant controller, operations officer for head office and chief accountant with Pomona First Federal. Prior to coming to Pomona First Federal he had had 17 years experience in banking.

Army Reserve now offering training in variety of skills

UPLAND — Most young men and women who want to learn new job skills have to pay to be schooled in them.

But in the Army Reserve they are being paid to learn.

The reserve is currently campaigning to attract qualified persons to fill a great variety of positions in its 3,500 units across the country.

The reserve offers training in hundreds of schools ranging from the electronics and communications fields to auto mechanics and medical technicians. While learning, reservists earn at least $600 per year, shortly after they've completed their short-term active duty tours.

Full information on the opportunities and programs currently being offered is available in the local area from the 426th Civil Affairs Co., 1284 Seventh St., 985-9851.

Nine consumer-oriented courses on college slate

ALTA LOMA — Nine courses designed for consumers and a special class on the metric system will be offered by Chaffey College in its winter quarter off-campus program.

The nine, two-hour mini-courses, which meet at the First Baptist Church, Upland, from 9:30 to 11 a.m., include "Mind Over Money," Jan. 14; "Jewelry," Jan. 21; "Lingerie," Jan. 28; "Watt Watching: Energy on a Budget," Feb. 4; "Decoupage," Feb. 11; "Oven Meals," Feb. 25; "Patchwork for Fun," March 4; a field trip, to be announced; and "Dieter's Delight," March 18.

The metrics course will meet from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at St. George's Junior High School, Ontario, Thursdays beginning Jan. 17.

Additional information on the courses and other offerings may be obtained by calling the college at 987-1737 or 822-7456, ext. 306.

Timely topic for glass society

MONTCLAIR — The Montclair Depression Glass Society will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Montclair Library.

Jerry Esau will speak on antique clocks. An auction will also be held.

The meeting is open to the public at no charge.

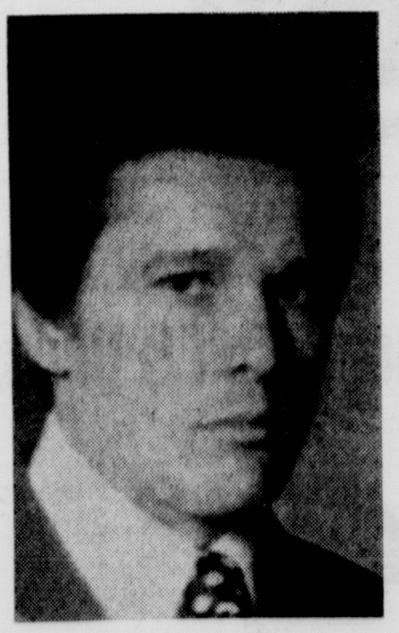

Administrator is appointed at Doctors Hospital

MONTCLAIR — R. J. Messenger, formerly with Doctors Hospital of Lakewood, has been appointed administrator of Doctors Hospital here.

Messenger, 29, who holds degrees in industrial management from USC, has served as a senior management field consultant for 30 Southern California hospitals as a member of the Commission for Administrative Services in Hospitals.

Messenger, his wife, Fran and their daughter, Jodi, reside in Upland.

CHINO — Eldon T. Andrews, dairy manager of the California Institution for Men, has been elected president of the National Association of Institutional Farm Supervisors.

Chino ponders dropping out of building program

CHINO — The school board here accepted a recommendation to investigate the possibility of dropping out of the State Building Aid Program during a long, but routine, meeting Tuesday night.

The board unanimously accepted a recommendation from member Al McCombs which asked the district administration to check out the possibility of a building program that offered less lead time before beginning construction, more flexibility and more distinct advantages in bond funding.

McCombs also raised the question of hiring a financial consultant on the next bond issue for schools. A consultant could perform the double task, said McCombs, of saving the district money in a bond issue and organizing a schedule for the actual bond program. He was critical of the current participation in the State Building Aid Program and voiced concern about the ever increasing interest rates for bond repayment.

Eva Weiszbrod pointed out that the board never knows what rate the state will establish before the adoption of the school budget, thereby placing the district in the position of guessing state funds forthcoming.

Supt. Royce Lapp noted that Senate Bill 90 may have some effect in allowing school districts to withdraw from the state program.

In another matter, the board accepted a recommendation from Larry Woodruff, president of the Chino Federation of Teachers, to look at problems generating from the payment of tax sheltered annuity monies to teachers.

Woodruff voiced concern on behalf of several teachers about the lack of distribution to the insurance or annuity agencies of money deducted for this purpose from each payroll. The fact that these payments are not made "within a reasonable period of time" indicates a "seemingly irresponsible handling of teachers' money," said Woodruff, a counselor at Chino High School.

He asked the board to "ascertain what the problems are through an investigation." He additionally requested that the board determines if any financial loss had been incurred due to the delays and possibly reimburse that loss.

Although agreeing that an investigation was probably necessary, board member Pete Vander Poel questioned the means of determining loss for each certificated employe in the district and the legality involved in such a transferral of district funds to teachers for any supposed loss.

"This is a continuation of problems we have had in all the years that we've had tax sheltered annuities. If these problems are not ironed out, then I will be recommending that the board rescind its policy of giving tax sheltered annuities," said Lapp.

Lee Doughty, personnel director for the district, pointed out that the district is serving as an intermediary between 30 different investing companies and Chino teachers. The situation is further complicated by the fact that his office is dealing with two payrolls, the district and county.

"I'm sure we're negligent in some, but in most cases we are right on the nose and accurate," added Doughty.

Board President Charles Smith stated. "If annuities are too broad, then perhaps we should sit down with the teachers and work something out. But for the time being we must live up to the current contract."

He instructed staff to include discussuion of the annuity issue in upcoming contract negotiations with the teachers' groups.

In other issues, the board:

—Authorized the dedication of a portion along the eastern boundary of the Magnolia Elementary School site for drainage, street and related purposes to the City of Chino.

—Agreed to establish an oral communication section in the board agenda for individuals wishing to address the board.

—Approved the student crossing guard program at the Gird Schools by a 4-1 vote, with Augustine Tapia dissenting.

School still taking signups for quarter

LA PUENTE — Registrations are still being accepted for the special six-week quarter offered by the La Puente Valley Adult School, which began Jan. 2.

Glenn Farrell, coordinator, announced that registrations are being accepted for classes in high school completion, civic and community education.

Free child care, day or night, is available.

For information, persons may call (213) 968-8452.

Blast jolts aluminum company

INDUSTRY — An explosion at Consolidated Aluminum Corp. and Lupton Aluminum Products here Tuesday did $50,000 damage but injured none of the employes working nearby.

The blast buckled the sides of the 15 by 20 by 20-foot furnace, reducing it to a total loss, but no fire resulted, according to Los Angeles County Fire Capt. Bill Fancher.

Fancher said aluminum was being heated inside the furnace and there was an accidental buildup of propane gas inside. Eventually the gas exploded because of the intense heat, Fancher said.

The plant at 18111 E. Railroad Ave. manufactures aluminum window frames, doors and other products.

Power failure closes Park school

POMONA — A damaged transformer, shorted out by the storm, today caused authorities to close Park Avenue High School, Pomona Unified School District's continuation school.

It will remain closed on a day-to-day basis until repairs are made.

Pupils who attend Park Avenue may obtain information regarding the reopening of the school by calling 623-5251.

Yoga class starting in Pomona

POMONA — A 10-week class in yoga sponsored by the parks and recreation department will begin tonight from 7:30 to 9 at the Ganesha Park Community Center.

A $10 registration fee is payable at the first meeting. Students are asked to wear loose-fitting clothes and bring a light pad or a towel to lie upon.

Car flips; wrong way driver held

SAN DIMAS — A Covina man landed in jail early today after his car ran off the Foothill Freeway and overturned.

Richard Rey, 21, was first treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and later booked at the San Dimas sheriff's jail on suspicion of drunken driving.

Highway patrolmen said they received a broadcast of a motorist driving east on the freeway's westbound lanes near Lone Hill Drive.

The car ran off the roadway where the freeway lanes end at Foothill Boulevard, they added.

Chino Hills plan up for study

SAN BERNARDINO —The San Bernardino County Planning Commission Thursday will consider the proposed Chino Hills general plan.

The matter is scheduled for the afternoon session which starts at 2. The Planning Commission Chambers is located at 316 Mountain View Ave.

The proposed master plan encompasses about 40 square miles bounded by the Corona Expressway, Los Angeles, Orange and Riverside county lines and the Santa Ana River. The area includes the proposed site for the Chino Hills Airport.

Brakes fail; driver is injured

ONTARIO —A car, apparently without brakes, jumped a curb on Allyn Avenue at Fourth Street and crashed into a block wall this morning, injuring the 26-year-old driver.

Manuel Graciano Chavez of 951 E. G St. was treated at Ontario Community Hospital and later released.

Chavez told police that he was traveling north on Allyn Avenue approaching West Street when he applied his car brakes. He said the wheels first seemed to lock and then failed. Police at the scene said the car appeared to have faulty brakes and that one of the car tires may have skidded on a rock or metal object on the road.

Upland man held in $500 theft

UPLAND — A 29-year-old Upland man suspected of stealing $500 in cash from the 7-11 Market at Benson Avenue and Seventh Street here Tuesday has been arrested.

Police Officer Frank Stratton said he arrested the suspect, identified as Gary William Elmy, 29, of 1244 Myrtle Ave., on West Street near Campus Avenue about 6:41 p.m. Elmy was a clerk at the store and was at first believed the victim of a kidnaping and robbery.

Later police learned that Elmy was seen leaving the store alone Tuesday morning in a U-Haul van. He had allegedly taken about $500 in cash from the store and left.

Police said the case is still under investigation. Elmy is in jail this morning in lieu of $2,000 bail, having been booked on suspicion of grand theft.

Cruiser rammed; 2 deputies hurt

HACIENDA HEIGHTS — Two sheriff's deputies were hospitalized early today after their unit was rammed from the rear on Hacienda Boulevard.

California highway patrolmen arrested Gregory Grebeck, 23, and booked him at the Industry sheriff's substation on a charge of driving while under the influence of drugs.

CHP officials said Deputy Craig Zasadil, 27, and his partner, Deputy Joe Petrillo, 28, were preparing to store a towed-away vehicle.

Zasadil and tow truck driver Dennis Miller, 27, were kneeling between the car and the police unit parked behind it when the accident occurred.

Zasadil was struck on the head by the police unit, knocked under the car unconscious. Miller was also struck and knocked away.

2 more suspects in killing

L.A. trial of CIM escapee to open

LOS ANGELES — A Los Angeles Superior Court jury is expected to be sworn in today or Thursday to hear the case of two Palo Alto residents accused of taking part in the Oct. 6, 1971, slaying of a Chino prison guard and the freeing of a prisoner.

The defendants, Robert Seabock, 23, and Mrs. Jean Hobson, 45, the mother of five children, are accused of killing California Institution for Men Correctional Officer Jesus Sanchez and wounding another correctional officer during the escape of inmate Ronald Wayne Beaty.

The defendants were indicted on charges of murder, assault with a deadly weapon and rescuing a prisoner by the San Bernardino County Grand Jury.

The trial for Seabock and Mrs. Hobson was moved to Los Angeles on a motion for change of venue after Benton Douglas Burt, 31, and his wife Andrea Holman Burt, 19, also indicted by the Grand Jury in the case, were convicted of second degree murder following a three-month long trial in San Bernardino.

For the past six weeks attorney Hugh Manes for Mrs. Hobson; attorney Richard Walton for Seabock; and Thomas Feld, representing the San Bernardino County District Attorney's Office, have questioned more than 75 potential jurors. By Tuesday 12 regular jurors and three alternates had been selected to hear the case, leaving but two more alternates to be chosen. Each of the panelists, prior to being subjected to examination by the attorneys, was questioned by Judge Charles G. Stratton.

Judge Stratton, recently retired, was recalled to hear the case by the State Judicial Council. Judge Stratton relieved a number of the panelists from jury duty because the trial is expected to last several months. Some of the panelists indicated they could not be off work or had other commitments before the trial would be over.

The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department alleges that Seabock was the "trigger man" in the ambush of the prison guards, Mrs. Seabock planned and participated in the ambush, and that the Burts planned and participated in the incident. The prosecution's key witness in the case is expected to be Beaty.

Beaty, who has already testified against the Burts, pleaded guilty to first degree murder in the case after he was recaptured in San Francisco. Beaty has been sentenced to life imprisonment and his place of incarceration has been kept top secret since.

To issure the security of Beaty and the defendants in the case during the trial the court agreed to permit construction of a ceiling-to-floor bullet proof steel and glass barrier in the courtroom. The barrier separates the court personnel, the jurors, the judge, the defendants and witnesses from the gallery.

Robber gets cabbie's $$

POMONA —A taxi driver was robbed and then forced to drive the robber to Azusa late Tuesday afternoon, police reported.

Steve C. Cartwright, 22, a driver for Yellow Cab Co., said he picked up the man at the bus depot, 156 W. Commercial Ave., at 5 o'clock. He said the man pulled a short-barreled revolver, took his money and ordered him to drive to Azusa.

After arriving there, Cartwright said, he managed to leap from the taxi and run. The robber got behind the wheel and drove away. A short distance away he was involved in a minor traffic accident and abandoned the taxi in the 200 block of Louise Street.

The robber was described as white, 22 to 25, 5 feet 9, 170 brown eyes. He wore brown corduroy trousers, an olive-green shirt and had a tattoo of a woman's head on his left forearm and a scar near the left side of his mouth.

Condominium plans before commission

CLAREMONT — Reviews of architectural and site plans for the New Merritt House, a nine-unit condominium in Pilgrim Place, and an addition to an existing building proposed for moving to 651 Leyden Lane, also in Pilgrim Place, will come before the city Architectural Commission tonight at 7:30 in the City Council chambers.

The two-story building will be erected north of Porter Hall.

The city staff has called the proposed structure an attractive addition to Pilgrim Place.

As to the addition to the building, the city staff has recommended that the request be tabled until a revised site plan including a garage can be submitted.

Rotary will hear Edison adviser

LA VERNE — Rosalie Gnam, environmental communications consultant for Southern California Edison Co., will discuss the impact of the energy crisis on Edison and the community when she talks to the La Verne Rotary Club Thursday noon at the Castaway Restaurant.

Window-box pot found; students held

CLAREMONT — Two college students were arrested Tuesday afternoon after police reported spotting potted marijuana plants on their dormitory window.

The two, Patrick Charles Gallagher, 20, and Kenneth Manuel Rafanan, 20, were booked on suspicion of cultivating marijuana and released later on $2,500 bail each. Their arraignment was scheduled for Jan. 15 in Pomona Municipal Court.

Police Officer J. L. Conklin reported that he was driving at Sixth Street and College Way when he saw what looked like marijuana plants on the window at Clark Hall, Pomona College. Further investigation confirmed the marijuana and the young men were arrested, authorities said.

Drug advisory group to meet

POMONA — The Tri-City Mental Health Authority Technical Advisory Committee on Drug Abuse will meet tonight at 7:30 in the City Hall boards and commissions room.

Bonita board told disclosure law may not apply to schools

SAN DIMAS — District Supt. Dr. James Johnson informed the Bonita school board Tuesday night that in the opinion of County Counsel the financial disclosure provisions of Senate Bill 716 do not appear to be applicable to members of school governing boards.

Johnson added, however, there is no strict guarantee that the courts will adopt the Counsel's view concerning the new legislation governing conflict of interest and public disclosure of personal finances for elected officials.

SB 716 wnt into effect Jan. 1, and it has already led to several resignations by municipal officials. However, many questions regarding scope and interpretation have been raised by the board language of the legislation, including its applicability to school officials.

Johnson also said that County Counsel believes "there is substaintial probablity that the courts will deem the general provisions prohibiting conflicting economic interests to be applicable to school board members."

In other business, the board:

—Accepted as completed the rehabilitation of the Bonita High School library, and authorized the board president and secretary to sign the legal document to be filed with the County Recorder.

—Approved the use of a marking system which will give a student, provided there is parental approval, the option of selecting a "P" (pass) mark or a traditional letter grade in the following courses: advance placement U. S. History; advanced placement English Composition; advanced placement chemistry; calculus; Science Research; Independent Investigation; advanced mathematics; physics; chemistry; educationally handicapped; and educable mentally retarded.

Kidnaping 5 comedy of errors--to a point

DENVER (UPI) — In an extortion attempt that looked like something out of Keystone Cops, three men went first to the wrong house and then kidnaped a bank executive and his family. They were arrested for running a stop sign and the unharmed family was freed.

The FBI said federal extortion charges could be filed today against Dennis Hogland, 28, Johnny Hogland, 25, and Rick May, 19.

The three suspects were held under $15,000 bond each.

They were arrested Tuesday when police stopped their car for running a stop sign. Guns and stolen credit cards were found in their possession.

A search in the neighborhood of one of the suspect's home turned up a moving van in which Jefferson Bank and Trust Company vice president Harry Black, his wife and two daughters were found bound and gagged. They were shivering from the cold during their six-hour stay but otherwise unharmed.

According to police, the series of events began before midnight Monday when two armed men dressed in police uniforms entered the suburban Lakewood, Colo., home of Benton Tibbits, a federal geophysicist.

Tibbetts, his wife, and three children were tied with wire and pillow cases were stuffed over their heads before the suspects apparently realized they had the wrong victims.

Tibbetts said the men were "disgusted" when they found out they had the wrong house.

Police said the extortionists then went to the Black home and kidnaped the five members of the family. An affidavit from the FBI said Black was told his family would be burned alive in the moving van unless he got ransom money from his bank when it opened.

"They weren't gentle with us," Black said. "We were shoved around and tied up with tape while we were in that truck."

Crosby not responding, doctor says

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Bing Crosby, 69, has failed to respond to antibiotic treatment for pneumonia but is in satisfactory condition, his personal physician reported Tuesday night.

Dr. Stanley Hanfling said further diagnostic tests were being conducted to determine the cause of the singer's lung problem. He added Crosby would remain hospitalized for at least a week.

Crosby was admitted to Peninsula Hospital and Medical Center on New Year's Eve for what appeared to be pleurisy.

A family spokesman said his wife, Kathryn, has been at his bedside constantly "except for having meals at home' with their sons, Harry, 15, and Nathaniel, 11.

"Mrs. Crosby makes it a point of having her meals with the children," he said.

A daughter, Mary, 14, was away at a Roman Catholic school in Mexico City.

Crosby's illness forced him to miss his invitational golf tournament at Pebble Beach. The $185,000 event ended Monday.

Crosby, a multi-millionaire who has appeared in 57 motion pictures and whose record sales have totaled more than 300 million, lives in the nearby exclusive community of Hillsborough.

Claremont council denies condominium appeal

CLAREMONT — Development of a condominium project at Seventh Street and Yale Avenue in the Historical Claremont area was dealt still another defeat Tuesday night when the City Council by a 3-0 vote with one abstention denied an appeal of the Planning Commission's denial of the project.

Howard Weiner, a West Covina attorney and an officer of H. B. W. Enterprises Inc. which wants to develop 18 condominum units on the 45,000-square-foot property, said that he felt the firm had complied with the statistical requirements of the city's Land Use Development Code, but complained that the statute does not give a developer any criteria.

The Land Use and Development Code permits a developer a dwelling unit for every 2,000 square feet in an area zone RM 2,000.

Weiner therefore could get 22 units on his 45,000-square-foot property, but he must get Planning Commission approval for a conditional use permit in the Historical Claremont Overlay District and must get approval from the Architectural Commission on such items as building materials and colors.

Speaking of the statute, Weiner told the council that the city has created a burden, and that no buyer of that particular area could comply.

"You've created a statute so vague it's unenforceable," he said.

Weiner said that he would like to do anything which would be "consistent with the happiness of the community."

Ray Fowler, owner of two lots in the neighborhood who spoke against the conditional use permit required for the development, said that the Historical Claremont ordinance probhibits more than two spaces per dwelling, and that two times 18 units would result in 36 parking spaces.

Fowler complained that the orientation for the entire development would be inward and would turn its back on the neighborhood.

Dwight Ryerson, 255 W. 7th St., said that as a "community we have a quandary in the development of the Historical Claremont Overlay District."

Ryerson said he didn't know whether Weiner had received enough suggestions on how to develop his property. "I think he deserves help," he commented.

City Attorney William Bergman said that the question at hand is of density. "You say you can have a unit for each 2,000 square feet of land, provided we like it (the project)."

Bergman said that the city has the option of changing density of units in the Historical Claremont area. He said he has doubts about the ordinance.

In January 1973 when Weiner presented architectural sketches to the Architectural Commission to get the members' feelings, the commission turned thumbs down on elevation drawings and said the four-unit stucco buildings would not be in keeping with Claremont.

The Planning Commission twice turned down Weiner's bid for the required conditional use permit.

Councilwoman Claire McDonald moved to deny Weiner's appeal because the project "does not fit to the satisfaction of the Planning Commission."

Mrs. Bertye Smith, banging the gavel in her first regular meeting as mayor, supported the motion. Councilman Gene Block shared Weiner's concern about the ordinance standards, but supported the motion.

Councilman Frank Hungerford announced he would abstain because he didn't want to vote on it "tonight. We would be closing the door. I would like to see this go to the Architectural Commission for input."

Rotary engine termed inefficient gas user

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Environmental Protection Agency official said Tuesday the rotary engine is an inefficient gasoline user, and the EPA's tests on the Mazda automobile prove it.

Eric O. Stork, a deputy assistant EPA administrator, said recent criticism by Mazda of the EPA's mileage tests on the Japanese import was unfounded. The EPA test on three Mazdas showed mileage of 10.6, 10.7 and 10.8 miles per gallon. Mazda claims the mileage is actually much higher.

"Our test procedure is of urban-suburban driving," Stork said in an interview. "It does not include highway driving. We have every confidence in the validity of our tests. There isn't any question that rotary engine cars are significantly poorer."

Stork said the EPA tests were not meant to produce the same results that any driver would find in using a Mazda. And he conceded that it was possible for the company to have produced a higher mileage figure under different test circumstances.

He said the EPA procedure is meant to be typical of city use and said he would be very interested to see what results Mazda's manufacturer, Toyo Kogyo, got by duplicating EPA tests.

"The rotary engine, which has many things going for it, is quite inefficient in its use of fuel," Stork said. "I do not want to deny that you could come up with different fuel economy under different circumstances, but that in no way changes our view that in comparison to other cars in its weight class the Mazda gets substantially less fuel economy."

Stork said the validity of the EPA's position was underscored by General Motors' recent delay in the introduction of its rotary engine automobile.

'73 a good year for workers--Brennan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan said Tuesday that 1973 was a good year for American workers even though inflation outstripped their wage increases and reduced their buying power.

"You have to take the overall picture of this thing," Brennan told a news conference. "It's a good year, I think, when everybody can still be running their automobile as they did in 1973, the ball parks were full, when people had their television sets and all.

"We've had some problems in the year, but I don't (agree with those who say) the worker actually suffered by going home with so little money he couldn't exist.

"The quality of life is still pretty good in America."

Brennan conceded that worker wages had not kept up with price increases, but pointed out that employment increased substantially to record highs in 1973 and unemployment fell to a 42-month low of 4.5 per cent in October before starting to move up again during the energy crisis.

He declined to make specific predictions about wages, prices and unemployment for 1974, but foresees the jobless rate going perhaps as high as 5.5 per cent.

Brennan predicted that labor unions would seek big wage increases to offset the rising cost of living, noting that "working people are entitled to their share of the spoils."

Bobby Baker agrees to pay $40,000 in influence suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bobby Baker, who was Lyndon B. Johnson's Senate aide, agreed Tuesday to pay $40,000 in an out-of-court settlement of the government's suit to collect $108,968 it said Baker took for influence peddling in the early 1960s.

The settlement was announced at a brief hearing before U. S. District Court Judge George L. Hart Jr. on the second day of Baker's trial. No witnesses were called.

William E. McDaniels, Baker's lawyer, told Hart:

"It should be clear that the reason Mr. Baker has entered this settlement is on the advice of counsel that a trial at this time, rehashing and going over events occurring well over ten years ago, would not be in his present best interest from a personal standpoint, and from the standpoint of his present business prospects."

Baker was paroled in June 1972 after spending nearly 17 months in prison.

L. Stanley Paige, the Justice Department lawyer who handled the case, told the court that Baker received $74,348, but retained $18,500. Paige said that "at most" government evidence showed that Baker retained some $54,000.

Anti-Stalinist book is terror revival

(Editors note: Henry Shapiro, the dean of foreign correspondents in Moscow until his retirement to Madison, Wis., has written an assessment of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's newly published work on the Soviet penal system.)

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn's new story of the Soviet penal system system has hit the Western World like a bombshell. It will be no eye-opener for most of the Soviet people, however, if they ever get to read it.

Kulag Archipelago is a smuggled-out manuscript which appeared in Paris last week. But like all of the Nobel Prize winner's works, it will be banned in the Soviet Union. The Voice of America and other foreign networks will see to it that it reaches millions of avid Russian listeners.

Solzhenitsyn's latest work is a massive documentation of the grim "facts of life" of the Stalin era, familiar in one form or another to all Soviet citizens of the writer's generation.

The late premier Nikita S. Kruschev made it all official in 1956 and 1961.

Khrushchev's speeches to the Communist Party Congresses constituted a searing indictment of Stalin era atrocities—a fundamental text to which Solzehnitsyn, with his monumental array of facts, rumors, speculation and comment, now provides additional documentation and footnotes.

Unlike Solzhenitsyn, Khrushchev had not been a victim of Stalin's purges. But he witnessed the extermination of the bulk of the country's political, military, economic and intellectual elite. And he had access to the secret police and government archives which Solzhenitsyn did not.

Khrushchev said of that period:

"When the files of some of the so-called 'spies' and 'saboteurs' were examined, it was found that all the cases were fabricated. Confessions of guilt by many of those arrested . . . were obtained by means of cruel and inhuman tortures."

Solzhenitsyn had been a "premature anti-Stalinist" way back in 1944 when, in indiscreet correspondence with a friend, he questioned the wisdom of the "greatest genius of mankind" and drew 10 years of imprisonment.

With his experience in what Dostoyevsky had called "the house of the dead," and the help of Khrushchev, Solzhenitsyn was launched on a writing career which made him, among other things, the most virulent anti-Stalin and anti-Soviet crusader to operate publicly from inside the Soviet Union.

Khrushchev's campaign against Stalinist terror opened the way for a spate of memoirs and factual as well as fictional accounts of the tragedies of the Stalin era, the best known of which was Solzhenitsyn's "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich."

No Soviet editor or publisher would have dared to publish the book had it not been for Khrushchev's active, personal intervention. Had there been no Khrushchev the world may never have heard of Solzhenitsyn, the man who was to become, in the opinion of many Soviet critics, Russia's greatest living writer.

But having launched Solzhenitsyn, Khrushchev and several memorists of the period sharply parted company with the writer and his unrelievably morbid interpretation of Soviet history.

To Khrushchev and his successors, Stalin was not all evil. "We are all Stalinists up to a point," Khrushchev once told me and then proceeded to extol what he considered to be Stalin's positive achievements.

While Khrushchev and his establishment writers were campaigning against what they described as the aberrations of a power-mad despot, Solzhenitsyn gradually broadened his accusations eventually to indict the entire Soviet system.

Even before Khrushchev's ouster in 1964 the Soviet leadership apparently felt that accounts of some of the blackest years in Soviet history had been overdone at the expense of constructive developments—the rise of Soviet political and economic power, victory in the war and the improving living standards.

By 1963 it was decreed that the country's skeletons be hidden more deeply in the closet, the painful memories be forgotten and the prospects of a more promising future stressed. Further writing on concentration camp themes was proscribed.

With the exception of his historical novel "August 1914" he wrote one novel after another, one better than the other, on his favorite theme—the concentration camp.

As if to jog the memories of his own generation or to tell the story to the generation which did not know Josef Stalin—121 million citizens or 40 per cent of the total Soviet population was born since the end of the war—Solzhenitsyn has revived the story of terror with a rare vengeance.

The Gulag Archipelago is a picture of unrelieved gloom, one continuous nightmare which began with the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917 and its end not yet in sight.

Warning to U.S.

Plan to blow up its oil fields real—Saudi

BEIRUT (UPI) — Saudi Arabia has warned the United States not to belittle a Saudi plan to blow up its own oil fields in case of military intervention, the Beirut newsletter Arab World said Tuesday.

The authoritative newsletter quoted Arab travelers from Saudi Arabia as saying the destruction plan should be taken seriously.

"The travelers reported that the word circulating in Riyadh was that the authorities have in effect wired the main oilfields, especially the Ghawar field, which is the largest in the world, with explosives that can be set off at a moment's notice," it said.

"Prince Abdullah Ben Abdel Aziz, the commander of the National Guard, or White Army, has been placed in charge of this operation which, according to the travelers, has been code-named 'Operation Dotonation.'"

The Arab World said it should be recalled that Algerian Premier Houari Boumedienne recently said it would take only a few Arab guerrillas to set oilfields ablaze if the United States resorted to military intervention.

The Saudi Arabian statement followed an assertion Monday by U.S. Defense Secretary James. R. Schlesinger that if the energy crisis became extreme the United States might resort to military action to force the Arab states to resume oil distribution. However he said the Nixon administation had no plans for such a move.

Polish paper calls author detente foe

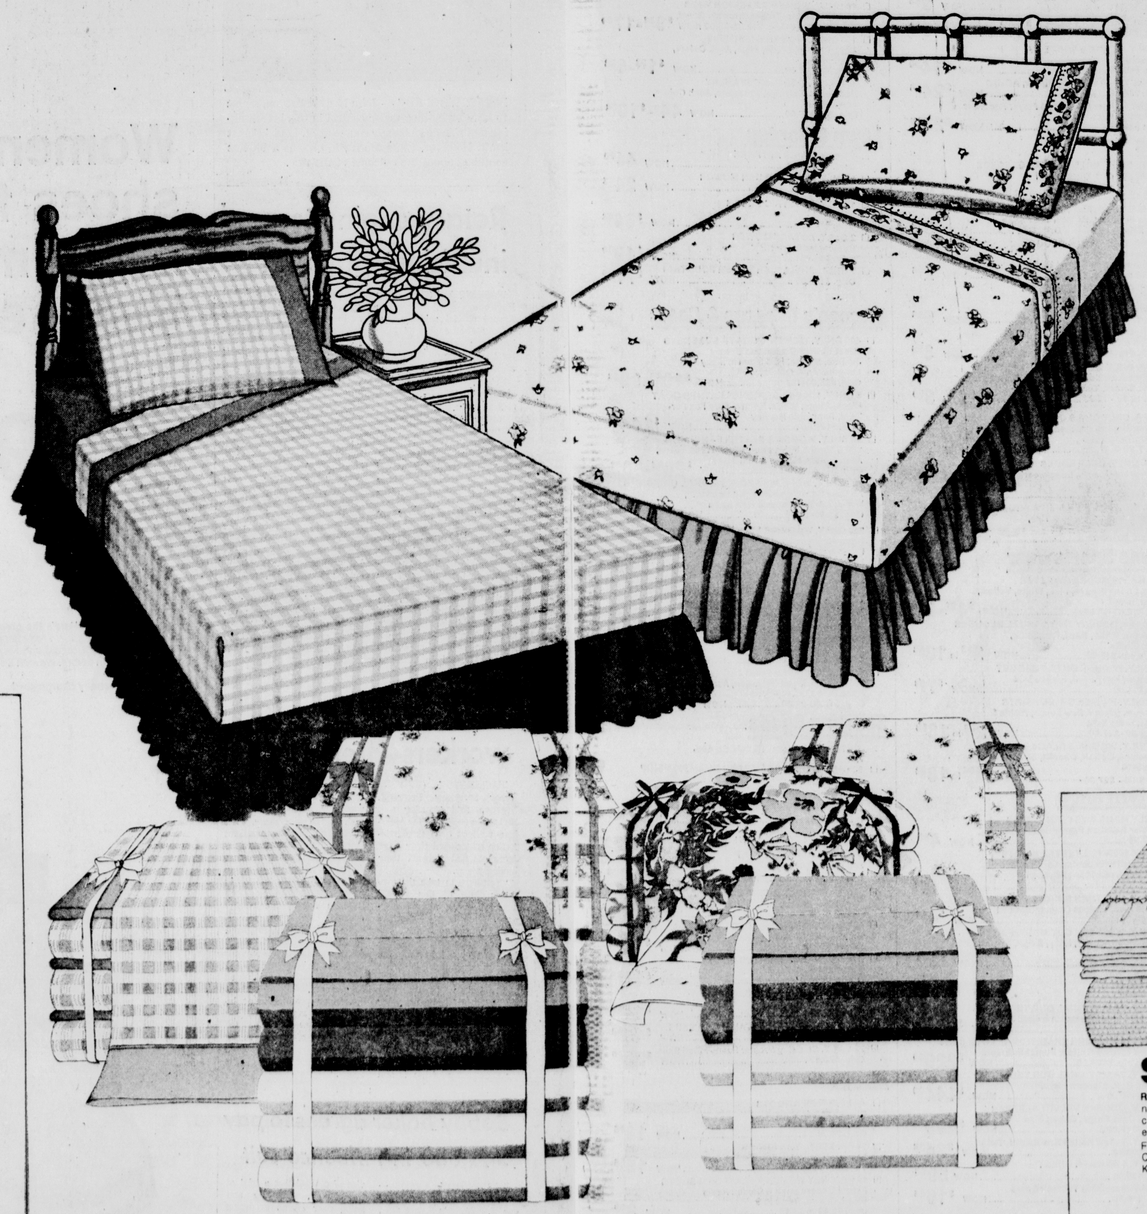

WARSAW (UPI) — The Communist party newspaper Trybuna Ludu said that publication of Soviet author Alexander Solzhenitsyn's new book, "The Gulag Archipelago," was part of an attempt to create anti-Communist hysteria.

In the first mention of the book by the Polish press, Trybuna called Solzhenitsyn a "fosterling of part of the Western press and publishers" and said his hatred for the Soviet system was well known.

"The new book by Solzhenitsyn has been picked up for violent anti-Soviet manifestations," the newspaper said.

"It is already a rule that intensification of anti-Socialist, particularly anti-Soviet campaigns, coincides in time with all manifestations of international detente.

NOT FOR REAL — High price sign at Madison, Wis., gas station is only a ruse to keep motorists from coming in, says station owner George Juno. He has put up out-of-gas signs and blocked the entrance to his station but still they keep coming. Juno is not price gouging. To the contrary, he was selling regular gas for less than 40 cents a gallon, far below what his competitors were charging.

1,500 Russ in Syria to rebuild military

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union has sent at least 1,500 advisers and experts to Syria to help with the military buildup since the October war, defense experts said today.

The Russian experts are supplemented by East German military men who have been flown to Syria to assist in the operation of some of the latest weaponry, the sources said.

Egypt also was said to have admitted an unspecified number of Soviet so-called advisers since the October war in a reversal of Cairo's earlier decision to expel 15,000 Soviet military personnel.

The Soviet military experts are assisting, and in some cases controlling, the reinstallment, replacement and operation of some of the newly introduced sophisticated weapons, the sources said.

Following the latest fighting, the defense sources estimated that nearly 300 Soviet flights into Egypt, Syria and Iraq between Oct. 10 and 16 had airlifted 2,000 tons of military supplies to them. More and more advanced weapons were understood to have since been supplied in a steady flow though on a reduced scale.

Along with these latest supplies, Soviet experts have again been flown to Syria and also to Egypt. They supervise the installation of replacements and help to tighten up air defenses on the ground and in the air, apparently on both the operational and top planning levels.

The Russians were said to be, above all, in control of the Scud ground-to-ground rockets with a range of some 350-400 miles which also have nuclear capabilities. In addition, the sources said they are engaged in reconnaissance activities with their latest jets whose speed exceeds considerably that of the American Phantoms.

East German military, according to the sources, are engaged in operating some of the intricate electronic weaponry and optical equipment.

Soviet advisers in Egypt were said to be playing their part also in the navy and air force operations and planning.

Saudi Arabia, France: trade oil for arms?

PARIS (UPI) — France is negotiating an agreement with Saudi Arabia to provide weapons in exchange for oil supplies, but no accord has yet been signed, government sources said.

Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Zaki Yamani told newsmen in Geneva Monday his country has agreed in principle to supply France with 200 million barrels of oil and industry sources said the deal would be finalized when French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert visits Riyadh later this month.

Reports that France would clinch a major deal involving oil deliveries in exchange for weapons have been circulating in Paris and Middle East capitals for six weeks.

Oil sources discounted as exaggerated a report 800 million tons of crude oil over 20 years were involved.

Yamani's figure of 200 million barrels—about 30 million tons— was the same as that mentioned by the Middle East Economic Survey of Beirut, which said over the weekend the two nations have initialed an agreement.

Paris reports said France will give Saudi Arabia weapons, industrial plants and technical assistance in exchange for the oil.

There was no confirmation the weapons would include Mirage fighter-bombers.

The Beirut publication said the deliveries would be over a period of three years.

If the agreement goes through, it will be the first major pact of its kind.

Reports from London said the British Government also is seeking to conclude a similar agreement with Saudi Arabia.

Man charged with kidnap; girl missing

PICKENS, S.C. (UPI) — A bachlor house painter has been charged with kidnaping 12-year-old Tammy Denice Haynes, who disappeared while washing clothes at a laundromat, but the girl's whereabouts remained a mystery.

Sheriff David Stone said Tuesday night that Virgil Preston Vinson, 36, of Norris, was charged with kidnaping the girl Dec. 21 at Liberty.

Asked if he expected to find the girl alive, he said "I certainly hope so."

Stone said that Vinson, who was being held in the Pickens County jail, voluntarily turned himself in to authorities.

He added that Vinson had served six years in prison for house breaking and grand larceny.

Bridge

This play can get you stuck

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The fact that we are going to show negative doubles, by the partner of the opening bidder in this column, does not mean that we recommend the bid strongly.

You can get on well without it. Unless you and your partner understand just what you are doing, it can get you in real trouble.

If you do want to experiment with it, start by using it only against one heart and one spade overcalls of a minor-suit opening.

DOME SWEET DOME — Steve and Janet Bondelid of Bothwell, Wash., live in this dome-shaped structure which is covered by 7,200 cedar shakes. The geodesic building has two levels and cost about $12,000.

It should show at least seven high-card points (possibly just six) and guarantee four cards in the other major.

Obviously, the partner of the man making this double is expected to bid the other major if he holds four cards there and must bear in mind that his bid shows no extra values.

The South hand is a rock-bottom minimum if you care to call it that, but he has no problem after the negative double. he bids two hearts. North rasies to three and South passes.

Three hearts isn't the greatest contract ever, but it makes since all South has to lose are two spades and two diamonds. He will even make an overtrick if the defense doesn't cash their diamonds right away.

East-West will make a spade if allowed to play it, or three diamonds if they can find that suit, but the negative double has taken them out of the action.

The doctor comments

A few suggestions for mystery ailment

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why am I writing on lined paper to a famous doctor when there are hundreds of doctors in the United States?

First, I am in such pain I cannot write legibly otherwise. Second, there seems to be no help. This sounds unusual in the United States. But doctors don't have much time, and I am sorry to say, very little help.

Doctor, I am a "hypochondriac." My two most recent operations were for cancer. How I imagined them, the pathologist and I have not decided for sure.

I do have some stress, of course, for cancer is not an easily understood malady, but the pain I have the most trouble with is what doctors dismiss as a painless ailment, diverticulosis. X rays do not show cancer there. Diet does not help. I've tried them all, and each doctor seems to have a different idea. Medications do not help. Nothing relieves the pain.

Now doctor, what would you do if you had an inoperable pain for which nothing can be done? How would you deal with a problem that doctors say (many do) is not there? I've tried to find some simple food to exist on, something that wouldn't increase the cramps. When one is desperate, what does he do?

DEAR READER — Of course you have pain. It doesn't matter whether a pain is caused by a broken bone, from nervous tension or some other problem, it is still pain and needs to be relieved if possible.

No doubt your bowel problems are what we call a functional disorder. Which really means an abnormal function, but one that can't be attributed to an infection, a tumor or a dietary deficiency. That doesn't make the problem any less real.

Many people do have diverticulosis and have no symptoms along with the problem that is from an associated spastic colon. In fact, many authorities now believe that one cause of diverticulosis is a long history of spastic colon problems of cramps and gas. This being the case, often the treatment for both problems is the same.

What you need, of course, is a good program in bowel training to develop regular bowel habits. Probably the newer concepts of providing adequate bulk in the diet would be a help.

There remains the possibility that you may be one of the individuals who have cramping, bloating and real pain because of a food intolerance, such as intolerance to the milk sugar lactose. The treatment, then would be to eliminate all milk products from your diet. You might try it.

I can't cover the entire problem in one column. But, I have prepared two booklets, one on spastic colon and one on diverticulosis that outline my ideas on the management of these problems. (You can obtain these for 50 cents each from P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019). Meanwhile, you can see if stopping milk and milk products helps

Afraid—and with reason

By JEAN ADAMS

THE POINT: (Q.) My boyfriend has reached the point where he wants to have sex with me. I am AFRAID. Should I tell him I am a virgin or tell him to stop going with me? He is 18 and I am 16. — Afraid in Alabama.

(A.) It is not necessary for a girl to tell a boy she is or is not a virgin.

If you are honestly afraid of this boy's disregard for your wishes or of his influence over you, you should break up with him. No girl should go with any boy she is afraid of for any reason.

If you really love him and think he really loves you, you should tell him that you are not ready for sex and won't be for a long time. Then he can make up his mind whether to accept your friendship on those terms or end it.

IN SECRET: (Q.) I am 17 and Karen is 14. My parents think it is all right for us to go together, but her mother thinks I am too old. She doesn't know that I still see Karen.

I think that we should tell her because I have a lot of respect for both Karen and her mother, and I don't think we should be sneaking around behind her back. But we are sure that if we tell her she will still object. — Disapproved in Texas.

(A.) Your urge is honest and upright and I advise you to follow through on it. Karen's mother may say no at first, but I believe if you and Karen persist in being honest and open with her she will be more likely to respect and respond to your wishes.

Rain, rain go away...

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

"The rain is raining all around,
It falls on ships at sea;
A lot of it falls upon the ground,
But most of it falls on me."
—With apologies to someone

The steady and sustained deluge to which we have been subjected during the past 40 days and 40 nights is an unusual experience for most Southern Californians. Natives of Oregon and Washington who moved down here to escape the rain must feel right at home.

The whole world changes when the rains come for awhile. The house becomes a fortress with streaming windows and doors that stick. Seepage comes to the cellar. Unexpected leaks appear in the guest room and the steady plunk, plunk, plunk of drops into the pan you placed under the leak keeps time to the rain dripping from the eaves. (You always forget about the pan under the leak until the floor is awash.)

In what we refer to as "pouring rain," the kids are shut up in the house like captives in a castle under seige, often with several damp young friends. Mothers go crazy at the noise, the crash of furniture, the fights, no one suffers during a long rainy spell as much as mothers.

Dad is happy to escape each morning, leaving Mother grievous wroth behind her battlements of dripping umbrellas and soggy windbreakers. Driving your car in a heavy rain, lights on, windshield wipers clicking, windows fogging up, you feel like you're in a submarine. You grope your way along shining streets, sending up a bow wave like a cabin cruiser when you go through a flooded intersection. You feel like Captain Nemo.

What you can see of the world beyond your misty windshield is not what you're accustomed to. Heavy gloom, slashing rain, deserted parking lots. Other cars and trucks, lights blurred, rush past, hurling their wake at your windshield. Gutters are awash; debris litters the streets. Traffic signals are watery blobs reflected a dozen times in the drops of your windshield. A mess, really.

The office is a bright dry oasis. You peel off your sodden raincoat and dripping hat and sink gratefully into your chair. But schedules change in the rain. Shipments are delayed, employes are late, a bright (cowardly) few call in sick. Cars won't start, mudslides cut off some routes, flooding takes care of others. You decide to postpone your appointment in San Diego; you call off the evening bridge date with the Carstons. And you paddle homeward in the evening to a dank-smelling home, a taut wife rapidly getting un-taut on her third Teacher's, and a gaggle of snuffling children, restive and sullen, watching the telly.

The rain should remain on the plains of Spain.

Accused of attempted murder

Lana Turner's 7th husband arraigned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ronald Dante, nightolub hypnotist who was actress Lana Turner's seventh husband until their divorce in 1968, was arraigned Tuesday on an extradition warrant from Arizona where he has been charged with attempted murder.

The 53-year-old Dante was named in an indictment handed down Jan. 3 in Tucson by a Pima County grand jury. County Attorney Dennis Deconcini declined to reveal the identity of the alleged victim or details surrounding the indictment.

Municipal Court Judge Martin Rochman set bail at $25,000 and remanded Dante to Los Angeles County Jail pending an extradition hearing scheduled for Feb. 8.

Dante refused to waive extradition proceedings. His attorney, Sanford Demain, told the court that Dante knew nothing of the charges against him or what crime he was supposed to have committed.

A self-styled lecturer and professional hypnotist, Dante married Miss Turner in 1968. They separated after six months and the marriage was dissolved in January, 1972.

Miss Turner's six previous husbands were bandleader Artie Shaw, restaurateur Steve Crane, sportsman Bob Topping, actor Lex Barker and businessmen Fred May and Robert Eaton.

The actress in 1958 was involved in a sensational murder case in which her daughter, Cheryl, then 15, was found to have committed "justifiable homicide" in the fatal stabbing of her mother's boyfriend, Johnny Stompanato.

Speedway announces events cancellations

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas World Speedway announced Tuesday it is canceling its entire 1974 calendar of events, including the Texas 500, because of the energy crisis.

"We felt that to sit out the crisis was the only alternative," speedway president Dan W. Holloway said. "We are looking forward to resumption of normal activities."

Why not free public transport?

By NEA-London Economist News Service

The fuel shortage and the pressure on cities to meet the strict federal standards for clean air by 1975 have excited a special interest in America's first two experiments in free public transport.

Seattle began offering a free bus service in the center of the city in September, and in the first six weeks of its operation saw the number of bus passengers rise by 56 per cent. At about the same time, Dayton, unaware of the Seattle experiment, started a similar free transport scheme.

Other cities have sought to increase the use of public transport and reduce dependence on the private car by severely cutting fares. San Diego, for example, has lowered its bus fares from 40 cents to 25 cents with a consequent 73 per cent increase in passengers over the previous year.

Atlanta cut its fare from 40 cents to 15 cents and increased its passengers by about 21 per cent.

Officials are skeptical about the advantages of a a totally free service, however, fearing that this would encourage joyriders and overload a service already strained during the rush hours.

New York City has just started offering subway bus, and train passengers on Sunday one free ride for every trip already paid for, in an attempt to lure travellers away from their cars on Sundays.

It looks as if the decline in public transport after the Second World War may have reached its nadir and that it will now rise, spurred on of course by the fuel shortage. Public transport passenger figures for 1973 are expected to show an actual increase over 1972.

Insurance may not apply

State warns citizens about storing gasoline

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians storing gasoline in their homes in an attempt to beat possible rationing may find they cannot collect insurance if fire breaks out on their property, state Insurance Commissioner Gleeson L. Payne said today.

"If they keep this gasoline on their premises, it constitutes an increased hazard that may void their fire insurance policy," payne said.

"Some of these policies have a provision which excludes coverage when the hazard is increased," he added. "Most insurance policies waive this provision, but roughly 20 per cent of the homes and dwellings and one-third of the contents of these buildings are presently covered by policies that have the exclusionary feature."

Payne also said the energy crisis was increasing other home hazards that could result in higher insurance rates.

"Lighting in and around dwellings is being reduced to conserve electric power," he said, and as the lights go out houses become "more vulnerable to such crimes as burglary, arson and vandalism."

He also said there would be a greater chance of personal accidents.

"If the insurance companies find themselves paying more and larger claims, they will have no recourse but to adjust their rates if they want to stay in business," Payne said.

Inouye calls Watergate a civics class

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, a Watergate Committee member, says the affair has provided Americans with "a massive civics class."

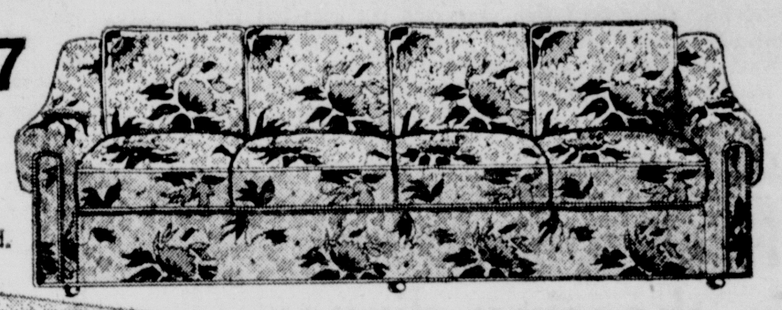

Speaking Monday night before 1,000 persons at the Rochester Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner, Inouye said press coverage of Watergate-linked matters had made Americans more interested in, and acquainted with, their government than ever before.

He urged Americans to learn from the lessons of Watergate and make it "serve as a midwife during the bicentennial rebirth of this nation in 1976."

"But if we should decide to let business go on as usual, then we have no alternative but to term Watergate as a national disaster," he said.

Garey wins thriller

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — Coach Mike Wells and rest of the Garey High Vikings were suffering flashbacks Tuesday afternoon at Damien High.

The Vikings, the defending San Antonio League championship, and the Damien Spartans put on a great show in their San Antonio League openers Tuesday with Garey walking away with a thrilling 82-80 double overtime win.

Viking forward Delbert McDonald, who finished the game with 22 points after sitting out most of the second half with four fouls, dumped in four of Garey's last five points to give the Vikings the victory.

"We haven't faced a good-shooting team like that since we lost to El Modena in the playoffs last year," stated Wells about the Damien club. "They (Damien) played well. They have some good shooters on that club."

Damien wasn't expected to give Garey much of a contest, having entered SAL play with a 3-7 record as compared to the Vikings' 7-4 slate.

"We had them (Garey) twice," grinned Damien coach Len Cesene after the game, "but we let them get away."

Cesene was referring to the times the Spartans had the ball in the final seconds of the fourth quarter and again in the first overtime, but failed to dump in the winning basket.

Controlling the ball for the last 40 seconds of regulation time, the Spartans couldn't even get off the shot by the time the buzzer sounded and the score tied at 67.

Then in the first overtime, little Billy Karr missed an off-balanced shot attempt with three seconds left in the period and forward Cornell Kasbergen rebounded but failed to connect on the followup shot — forcing the game into the second overtime.

Karr, who stands at a short 5-foot-5, put on a sparkling display of outside shooting and kept the Spartans in the game during the overtime periods. The tiny Spartan guard accounted for all four of Damien's points in the first overtime, two of the nine points in the second extra period and ended the game with 24 points — most of which came from the 25 to 30-foot range.

But the big scorer in the game was Garey's sophomore forward Gary Carpenter, who pumped in 30 points. He was followed by teammate McDonald, who contributed his 22 points to the winning cause.

The big turning point in the game came with only 40 seconds left in the second overtime period when Damien, then one point down, committed a bad pass and turned the ball over to the Vikings.

McDonald then converted on a field goal with 30 seconds left and added two free throws with 14 seconds remaining to put the Vikings ahead for keeps.

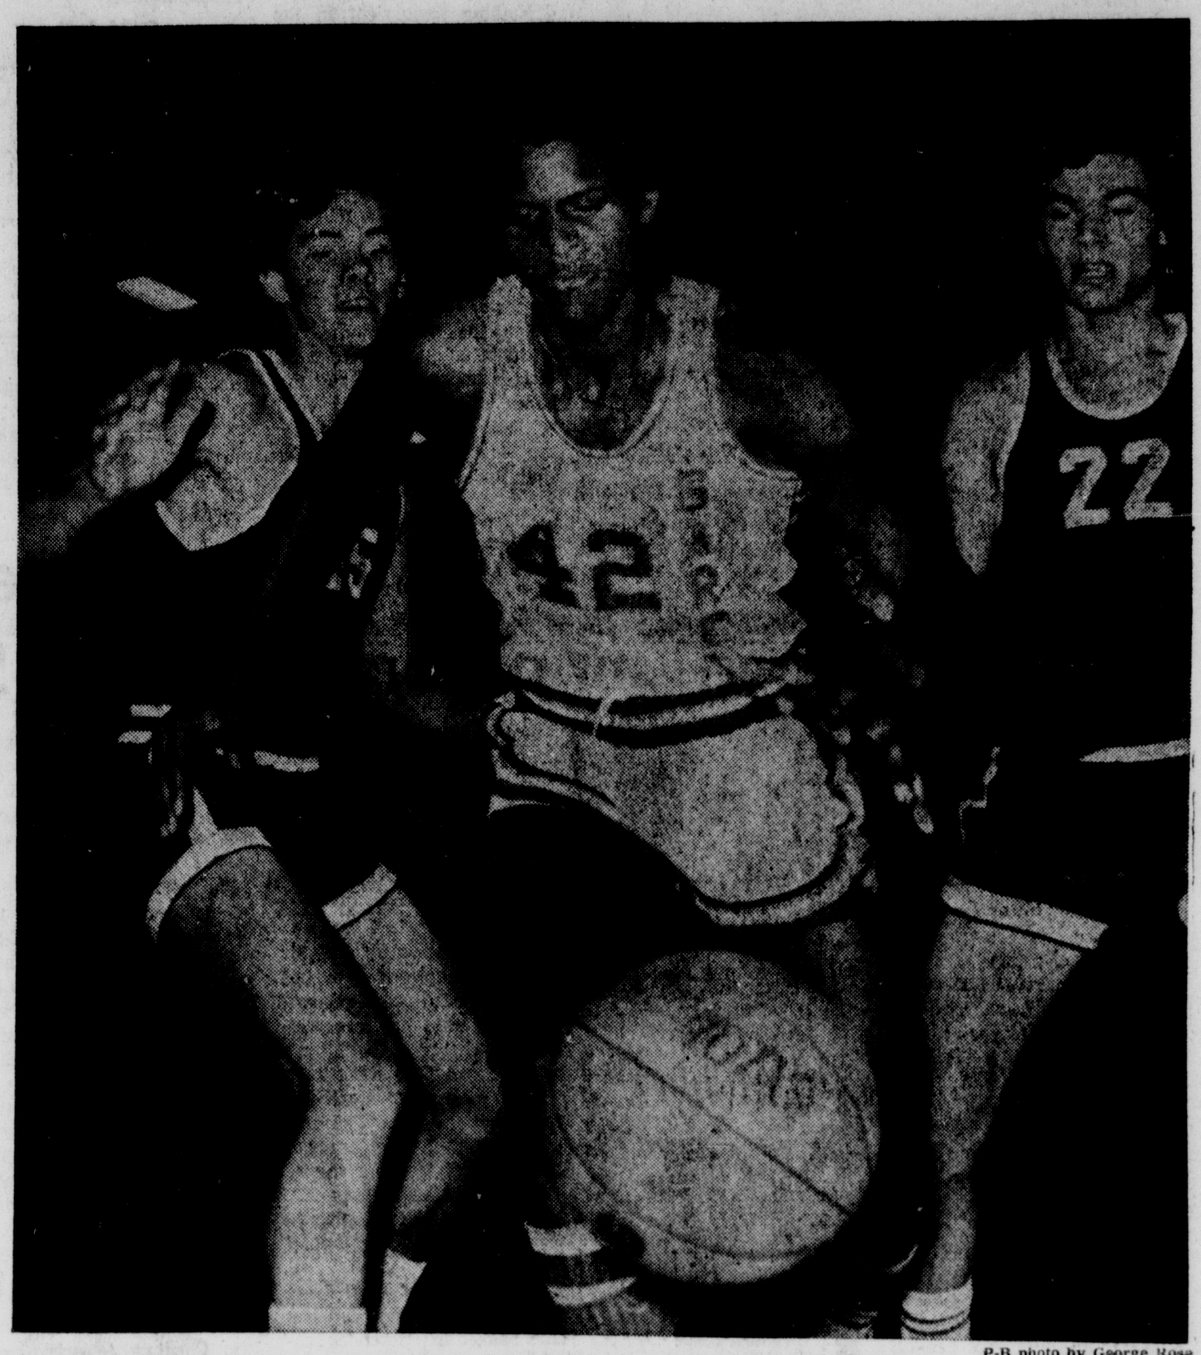

Garey looked as thought it was going to blow Damien right out out of its own gym early in the game by running off with a 12-2 lead. But before the period had ended, Damien pulled to within one point, 20-19, before falling to a 26-19 deficit when the buzzer sounded.

Spartan center John Pignotti was the big gunner for the hosts in the first quarter, accounting for nine of the team's 19 points.

Then the turnovers started hurting Garey. The Vikings, who committed 10 miscues in the second period, lost their lead with a little under three minutes remaining in the quarter and quickly fell three points back. Damien started playing Garey's game — fast breaking and taking command of the boards — even though the Spartans were much smaller than the visitors. And by the time the half had come to an end Damien found itself in front, 35-34. Both teams shot 50 per cent from the field in the half, but Damien only made six turnovers to Garey's 16 — which was the difference.

The lead changed hands twice and the game was tied twice in the third quarter, but Garey eventually held a three-point lead at the end of the the period, 53-50.

GOING AFTER BASKETBALL

Garey High's Gary Carpenter (42) goes after the basketball as Damien's Cornell Kasbergen (45) and John Pignotti (22) try to stop him. Garey won, 82-80, in two overtimes.

NCAA allows athletes to mix sports careers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Anthony Davis, USC's gifted junior halfback, may play professional baseball this spring and return to the Trojan collegiate football wars next fall.

That possibility was opened to Davis and other multi-sport standouts Tuesday with action by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Delegates to the NCAA's annual meeting amended rules in a decision which had been building for years.

"It's been in the works for a long time," said Dave Darriel, editor of the NCAA News. "The rulemakers took input from the coaches and reviewed career cases."

Also approved were measures which would:

—Permit collegiate athletes to try out with pro teams and retain amateur standing in a sport should they fail to sign contracts.

—Allow student-athletes to compete in pro-am golf and tennis tournaments without losing NCAA status in the sport. Such athletes would have limits put on their prize money, however.

Other restrictions which were approved would prevent amateurs from selling aftershave lotion or other products and hiring agents to "market him."

If an athlete collects a professional's salary he must forfeit any college scholarship in whatever sport, the NCAA ruled.

Otherwise, he will be freed by other rule adoptions to officiate sports on any level except professional and to teach physical education and sports techniques.

NCAA football coaches also announced proposed rule changes, including elimination of the "messenger service" practice which allows a player to bring in a play from the bench.

The coach-dominated NCAA Football Rules Committee is expected to act next week in Phoenix on the proposal, which requires a substitute to remain in the game for one play.

This would prevent teams using "a girl in hot pants" running out plays, a coaches' spokesman observed.

The coaches are also backing the ban of blocking below the waist on kicking plays.

"In our research we've found many serious injuries come in the kicking game," explained Notre Dame coach Ara Parsegian, whose teams used only above the waist blocking in spring practice.

"I think it's the best rule we've ever passed," USC coach John McKay said. "Most of those blocks below the waist are cheap shots anyway."

Prothro will add zing to S.D. attack

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Youth, trades and wide open football can be expected from the San Diego Chargers next season with Tommy Prothro as head coach.

"I've never believed in ball control," he told a new conference after being given a long-term contract Tuesday to coach the club. "If I have a choice, I favor the big play. Time of possession doesn't mean much to me."

Harland Svare, who coached the club for a year and a half before resigning under fan pressure, made more than 20 trades during the period to establish a team in the image of Vince Lombardi's old Green Bay Packers.

Svare remains as general manager, but whatever conflict might result was quelled by Chargers' owner Eugene Klein, who said Prothro has "complete authority over everything that happens on the football field," including trades and the draft.

Prothro obtained the likes of Larry McCutcheon, Jack Youngblood, Isaiah Robertson and Jim Beurtleson in the draft and Fred Dryer in a trade.

"The present coach of the Rams (Chuck Knox) is doing a super job," Klein said, "but the club was built two years before by Prothro."

The new coach said he did not know much about the present Chargers and when asked about untouchables repled, "Me, Mr. Klein and Mr. Svare. I'd trade my mother if I thought I were getting the better of the deal."

Prothro was fired after two years with the Rams but feels he learned a great deal. Klein feels the same way.

He said he and Svare had interviewed a great many prospects and Prothro best met the criteria.

He did not want a college coach because it would put the rebuilding program a year or two behind while he learned the pro game. And he did not want an assistant pro coach because of the "Peter Principle—Can an outstanding No. 2 go to No. 1 and stand the pressure?"

Both Klein and Prothro agreed that the rebuilding would not be accomplished overnight, but Klein has a man he thinks "can lead us out of the wilderness," and Prothro is back in coaching with nowhere to go but up.

"I was out for a year," he said, "and I didn't realize how much pressure I'd been under. I must enjoy the pressure."

Leos, Sagehens host Mexican cage team

POMONA — There will be an international flavor to Pomona Valley college basketball games this weekend.

Toluca University of Mexico will be making a visit to La Verne College Friday and Pomona-Pitzer Saturday night for a pair of cage contests.

La Verne coach Art Bias announced the extra games at Tuesday's weekly basketball luncheon at The Castaway Restaurant.

"We don't know much about Toluca," Bias said. "In fact, we're not even sure if we are going to play with international rules or not."

Friday's game will be at Bonita High's gymnasium while the Saturday contest is slated for Pomona-Pitzer's Memorial Gym, weather permitting if the gym doesn't have leaks.

Toluca, sister city of West Covina, will be seeing the sights of Southern California during its weekend stay. The school's volleyball team is also scheduled for some games in the Southland.

Azusa Pacific's Rick Reed and Citrus College's Roy Hickman were honored as the Players of the Week.

Reed was the Most Valuable Player in the Point Loma Tournament where he scored 39 points and 15 rebounds in the three games. Hickman sank 25 of 38 shots in scoring 61 points in Citrus' two games.

Kings discover how to enjoy road victory

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, after breaking a six-game road losing streak, take on the powerful Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

The Kings, opening up a seven-game road trip, scored three goals within a 1:58 span of the first period Tuesday night to beat the New York Islanders 3-1.

Butch Goring opened the Kings' scoring at 11:32 beating goalie Gerry Desjardins on a breakaway shot. Bob Nevins set up the score by stealing the puck from Denis Potvin.

Juha Widing made it 2-0 at 12:28 by scoring directly from a faceoff deep in New York territory. Frank St. Marseille slammed in a 20-footer a minute later to end the Kings' scoring.

The only New York goal came at 8:33 of the second period, when Lorne Henning deflected a Billy Harris pass into the net on a power play.

The win gives Los Angeles a 13-19-6 mark for 32 points and sixth place in the NHL's Western Division. The Kings trail fifth-place Minnesota by one point.

After taking on the secondplace Black Hawks tonight, the Kings visit Detroit next Saturday.

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College is picked to finish last in the rugged, well balanced South Coast Conference basketball race which gets underway tonight.

Conference sports information directors installed defending co-champions Cerritos (14-4) and Santa Ana (14-5), along with Orange Coast (13-5) as the top three teams in a poll conducted recently. Fullerton (11-6), San Diego Meas (13-6) and MSAC (6-10) round out the bottom half of the standings as the SIDS see it.

Head coach Gene Victor and his Mounties, however, have quite a different slant on things.

"We could go 0-10," said Victor smiling slyly, "or we could win a few too." Translation: there are going to be a few surprises before it's all over.

MSAC, the only team with a non-conference record under .500, isn't even given passing notice as a real contender. Nor, for that matter, is San Diego Mesa, the team the Mounties face in the opener tonight at 7:30 p.m.

"Mesa is vastly underrated," Victor advises. "They have the talent and the size (no starter under 6-foot-3) to win it all."

A veteran team, the Olympians feature 6-foot-6 forward Jim Robinson, the defending conference scoring leader, who proved he hasn't lost his touch over the span of a year by being named most valuable player in the 16-team Chaffey Invitational.

Mesa swept three games enroute to the championship of the 33rd annual Pomona Valley classic.

Victor feels the Mounties are up to the challenge. "We'll be ready to play," he predicted.

For momentum, MSAC has won four of its last five games, including a three-game sweep of the Hancock Holiday tournament in Santa Maria.

After a 2-9 start, the Mounties have jelled into a solid unit, which Victor believes can play with any team.

"We finally have the right five playing," said the veteran coach, explaining recent success. "It took us as coaches awhile to find the five who play together best."

The "right five" include three players who only came off the bench when the season first began. The most pleasant surprise has been the play of former Ganesha High star Gary Melugin, a 6-foot-6 freshman forward, who has played in only eight of MSAC's games and started in seven.

Melugin scored 56 points in the Hancock event and was named tourney MVP.

The other new starters are sophomore forward Carl Williamson, and guard Bill Keilty, who joined the team late after playing defensive back for the Mountie football team last fall.

The veterans are 6-foot-10 center Gary Nash, who leads the team with a 19.1 scoring average and a 11.5 rebounding average, and 5-10 guard Steve Arthur, the team leader in assists.

A bout with the flu for several of the players, including Melugin, has slowed the team's climb to peak performance, according to Victor, and was instrumental in an 87-51 rout in the club's most recent outing last week at Long Beach.

Everyone is expected to be ready for tonight's opener.

Lakers stunned by Bullets

DETROIT (UPI) — After opening their four-game road trip with a 94-92 loss to the Capital Bullets Tuesday night, the Los Angeles Lakers take on the Detroit Pistons tonight.

The Lakers still lead the NBA's Pacific Division with a 24-19 record, although their winning percentage is less than the Pistons. Detroit's 26-17 mark is only good enough for third place in the tough Midwest Division.

All-star guard Phil Chenier brought the Bullets back from a seven-point third quarter disadvantage Tuesday with an 11-point outburst in the final period. Chenier hit six of his seven field goal attempts in the period, including a free throw with 25 seconds remaining that gave Capital a three-point lead they never relinquished.

Chenier had been named to the Eastern Conference's All-Star squad earlier in the day, to the delight of backcourt mate Archie Clark.

"Phil's a fine player, and by rights he's an all-star," said Clark.

"We did a lot of good rebounding and we played exceptional defense," Clark added. "We work hard on our defense."

Chenier ended with 27 points for the Bullets, while Clark added 16, and Elvin Hayes and Nick Witherspoon each scored 14.

Gail Goodrich led the Lakers with 27 points, while Jim Price scored 20 and Elmore Smith added 18. The Lakers led 42-36 at the half.

After tonight's meeting with Detroit, the Lakers travel to Boston for a Friday night meeting with the Celtics. Los Angeles is in Philadelphia Saturday night for their last game before the all-star game next Tuesday night in Seattle.

Erma Bombeck

You don't have to be a sensitive person to sit in the tourist section of an airplane and wonder what goes on in first class. There's a mystique about it that titillates the fancy of the most indifferent travelers.

Maybe if they didn't draw the curtain that divides the two sections, no one would think about it. But from the moment they obliterate your view of first class, your tourist imagination starts to work.

I visualize first class as a Roman orgy where hostesses serve champagne from their slippers and Dean Martin comes out of the cockpit, pulls an oxygen mask out of the luggage rack and croons into it, "Everybody loves somebody sometime . . ."

In my heart I know every seat contains a biggie celebrity who is trying to escape from the autograph-seeking little people.

Recently, I had occasion to visit with a serviceman who was on standby and was placed in first class at the last minute. Later when he got bumped to tourist, I asked, "What was it like up there? What did you have to eat?"

"No big deal," he said. "We had shrimp cocktail and filet mignon. What did you have?"

"Veal look-alike and plastic green noodles. Level with me. Could you stand up in the restroom?"

"Sure. And we had earphones for music. You had earphones, didn't you?"

"Actually, no. We had a steward who went up and down the aisle humming the theme music from Grapes of Wrath."

He shrugged, "I don't think first class is any different from tourist class."

My eyes narrowed. "Don't you believe it. The people in first class get to where they are going first. Their magazines are always current. Their cabins are always pressurized. Their windows don't open. There are no children with chocolate dried around their mouths. Their fasten-seat-belt lights never burn out. Good heavens, man. You saw 'Airport.' You know where the nuts with the homemade bomb was sitting . . . in tourist class!" I looked around me to make sure no one was listening. "Let me lay it on you. See that cushion that says, 'Flotation cushion'?"

He nodded.

"I've been flying for fifteen years and not once has that cushion flotated."

"What does flotation mean?" he asked.

"Who knows? I've never been in first class to find out!"

Campaign launched

Unicameral legislature sought by initiative

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A ballot initiative campaign was launched Tuesday to change California's 120-member, two-house legislature into a single body with 99 representatives.

If successful, it would be the third and most sweeping revision of the legislature to be put before voters in eight years.

The campaign for a unicameral legislature is sponsored by a newly formed group called "One For All," led by Berkeley Municipal Court Judge Lewis Sherman, a former Republican state senator. The group claimed support from former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh and former Senate President Pro Tem Hugh Burns.

The initiative effort, which will require 525,000 voter signatures for a spot on the Nov. 7 general election ballot, parallels a drive in the legislature to have a similar proposal placed directly on the ballot without need of a signature campaign.

The legislative proposal is headed by Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, who is carrying one constitutional amendment to revampe the legislature into a single house (SCA32) and another to put the responsibility of legislative reapportionment into the hands of a public commission (SCA1).

The initiative would similarly take the task of reapportionment out of the legislature's hands.

Both drives are aimed at reducing the power and control of legislative leaders by allowing committees to elect their own chairmen and assigning bills to committees through a large Rules Committee.

Members of the one-house legislature would be called senators and would be elected for staggered, four-year terms.

Gregorio was on hand at a Capitol news conference with Sherman to announce the initiative had been filed with the state attorney general and the signature drive would begin soon.

Sherman argued that a single-house legislature would be more efficient, more responsible and would produce an "incredible savings in cost." When questioned, he said the specific savings could amount to $15 million to $20 million a year over the long-run.

"To me this is the greatest reform in 100 years," he declared.

Twice in recent years California voters have approved ballot measures changing the way the legislature does business. One was a proposition establishing the so-called full-time legislature in 1966 and the other was a 1972 proposition authorizing two-year sessions.

Sherman argued that a two-house legislature was no longer logical since both houses must be apportioned on the basis of population.

A spokesman for the initiative drive said money for the effort currently was coming from pledges from a few individuals, whom he declined not name. Fund-raising concerts were planned in Los Angeles and San Francisco to raise the $100,000 which the group estimated it will need for the signature campaign, he said.

Deadline for submitting the signatures is May 27.

Alaska has the fewest telephones of any state, 28 for every 100 residents, compared with the national average of 56 per 100.

Tigers opportunists in choosing dinner

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: While I certainly don't want one as a pet, I find the tiger an especially fascinating animal. Is it true they really acquire a taste for human flesh or is that an old wives' tale? I am sure they would kill in self-defense, if they could, but what about their diet, really? — E.D.

DEAR E.D.: The largest and strongest of the great cats hasn't fared any better against a hostile environement — especially man — than any of the other members of the genus Panthera. To survive, tigers do learn to enjoy a variety of prey, a menu that has included hapless humans. Tigers generally are opportunists as far as diet is concerned. They have been known to consume fish, turtles, and crocodiles and even on occasion, other cats including leopards. A very hungry tiger may even kill and eat another (presumably less hungry) tiger.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Several times now, our pup has chewed up the room where we leave him when we go away for the day. I am sure he gets mad because we leave him alone and does it to get even. Last time he did it, Dad gave him a real bad spanking and the next two or three days he had several bad fits and I thought he was going to die.

He drank a lot of milk though and began to get a little stronger and now he has been all right since then. Someone told me Spud had distemper which caused the fits. I didn't think this was it because he had his distemper shots a month ago. I thought maybe Dad's whipping was too much for him. Could that have been it?—D.R.

Dear D.R: Most dogs would have a better chance to recover from a "whipping', depending upon its severity, than they do from distemper. Under the circumstances you have described, however, the more likely cause of Spud's seizures would be lead poisoning. Chewing the paint from various portions of the room could have been the source of such lead and this poisoning can cause hysteria or convulsions or both with or without other signs of lead damage. Recovery does occur in some cases though usually not without veterinary assistance. To spare poor Spud another potentially fatal bout with lead or lash or both, be sure he is not confined to that room again and that in the future he has no chance to chew paint from there or elsewhere.

Korean youths, clergy, editors holding breath

SEOUL (UPI) — The minister's sermons were screened. The editor was harassed about the reporter's story. The teacher's lectures were carefully checked. The student was warned about talking politics with his classmates. The visitors to the politician's home were put under surveillance.

The politician's aide was roughed up by interrogators.

This was no "1984." This was South Korea 1973.

This Big Brother activity is the work of the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (KCIA). And it is widespread. It is what triggered student demonstrations at Seoul's colleges and universities early last October and threatened to turn this into a winter of discontent.

After two months of increasingly serious demonstrations, the government moved to redress some of the grievances. Schools were closed almost a month earlier than usual for the mid-term holidays. Then the cabinet was reshuffled, the KCIA chief was sacked, arrested students were released and others under investigation or forced out of school were given amnesty at the order of President Park Chung-Hee.

That stopped the demonstrations. But as surely as spring comes, there will be renewed demonstrations by the students if promises of further relaxation and reform go unfulfilled.

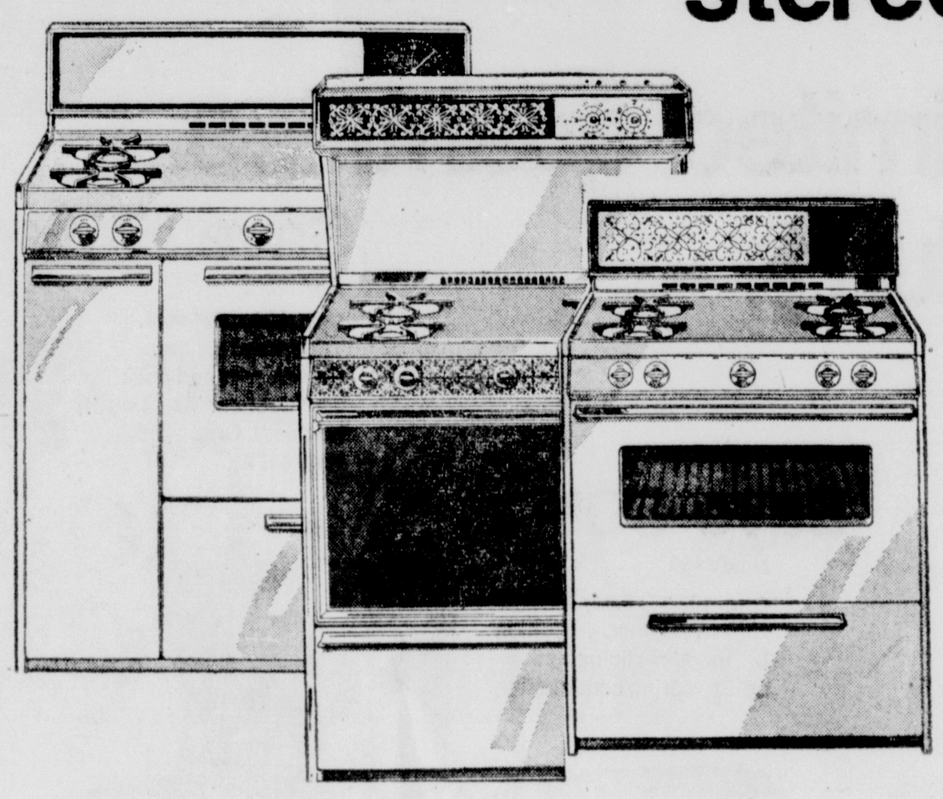

Prime Minister Kim Chong-pil has promised church leaders that sermons no longer would be screened and KCIA agents would stay out of the churches.

In December, Education Minister Min Kwan-shik met with presidents and deans of Seoul's colleges and universities to pledge the withdrawal of all "unwanted" people from the campuses, according to a highly placed government source. In return for this increased "autonomy," school authorities will be given more responsibility for keeping students in line, the sources said.

Culture and Information Minister Yun Chu-Yong told the nation's editors and publishers that the government would put an end to "outside interference" in the press.

That, according to one veteran editor, means that any editor who publishes something which displeases Kim or Park may still earn a summons to the KCIA interrogation tank on Seoul's Namsan Mountain.

Leopards have bad night

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LA VERNE — It was one of those nights for La Verne College.

Nothing went right in the second half. Center Bill Rockwood, the Leopards' tallest player at 6-4, picked up his fourth foul nine seconds into the period and retired to the bench.

Guard Ken Lipkin even missed a free throw that broke his string at 21. But Lipkin made the next five and now has connected on 51 of 57 for the season.

But the Leos, who just couldn't buy a basket, went down to an 88-60 defeat at the hands of visiting Occidental at Bonita High Tuesday night, the Tigers' third win against eight losses.

Tigers broke the game wide open in the second half. They outscored the Leopards 16-6 in the first 3:26 of the half and the margin reached 23-6 before Dave Castenada got the Leos' seventh and eighth points 6:21 into the period.

"We just made too many mistakes," commented coach Art Bias. We threw the ball away 13 times in the first half and 14 times in the second half and most of those resulted in layins."

Oxy coach Bill Westphal didn't like the way his team played the first half although they held a 33-24 lead at the intermission.

"I told them I wouldn't accept the first half," Westphal said. I told them we weren't going to the basket enough and weren't mean enough. I got on some individuals."

Westphal's players might not have been mean enough the first half, but they were downright cruel the second.

They hit on 24 of 38 field goal attempts or 63.1 per cent while outscoring the Leos 55-36.

La Verne experienced long scoring droughts in each half against the taller Tigers. The Leopards didn't score a point until the game was nearly five minutes old. In the second half, they went for over three minutes without a point.

The Leos found it extremely difficult to penetrate the Oxy zone and were also troubled by the press in the first part of the second half.

Dwight Washington had 22 points for the Leos and John Zorotovich had 22 for Oxy. Outside of Washington and Lipkin, no one was in double figures for La Verne while four Tigers hit the double mark.

Washington's 22 points accounted for all but seven of the points scored by the Leos' front line. Joe Edmonds had five points all in the second half. Rockwood scored only two both in the first half.

La Verne, now 1-1 in conference play and 2-9 overall, is off until a week from tonight when the Leopards travel to Redlands.

Weather will determine site of tonight's 'Hen-Stags clash

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Pomona-Pitzer and Claremont-Mudd tangle tonight in a Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) game.

The contest is scheduled for Pomona's Memorial Gym, but further rainfall could cause a switch in sites to Claremont-Mudd.

"Our gym just can't take anymore rain," explained coach Les Nagler. "The roof leaks but it's hard to trace it because roof is dome shaped and the water follows the beams and maybe dripping 40 feet away from the actual leak."

Nagler's team has been relegated to using just one side basket for practices because of water on the floor around the regular hoops.

The Sagehens (6-4) have not played a game since losing to Riverside (84-58) in the championship game of the Cal Baptist tournament Dec. 21.

Nagler has had his players for only two or three practices. Nine of the 16 reported Sunday night and the other seven Monday. With no practice today, that leaves little time for preparation for tonight's game.

Brandon Boyd, the 6-2 freshman forward from New York, apparently has receovered from the back problem that cut his efficiency in half his last two games.

"Boyd was our most consistent player in the early part of the season," remarked Nagler. "He looks like he'll be okay. He better be."

The game will be the first in conference play for the 'Hens and the second for C-M.

The Stags (2-10) lost their conference opener to La Verne Saturday (62-61) and will be trying to snap a losing streak that has now reached nine.

"We'll have to play better than we did against La Verne Saturday," commented C-M coach Ted Ducey. "We're going to have to be a little more aggressive on defense."

The Stags will have the height advantage with 6-8 Dave Willhite and 6-5 forwards George Glonka and Kim Cheatum towering over Pomona-Pitzer's 6-5 center Geoff Northrop and forwards Bob Hoehn (6-6) and Boyd (6-2).

C-M guards Marty Habern (6-3) and Norman Richards (6-2) also have a height advantage over Norm Carter (6-2) and either Scott Pease (5-8) or Garry Stewart (6-1).

"They'll give us problems because of their height," said Nagler. "But we have more speed and we hope we can defense "Willhite."

Hacienda games begin at 3:15

All Wednesday basketball games in the Hacienda League will be played at 3:15 p.m., not 4:45 p.m. The junior varsity contests follow the varsity contests.

Ex-Mountie leads CSF over APC

FULLERTON — Former Mt. San Antonio College star Jim Bogdanowicz scored 22 points Tuesday night to lead Cal State Fullerton to a 75-72 win over Azusa Pacific.

Bogdanowicz was the only starter on the Titans to score in double figures. No other starter had more than eight points.

APC has been pulling out wins in the second half but couldn't quite make it against CSF although outscoring the Titans 41-38 in the second half.

The Cougars' great scoring tandem, Rick Reed and Dennis Vanzant, accounted for 49 of the PAC points. Reed scored 29 and Vanzant 20.

No other Cougar starter scored more than seven points and two starters, Leatherby and Jeff Butler, scored only two points each.

Next up for PAC is Southern California College Saturday night at Costa Mesa.

Then the excitement began. But the Vikings were getting into foul trouble. McDonald picked up his fourth foul with 4:15 left in the third quarter and Carpenter was tagged with his fourth with 5:06 remaining in the game.

The lead changed hands five times in the last five minutes of the quarter and the game was tied three other times.

Garey had control of the ball with the score tied at 67-all and only 44 seconds showing on the clock in the fourth quarter, but turned the ball over to Damien on the in bounds pass — setting up the Spartans for the last shot of the quarter, which never got off.

Battered Bill's injury a 'bruise'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bill Walton's back injury, the result of a crash landing on the hard Tartan playing surface in Pullman, Wash., Monday night, has been diagnosed as a slight muscle bruise.

X-rays taken on the star UCLA center Tuesday were negative, according to trainer Ducky Drake. A team spokesman said Walton should be ready for UCLA's Pacific Eight contests here Friday and Saturday against California and Stanford. The injury was described as a "muscle bruise above the hip."

While Walton bathed his sore back in a whirlpool bath, UCLA coach John Wooden called for stricter penalties for "submarining" or "low bridging," a defensive maneuver in which a player bends over and upends an opponent who has left his feet.

Walton was injured in a collision with Washington State center Rick Steele in the Bruins' 55-45 victory. Wooden admitted that the collision was "not done deliberately, but probably came as second nature."

Nevertheless, Wooden said the rules should be changed to eliminte the possibility of injuries from "low bridging" collisions.

"One way to do it,' said Wooden, "would be to impose a harsher penalty—say, automatically ejecting any player who low-bridges an opponent."

Walton and the rest of the Bruin starting team were given Tuesday off while Wooden worked with his reserves. Wooden said Walton may practice today.

Sharks rally to beat Jets

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Sharks bounced back from a 1-0 deficit Tuesday night with two second-period goals and went on to post a 4-1 World Hockey Association win over the winnipeg Jets.

After Jean Guy Gratton gave the Jets the lead with the game's first score at 6:01 of the second period, the Sharks' Ron Ward tied it up with a shorthanded goal at 8:27.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The World Hockey Association Los Angeles Sharks Tuesday traded 33-year-old goalie Russ Gillow and right wing Earl Heiskala to the New Jersey Knights for another veteran goalie, 36-year-old Jim McLeod.

McLeod was 3-7 with New Jersey this season.

BIG FOOT? — Dr. Jeoffrey H. Bourne, director of Yerkes Regional Primate Center in Atlanta, holds plaster cast of a gorilla foot. He believes it is possible that seven and eight-foot humanoids such as "Big Foot"and the "Abominable Snowman" really exist, but he wants more proof.

Group formed to get truth behind Big Foot stories

By MARTIN HEERWALD

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — The last time we wrote a Sasquatch story, we vowed never to write another until (A) one was brought to our office for an interview or (B) the Green Bay packers signed one of the 800-pound creatures as a linebacker.

Neither (A) nor (B) has occurred. However, an unassuming but very persuasive fellow from Everett, Wash., did come to our office, sans Sasquatch, with a different kind of story to tell about the human-like beings also known as Abominable Snowman, Bigfoot or Yeti.

Dick Grover, a commercial fisherman who devotes most of his spare time gathering reports of Sasquatch sightings or camping out in what he believes to be likely Sasquatch country, has formed an organization called Project Discovery.

He says Project Discovery has no connection with any person or group perpetrating Sasquatch stories or books for monetary gain.

"Our interests are strictly scientific," says Grover. "Our goals are to bring together sincere investigators from all parts of the state to solve the mystery of the Bigfoot, to coordinate and disseminate information and to develop a rapport between our group and people living in Bigfoot regions."

Grover has never seen a Sasquatch but says he believes the reports of some persons who say they have, including an account of how one family fled a wooded camping site after being terrorized by an angry, screaming group of boulder-tossing Bigfoots.

Grover says he nows the members of this particular family to be stable, reasonable persons. "They aren't the kind to just make up a story."

He says his organization is keeping their names confidential at their request.

Grover says Project Discovery has been able to collect information of Sasquatch sightings or signs of where such a creature had traveled from persons who would be reluctant to discuss their experiences with their best friends.

"I was as big a skeptic as anyone when I first heard of the Sasquatch,' he says. "But the more I inquired, the less skeptical I became."

Grover says his group is helped much by two members who are scientists and university professors. He says their membership is confidential because they are not yet ready to have their Sasquatch study activities known to fellow faculty members.

Grover says Project Discovery doesn't want to kill or capture a Bigfoot, but simply wants "extremely hard core evidence, something you can put your finger on."

"We hope one day to be able to come up with close-up photographs, including close full-face views."

He says the scientists in the group have been helpful in determining ways to set up recording and photographic equipment.

Grover says all members of the organization don't believe the Sasquatch really exists, but their efforts to explain reported sightings or traces of Bigfoot are as welcome as the work of the believers.

The Sasquatch that Grover and most of the 30-odd members of Project Discovery believe in is "highly intelligent, but more animal than human, living in heavily wooded areas, but not necessarily remote, uninhabited mountain country." He says they could be as tall as 8 feet and weigh up to 800 pounds. Grover says more reports of the Sasquatch have come from populated rural areas than from persons traversing primitive mountain country.

He believes only 150 to 200 of the creatures exist in all of Washington State. "That's perhaps why so few have seen one."

Grover notes that well organized efforts involving hundreds of searchers looking for a person missing in the woods have covered virtually every square foot of large areas without turning up a single clue.

Isn't it therefore logical, he argues, that a highly intelligent being sould keep itself from being seen by a group of loggers, hunters or campers.

Despite six years of collecting all available data related to the Bigfoot, Grover hasn't accumulated enough to positively convince the general public that Sasquatch is a living reality, not just a myth.

"This kind of information comes along very slowly. You need a lot of patience."

That's why, he says, Project Discovery is trying to get its identity well known.

If you think you've seen a Sasquatch lately and are afraid to tell your friends for fear they'll think you've gone looney, the Sasquatch listening post at Everett is anxious to hear all about it.

Grover says all you have to do is write Project Discovery, 1406 75th, Everett, Wash. OIWPE, and all information will be held in confidence. You'll also be invited to attend meetings.

The group doesn't list a phone because, Grover says:

"We don't want a lot of crank calls."

I have the only DC-10s to both Houston and New Orleans.

I'm Judy and I was born to fly.

I've got a lot going for you to Houston including nonstop DC-10 service twice a day.

And I've got a lot going for you to New Orleans, too. The only DC-10's.

My Houston schedule has daily nonstops, from early in the morning until late at night, including the only DC-10 night coach for $90 one way including tax, a nominal airport security surcharge is extra.

Here's the way it looks:

Lv. Los Angeles (all nonstop)	Ar. Houston
9:10am	2:00pm
2:30pm (DC-10)	7:20pm
1:15am (DC-10 night coach)	6:05am

My New Orleans schedule has the only DC-10 service from Los Angeles, a nonstop every morning, and a money-saving DC-10 night coach.

Here's the way it looks:

Lv. Los Angeles	Ar. New Orleans
9:10am (direct)	3:27pm

Dudley leads Giants in overtime

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

MONTCLAIR — Competition in the San Antonio League is so outstanding this basketball season that none of the matchups can be classified as duds. Any team is capable of winning on a given day.

Ralph Dudley scored all four of his points in the extra three minutes to pace Ganesha High to a 64-59 overtime win over Montclair in the SAL season opener for both teams.

The 5-4 reserve guard broke a 56-56 deadlock with a bucket at the 1:48 mark of the extra three minute period. Fifteen seconds later Dudley extended the Giants' lead to 60-56. Tony Esquibel cut Montclair's deficit to three points on a free throw with 1:20 to play.

After a controversial over-and back call that went in favor of Ganesha, Don Barnes scored with 48 seconds left to give the Giants a 62-59 lead. Ten seconds later, Jerrard Bryant tallied the Cavaliers' final points on a jump shot.

Cleve Porter, who finished with 16 points and 11 rebounds, added the finishing touches with a two-pointer with 35 seconds left.

Montclair, down 36-28 at the half, shut off Ganesha's offensive attack by plugging up the middle and outscoring the Giants, 17-11, in the third period.

The Giants upped their lead to 44-32 before the Cavs rattled off eight unanswered points to pull to within four points, 44-40. Porter added a bucket only to have the Cavs' Mike Medeiros, who came off the bench to toss in seven points and grab 11 rebounds, score on a three-point play.

Earl Wilson, who finished with 12 points, scored the initial basket of the fourth quarter before Montclair's Jim Brown, who played his best game of the season, tallied three free throws to tie the contest at 48-48 and then hit a jumper to give the Cavs their first lead of the game, 50-48, with 3:17 left in the quarter.

The remainder of the period looked like a cinch knot as the contest was tied four times.

Barnes' basket tied the game at 50-all with 3:02 left. Medeiros regained the lead for the Cavs with a bucket, only to have Broderick Hunter tying the game at 52-52. Gosswiller and Hunter hit the final four points for their team.

Hunter's last bucket, sending the game into overtime, came with 15 seconds on the clock and tied the game 56-56.

The first half of the game looked like the premiere of The New Broderick Hunter Show as the Ganesha forward tallied 18 points, grabbed seven rebounds, added three assists and connected on nine of 11 field goal attempts.

The Giants took a 21-14 first quarter lead as Hunter tallied 12 and Porter added six of their teams' points. Gosswiller paced the Cavs with six counters.

Ganesha had a 15-14 second period advantage as Hunter (6) and Wilson (5) took up the assault. Montclair was led by Brown with eight points.

Montclair shot 39 per cent from the floor, hitting on 23 of 58 attempts, and committed just seven turnovers.

300 roller in Carter Classic

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Jim Stefanich of Joliet, Ill., will be out to follow up his 300 game in last week's professional Bowlers' Association event today in the opening rounds of the $70,000 Don Carter Classic, the second stop on PBA tour.

Stefanich, an 11-time champion in PBA play, rolled only the perfect game in the finals of the Midas Open in Oakland, Calif. The game was worth a $10,000 bonus and a new car.

Defending Carter champion Gary Dickinson of Fort Worth, Tex., will challenge Stefanich for the $7,500 first prize money. A field of 160 bowlers is entered in the four-day event.

The tournament opens with 12 qualifying games Wednesday, followed by a six-game set Thursday.

The field will be trimmed to 24 semifinalists for match play Thursday evening and Friday. Five men will advance to Saturday's final round.

Claremont stages fourth quarter rally to win, 57-39

By SCOTT POINDEXTER
P-B Correspondent

CLAREMONT — For three quarters of the Pomona-Claremont basketball game Tuesday afternoon the Red Devils kept close to the Wolfpack. It took a 23-point outburst in the final period by Claremont to give the 'Pack an easy 57-39 victory in their San Antonio League opener.

Bruce Abraham was the key to the 'Pack attack. Abraham scored 10 of his 12 points in that final blitz. Red Devil center John Weiman and forward Mike Yarborough held Abraham to just two points until both Pomona players got into foul trouble.

Todd Ervin and John Douglas held the Wolfpack together as they waited to see if Abraham would unwind, which he finally did. Douglas was the leading scorer for Claremont with 13, Ervin added 12 and was the leader of the defense.

Pomona started the game out very strong, jumping out to a quick lead which it never relinquished throughout the first period. The Red Devils held Claremont to only seven points in the opening quarter. Weiman controlled the boards in that first period. Of the nine rbeounds, Weiman had six of them.

Claremont started coming back in the second period, mostly on the free throw shooting of Douglass and some timely help by Andy Schroeder. Finally, with 13 seconds left in the half, Ervin hit a basket to put the Wolfpack ahead at the break, 18-17.

The third quarter found Pomona scrapping to go ahead 22-20, but then the scrapping went into fouling and from that moment on the game began to go the Wolfpack's way. Derrick Thomas and Yarborough got into trouble, and with them gone, the Claremont team began to inch ahead.

Kent Stalwick came off the Claremont bench to put in two important baskets and Abraham got his first two points on a pair of free throws.

The Red Devils were not through yet. Jerome Holliman began to find the rage and helped his team stay within four of the Pack, 34-30. Holliman led all scorers with 14 points.

The fourth quarter found Claremont igniting a rocket. Pomona went four minutes without scoring a point, while Claremont was rattling off 16 unanswered points. When the Devils finally did score, the outcome had already been decided.

Friday, the Claremont team will host the Damien Spartans while Pomona goes home to take on Upland. Both games will start at 8 p.m.

Chino's big week a success--thus far

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

UPLAND — "If we can get through this first week with two wins, we'll be in the driver's seat."

This line could be attributed to almost any coach in the San Antonio League basketball race this season, but it happened to come from the newest mentor in the league, Chino's Bob Elder.

After Friday night there will be only three teams (maximum) which will boast 2-0 marks and the Cowboys might be one of those after scoring a 58-50 win Tuesday afternoon over host Upland.

It was a tough game for Chino but things won't get any easier as Friday night means pre-season favorite Ganesha at the Giants' gym. And that's why this first week is so important for Chino. Two games on the road against two contenders.

The Cowboys cleared their first hurdle of 1974 thanks to a balanced attack and the ability to hit free throws and stay out of foul trouble.

Tuesday's game marked the second meeting between Upland and Chino this season, with the Cowboys downing the Highlanders for third place in the Chino Tournament earlier this season.

Both games were similar, as in the first contest, Chino made 14 foul shots to four for Upland while in the SAL opener, the Cowboys connected on 16 of 27 free throws while Upland only took eight foul shots, making half of them.

The game started out slow for both teams, with no one able to find the basket with regularity. However each team opened up in the second quarter as Curt Oldenkamp and Mark Milton each scored four baskets, seemingly trading hoops each time down the floor.

At the half, Chino enjoyed a 31-28 cushion but the Scots erased that quickly with a 5-0 blitz in the third period to take the lead, 33-31. It was a seesaw battle then, with the Cowboys ending the period on top and Upland on the ground. The margin was once again three points.

But then in the final eight minutes, Upland started playing gambling defense and the fouls started coming. Chino's little guard, Manuel Delgado, was superb in the last half as he constantly dribbled through the Upland full court press and was ball hawking all over the court, either stealing the ball or feeding a teammate.

Oldenkamp and Tim Smith shared game honors with 18 apiece for their respective teams while Upland's Stu DuVall and Chino's Milton added a dozen.

Orien Ogg was held to only six points by the Chino zone defense, but did take an early lead in the technical foul race by picking up a pair.

When the physical game was over, Elder commented, "This was a big win for us. Upland is our biggest rival, at least our players feel that way, and we need to win as many away from home as we can. This league is awful tough. It's going to be fun."

FUN? Can a tight, nail biting, hair pulling race be fun for a coach? Sure, if you've just won in your conference debut, even the post game interview is enjoyable.

Judge rules marshmallow is not a deadly weapon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge ruled Wednesday that a marshmallow is not a deadly weapon.

Robert Edward Callender, a college student, and Dean Krasomil, a hospital worker, filed suit demanding that their arrests for assault with a deadly weapon be expunged on the grounds it wrongfully hurt their reputations and careers. No formal charges were filed and they were released the next day.

They were arrested on Halloween for firing miniature marshmallows — weighing no more than a sixth of an ounce— from slingshots "over the heads of the victims, which popped down and hit the victims on the head."

Superior Court Judge Campbell Lucas agreed that the marshmallows were not legally lethal, and ordered the record changed to show they were detained, but not arrested.

Santa Anita field offers Merry Fellow

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Merry Fellow and Triple Crown head a list of three-year-olds in today's $30,900 Los Feliz Stakes at Santa Anita.

Merry Fellow earned a half-length victory over Triple Crown in a six-furlong event earlier this year. The Los Feliz is set for six and one-half furlongs.

Steve Valdez will be aboard Merry Fellow, who finished second in Santa Anita's Sunny Slope stakes last season. Braulio Baeza will ride Tripe Crown, who lost by only a length and one-quarter to Protagonist in New York's Champagne Stakes last season.

Each of the 13 entrants will carry 120 pounds.

Bill Shoemaker was named aboard the Frank Martin entry Accipiter, Rube the Great, and L'Amour Rullah.

The weekend program at Santa Anita features the $50,000-added Malibu Stakes, pitting Florida-bred Linda's Chief against Ancient Title. Linda's Chief won three stakes races here last season and earned a total of $366,180.

Sunday's main event is the $30,000-added San Gorgonio Claiming Stakes, featuring Olymbrose, Barrydown and Pee Jay Kit.

Webb drops final pre-league outing

Webb School, after enjoying a three-week layoff in basketball, returned to action Tuesday afternoon.

But the Gauls were probably wishing they would have taken an extra week off after dropping a 50-46 decision to Rio Hondo in their final pre-league game of the season.

Webb, now 2-6 for the season, trailed Rio Hondo by two points, 48-46, with one minute left in the game and had a chance to tie it up. But John Baer missed a layup and Rio Hondo's Mike Barraque added two free throws to cinch the win.

In other games played Tuesday, Chaffey opened Citrus Belt League action with a 72-61 victory over Redlands, Ontario Christian dropped a 45-41 decision to Valley Christian and Western Christian picked off Duarte, 66-56.

Forwards Wally Pitts (14 points) and Bob Wright (12 points) were the leading scorers for Webb, while Rio Hondo was paced by Steve Hersley's 19 points and Charlie Parson's 15.

It was the first victory of the season for Rio Hondo, whose record now stands at 1-7.

Only two starters and one reserve were able to score in double figures for Ontario Christian in its loss to Valley Christian. Starting forward Dan Heida led the Knights with 14 points and Cliff Tadema was high-point man for Valley with 21 markers.

Western Christian blew out to a 37-18 lead by halftime against Duarte and then had to survive foul trouble late in the game to come up with the win, its 10th of the season against only two losses.

Bruce Sider, as usual, was the leading scorer for the Lancers with 24 points, with teammates Norman Moline (14) and Ron Morris (11) also scoring in double figures.

Moline and center Jim Shoemaker fouled out early in the fourth quarter and Duarte took advantage of the situation to outscore the Lancers 21-11 in the final eight minutes of play.

Western will now travel to San Fernando Valley Christian Friday night at 8 p.m. and host Avalon Saturday afternoon in a 12 noon contest.

Webb will host Sherman Indian Institute next Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. for its Arrowhead League opener.

Citrus hosts Chaffey in Mission play

Citrus and Chaffey colleges collide tonight as the second week of the Mission Conference basketball campaign begins.

Both teams share 1-1 conference records going into the 8 p.m. contest at the Owl gymnasium. The Panthers have a distinct edge in overall records, having won 9 of 13 games. Citrus is 5-11.

In weekend games, Chaffey split decisions at Southwestern and Riverside, winning at the former, 81-79, and rus lost to San Bernardino, 84-80, and topped Saddleback, 89-74.

Veteran guard Roy Hickman has been the most consistent performer for the Owls through the season. An All-Mission Conference selectee in the 1970-71 season, Hickman hasn't lost his touch after being away from the game for two seasons.

In the conference openers, Hickman scored 61 points, added eight assists and grabbed 13 rebounds.

Chaffey has been paced by sophomores Bob Kovach, a 6-7 all-state forward, and Pierre Rankin, a 6-1 playmaking guard. Kovach leads the team in scoring with a 20-plus per game average, and in rebounding with about 12 per game.

It was Rankin who dropped two clutch free throws in the last 18 seconds last weekend to give the Panthers the two-point victory over Southwestern in the opener.

The teams complete the week in conference games Friday and Saturday night. Chaffey hosts Saddleback Friday and San Diego City Saturday. Citrus hosts San Diego Friday and Grossmont Saturday.

Grant challenges Rozelle

HOUSTON (UPI) — The relationship between Bud Grant, the taciturn coach of the Minnesota Vikings, and pro football czar Pete Roselle is about as icy today as the frigid below zero weather back in Bloomington, Minn.

In a rare direct challenge to Rozelle's authority, Grant continued to criticize his team's Super Bowl training facilities even though an NFL official warned him that he might be fined by Rozelle for doing it.

After announcing he had been threatened with a fine for the first time in his career, Grant said, "Minnesota has the poorest facilities of any team in the league and it's still a lot better than this. Even the high school teams don't practice here, they just play the games on the field.

While Grant was challenging Rozelle, the Miami Dolphins became sympathetic bystanders calmly preparing for the third straight Super Bowl appearance Sunday. Joe Robbie, the Dolphin president, even defended Grant.

"Bud Grant isn't a popoff guy," Robbie noted, "I have tremendous respect for him. If I walked into that dressing room and saw the two sparrows on the shower heads, I probably would have said the same thing."

Jim Kensil, the executive director of the NFL, phoned Jim Finks, the Vikings' general manager, and told him to tell Grant "there could be a fine" for Grant's remarks.

After Grant got the message from Finks, he said, "I took it as a threat."

Kensil said, "it wasn't a threat, it was a fact. He can get fined for statements detrimental to the game. It's in the constitution. The commissioner will not pass judgment on whether there will be a fine until he gets all the facts."

Kensil said Viking representatives had visited the site two weeks ago and, "they had no complaints."

Since Miami is an AFC team and Houston is an AFC city, the Dolphins get to practice at the Houston Oilers' training site. That leaves the Vikings with what NFL representatives claim is the second best facility available—a high school field named James Delmar Stadium.

The locker room is stark, with racks along the sides for the players to hang their clothes on. Tables are set in front of the racks. The sparrows in the shower were an extra added attraction.

"All I want is the same thing the other team has," Grant said, "I don't want to be under a handicap."

Ironically, the Viking players didn't seem to be as disturbed the situation as Grant is.

Although he called it a "bad situation,' linebacker Jeff Siemon said, "we all laughed when we saw the place. I guess that says something about our team. We could have gotten upset but we're not that way.'

Both teams worked out Tuesday as they started the final countdown of practice sessions for Sunday's clash.

Shula and Grant disagreed on the field. Shula said, "the offensive identity of the Vikings the last two years has changed completely now that they've got guys like Fran Tarkenton, John Gilliam and Chuck Forema. They used to be a field position team that tried to get field goals. Now they've opened up, they use motion, flood formations and things like that."

But Grant said, "There has been no change in our overall team philosophy since we played in the Super Bowl in 1969. I think the 1969 team was more dominant. This team may be a little better overall but the opposition must be better because our statistics aren't as dominant."

School board approves of teacher exchange plan with Mexican city

POMONA — The Pomona school board Tuesday night agreed to allow two Pomona teachers to participate in a sister cities exchange program with Monterrey, Mexico.

If arrangements can be made quickly, the program will begin at the start of the second semester which begins the end of this month.

Sidney Moses, assistant superintendent of educational services, said 13 Pomona teachers had indicated an interest in participating in the program. He said educators in Monterrey, Pomona's sister city, are checking in their schools to see if teachers are interested in participating.

If the program is carried out, Pomona will continue to pay its teachers, and the U.S. government will pay the Mexican teachers $25 a day. The sister cities organization will provide housing.

Moses said that it is desirable but not necessary that Pomona teachers speak Spanish if they participate. "They (Monterrey schools) primarily want good English teachers," he explained. Pomona educators will be able to screen Mexican teachers who apply and select teachers to come into Pomona schools under the exchange.

"We are working through the Pomona Chamber of Commerce in arranging the teacher exchange," Moses said.

If plans cannot be completed in time for a second-semester exchange, then the district will attempt to have an exchange made during the summer session, Moses said.

In other actions, the board:

—Learned that the winter meeting of the Los Angeles County School Trustees Association will be held Jan. 17 at 6:30 p.m. at Downey High School. Trustees will tour the offices of the county superintendent of schools, also in Downey.

—Accepted the retirement resignation of Opal L. Cinquemani, typist clerk and cafeteria worker, after 10 years' service.

—Accepted the retirement resignation of Dellmar K. Henrich, teacher at district high schools, effective July 7, 1974.

—Accepted the resignation of Alden H. Loomis Jr., teacher at Washington school.

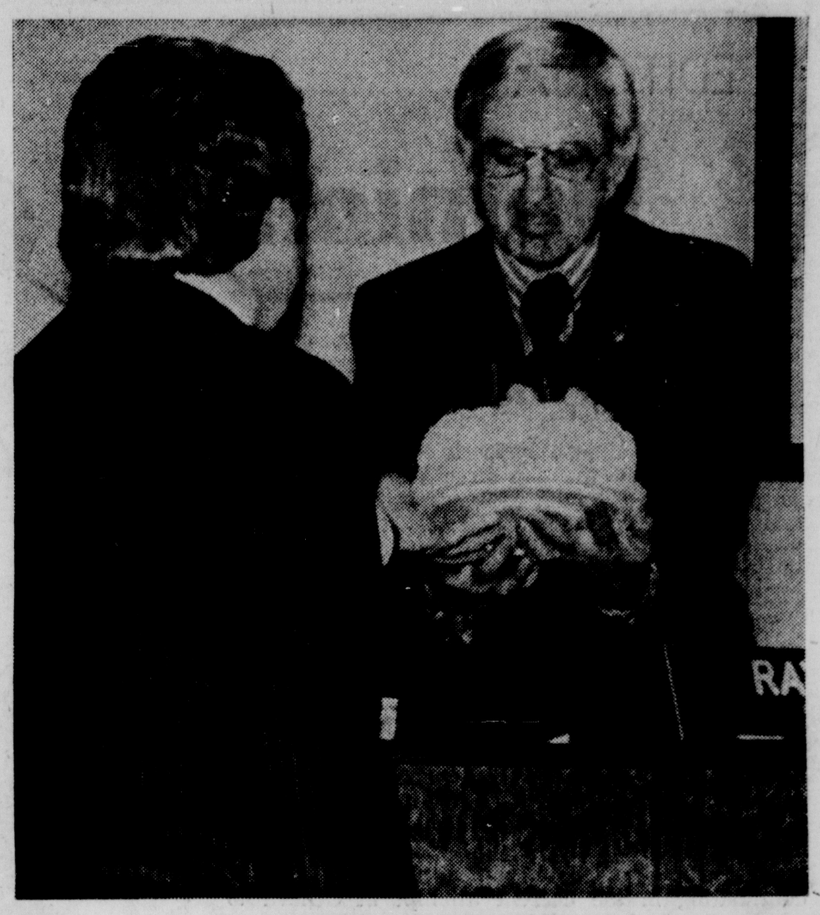

—Was told that district employes contributed $21,315 to this year's United Crusade Drive, a 15 per cent increase over last year's $18,367.

Appreciation was expressed to James Marquis, director of personnel, and David R. Evans, personnel assistant, who served as co-chairmen for district employes during the drive. Marquis said they went over their goal of $1 per ADA (average daily attendance.)

—Received a report from Ganesha High School Principal Lewis S. Manville on the simulated daily demand schedule which was tried out at Ganesha two weeks before the holidays.

The purpose of the experiment, Manville said, was "to try to break down the time barrier and give each student as much time as he needed. The majority of our students did a beautiful job," he said.

Manville praised the system because "it allows teachers to fully utilize their time . . . to teach."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

A surprised Mayor Ray J. Lepire receives birthday cake marking Pomona's 86th anniversary from Chino City Atty. Bill McVittie at Pomona City Council's weekly meeting Monday. Pomona, founded in 1875, was incorporated on Jan. 6, 1888. McVittie is a candidate for assemblyman in the new 65th District.

Nomination deadline for Jaycee award closing in POMONA — Monday is the deadline for organizations and individuals to nominate a young Pomona man for the Distinguished Service Award.

The award is presented annually by the U.S. Jaycees to the Pomona man 35 or younger who in the opinion of judges has made the most significant contribution to community service during 1973.

The presentation will be made at the Pomona Jaycees' annual DSA dinner the evening of Jan. 23 at Orlando's Restaurant. The Jaycees will also present the Boss of the Year Award, and Key Man awards to outstanding members of the club.

Nominations for the DSA may be delivered to the Pomona Chamber of Commerce office at 100 Pomona Mall West or mailed to Pomona Jaycees, P.O. Box 285, Pomona, 91769. DSA nomination forms may be obtained by contacting the awards chairman, John Tessier, 627-1551.

Furniture falls apart; compromise is reached

I bought a living room set consisting of a sofa and love seat from a Pomona Valley store on Oct. 28, 1972, with one-year guarantee.

Within that year the frames of the furniture began to come apart.

During the first week of October 1973, I phoned the store and a repairman was sent out. After looking over the furniture, the repairman told me I had been sold a "lemon" and that he was unable to fix the furniture.

He advised me to demand another set from the store.

Taking his advice, I returned to the store. The salesman who had sold me the set told me to pick out a comparable set. I didn't do so at the time because I was not feeling well but left the store confident that I would be able to get a new set.

Two days later the store manager called me to ask if I would allow the company to pick up the set. He said that if the furniture could not be repaired the company would replace it. I agreed to let the firm pick up the furniture.

The following day the manager told me that the furniture could not be repaired at the store but could be sent back to the factory, where the frame could be fixed.

When I asked if the upholstery could be repaired, I was told that the guarantee covered only the structure and not the upholstery.

Although the manager agreed that repairing the frame would damage the upholstery, he would not agree to repair it.

He told me that it was unfortunate that I had purchased a defective set. He explained that it would cost me $100 to get the furniture reupholstered.

I am of the opinion that in guaranteeing the structure of the furniture, the retailer would be responsible for all damage to the upholstery while the guaranteed frame of that furniture was being repaired. —E.A., Pomona.

The store manager's version of the situation differed from yours.

He said there was no written guarantee on the furniture but it was the store policy to repair structural failure within a year's time purchase.

We looked at your contact and could find no guarantee.

The manager said the firm could and would repair structural damage to the sofa without damage to the upholstery.

He asked us to look at the sofa, which was still in the firm's local warehouse. We saw that, in addition to the structural damage, the upholstery showed wear that might be expected in a household where there are two children, as yours is.

We think you are squeezing the alleged "lemon" a little too hard.

The manager said he had questioned the repairman regarding remarks in your house. The repairman, he said, denied advising you to demand a new set.

You told us the love seat also was coming apart. The manager said it would be repaired structurally, just as the sofa would be.

We advised you to accept his offer. You thanked us but didn't commit yourself.

In 1972 a door-to-door salesman sold me a magazine subscription. He told me he was earning money to help him through college.

He required $8 right then and there. An additional $6 was to be mailed to Publix Circulation Service, Inc. I paid him $8 and sent the check. I still have not received my magazine.—J.L., Pomona.

We wrote to Publix and you received your subscription to True, one year and four months after you ordered it.

Hearing slated for suspect in store slayings

POMONA — A preliminary hearing for Tommy Langston, 21-year-old Pomonan charged with robbing a service station and a suspect in the slaying Oct. 11 of two men during a liquor store holdup, has been scheduled for Jan. 16 in Pomona Municipal Court.

Langston was arraigned on a charge of robbing the service station in October and has never formally been charged in connection with the robbery-slayings at Plaza Liquors, 1785 N. Garey Ave.

Meanwhile, Curtis Lee Williams, 29-year-old Pomonan who was charged with involvement in the liquor store holdup, is awaiting arraignment in Pomona Superior Court. He originally was to be arraigned in early December but failed to appear due to illness. He reportedly remains ill in the jail ward of County-USC Medical Center.

Langston was returned from Arkansas last month by Pomona police after being arrested there on the strength of a warrant issued linking him to the service station robbery. Police have yet to request a complaint from the district attorney's office here linking him to the Plaza Liquors incident.

Williams, Langston and a third man were named as suspects in the slaying of liquor store owner Merle M. Paup, 63, and clerk Herbert Yount, 62. Both men were found dead on the store floor that Sunday afternoon. Each had been shot in the head.

Investigators have not located Donald Richard Hall, 25, the third man named in connection with the slayings.

Bicentennial group will hold session

POMONA — The next meeting of the Pomona Bicentennial Committee will be held Jan. 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the Pomona Public Library conference room.

Paul Leos of Claremont, a retired lieutenant colonel and a member of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission of California, will be the guest speaker.

Yoga instruction to begin at YMCA

POMONA — A course in kundalini yoga will be offered by the Pomona Valley YMCA starting Monday.

The course will run for five weeks on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 8 p.m. Fee for the course will be $5 for YMCA members and $10 for nonmembers.

For further information, persons may call the YMCA at 623-6433.

Pedestrian hurt crossing street

POMONA — A pedestrian was injured slightly Monday evening when he was hit by a car on San Antonio Avenue north of Mission Boulevard.

Russell Camp, 29, 3035 Vamana St., said he was crossing San Antonio in a crosswalk when he was hit by a car turning left. Camp was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. The motorist was Jerome J. Rogers, 32, 3816 E. Mission Blvd.

Council will study taking itself out of renewal work

POMONA — A committee of city officials and civic leaders will be formed to look into the possibility of reorganizing the Pomona Redevelopment Agency under a different governing board.

Formation of the committee was unanimously approved by the City Council at the recommendation of Mayor Ray J. Lepire, who wants the group to find out if there are major advantages to having a redevelopment agency headed by someone other than a city's council.

The policy-makers of the Pomona agency are the five members of the council.

Lepire has said that it appears the most successful redevelopment programs are those in cities where the agency is separate from the council.

In his written recommendation to the council, Lepire said he would like to see the redevelopment program run as a business venture removed from "any unnecessary political involvement by the community."

Councilman Charles W. Bader said he thinks he supports the idea of a separate agency, but that the committee would need more than the 30 days suggested by the mayor for an adequate study.

Bader asked that the committee fully explore redevelopment programs in other cities and not go about its task "with the idea of ratifying a preconceived idea."

Lepire recommended that the committee study redevelopment programs in Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Corona, Long Beach and Pasadena.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce said he thought the study could be completed within 60 days for a report to the council.

As recommended by the mayor, the committee would include Lepire, Councilman Adrian T. Wright, the chairman and a second member of the Chamber of Commerce redevelopment committee, the chairman and a second member of the Redevelopment Commission, and the president of the Central Business District.

Gonce and David Ormston, executive vice president of the chamber, will assist the committee.

Fifth Democrat in primary

Claremonter enters 35th District contest

CLAREMONT — Robert Stafford, a Claremont school board member and 1973 president of the California School Boards Association, has declared his intention to seek the Democratic nomination in the 35th Congressional District in June's primary elections.

Stafford, an attorney here, is the fifth person to enter the race for the Democratic nomination. The other contenders are West Covina Mayor Jim Lloyd; former Congressman George Kasem; Pomona salesman Carl Smith; and Covina school administrator Frank Cooper.

Stafford said he is running for the office for "a combination of reasons."

"This is the first time in a long time that a Democratic candidate has a good chance to be successful in the district," he said. "Registration in the district favors the Democrats, and there are fewer issues to divide them. There are more issues that will bring them together."

Another reason, Stafford continued, is "the need for people to run for office who really care about people at the local level and who can explain how issues and legislation will affect them."

Stafford, 55, feels his experience with the state school boards association qualifies him to work in the legislative arena, and fulfill the need to bring government back to the people. He served as president of the association in 1973, and, prior to that, was the association's Los Angeles County director for three years. He has been a member of the Claremont school board for 15 years.

The main issues in the campaign, he says, will be "people issues." He said people will want to know how such things as the energy crisis and inflation are going to affect them, and what can be done about these problems.

Stafford said he supports full disclosure of campaign finances. "I think any candidate should be happy to disclose any source of campaign finances," he said.

Stafford has lived in Claremont since 1957 when he opened his law office there. He has been active in civic affairs, and is one of the founders of the Pomona Valley Pastoral Counseling Service.

Shoplifting said not only cause of store losses

POMONA — A retail firm's inventory shrinkage is not entirely attributable to shoplifting, a security officer for a major department store chain told members of the Rotary Club on Tuesday in the Elks Lodge.

Dick Jeans, who directs security for the eight Buffums' stores, said that inventory losses can be reduced by internal prevention as well as apprehension.

He said that losses often arise from a firm's own corporate weaknesses. For instance, he said, there are untold losses as a result of merchandise being discarded accidentally, through short shipments, and inaccurate paperwork.

A pricing error of as little as 50 cents can have a tremendous effect on the sales volume alone, he said. Jeans stated that a positive training program for employes to emphasize control, supervision and prevention is essential to reducing inventory shrinkage.

He said that sales people are taught that they have a responsibility to remove the temptation of shoplifting. He said it is important to prevent people from making a mistake that they may regret for the rest of their lives.

Jeans said that stores must have a strong program of enforcement of the shoplifting laws in order to lend credibility to their program of security. He described electronic devices now in use by some department stores that are 100 per cent effective in the detection of shoplifting.

Drive-in dairy, liquor store proposed at gas station site

POMONA — A proposal to convert a service station to a drive-in dairy and liquor store will be considered tonight by the Pomona Planning Commission.

Shawky W. Mikhail is seeking a conditional use permit for property at 1312 W. Mission Blvd.

The commission meeting starts at 7:30 p.m. in the Pomona City Council chambers.

Other agenda items include:

— A public hearing on a request by Tommy R. Johnson for a conditional use permit to allow a mortuary at 1292 W. Mission Blvd. The property is zoned for highway commercial use.

— A public hearing on a request by the Rev. Dana Pankey for Pomona Valley Christian Schools, Inc. to allow school use of a residential building at 2481 Merrywood St.

— A public hearing on a proposal to rename Roselawn Avenue to Humane Way between Mission and Valley boulevards. The area is near the Pomona Valley Humane Sociey offices.

— A public hearing for exemption of an environmental impact report regarding the widening, realignment and improvements for a portion of W. Valley Boulevard between Pomona Boulevard in Pomona and Grand Avenue in Walnut — a 1.5 mile distance.

Recreation

The Pomona Park and Recreation Departments' youth basketball received a setback last Saturday. It came in the form of rain. It seems like in sunny Southern California when the wet stuff falls people stay home if at all possible.

Attendance at the six local junior high schools where the leagues are being organized was about half the expected. Even with the practice set for indoors, the kids, or maybe it was the parents, stayed away.

Rain or shine teams will be chosen this Saturday. Boys in the fourth through eighth grade should attend at 11 a.m., while girls show up at 1 p.m. aPrticipants go to the junior high closest to their residence.

Adult action tonight

Adult civic basektball leagues open play tonight. Two games are scheduled for the gyms at Garey High, Palomares, Simons and Marshall Junior Highs. Thursday evening the same four locations along with Emerson and Fremont Junior Highs feature a pair of games. Action gets underway at 7 p.m. each night.

All 32 regulation teams will hit the court in the two nights along with four slo break and five women's squds. The 16 half court teams start this evening at Lorbeer Junior High and Emerson.

Picking the winner of these leagues contains many variables. The most important is consistency. The teams that have their top players in attendance at all games will win. The squads with the best personnel on the roster doesn't always win.

Illness and injuries take their toll, but in civic league action there are added reasons for absence. Family commitments, working, studies and other asorted problems plague the civic league coach.

This reporter is listing the teams by league with the top choice first. A few teams will be offended, but the majority will probably be relieved if they are picked down the line.

Palace pick in American

The regulation teams have been divided into five groups. The American League includes: African Palace, Espiaus, Jimmy's Soul Shop, Pomolians, Albert & Clark and Northside Teen Post.

In the National League we have Hole-in-the-Wall Gang, Claremont Club, Pizza Corral, Royal Coach, Commander Motors and Claremont Gospel. The Coast League includes Straw Hat Pizza Palace, Pac "8", Trinity Methodist, XDS, Bethel Baptist, and Pomona First Baptist.

The Pacific group features Arnold Realty, Cedargrove, Oasis, Diamond Bar Quicksteppers, Convenient Food Mart and LARC. International League teams are Gemmel Pharmacy, Salmonds "7", Local 223; Brockway Glass, FMC-Wayne, Kelsey-Hayes; E.O.S., and UPS.

The women's teams make up the Rainbow League. There is some fine talent here beginning with the top choice Royals, Mighty Shooters and Company, Pomona First Baptist Blues, Pomona First Baptist Golds, and Northside Teen Post.

The four slo break teams are Perkin-Elmer Tigers, Lou's Dunkers, Pomona First Baptist Duetts and Astecs. This is a great league that plays all their games at Simons Junior High on Tuesday and some Thursday evenings.

Spectators are always welcome at any game. If you are interested in where the top ball is played, follow the American and National Leagues. They play games on Monday, Wednesday and Thursdays at Garey and Simons.

RECREATION NOTES: The second session of Dryland Ski classes began last Monday evening in the Ganesha Park Community Building. Late sign-ups will be taken this coming Monday at 6:30 p.m. Instruction begins at 7 p.m. at a cost of three dollars for the total program. —The Pomona Baseball Commission meets next Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall Boards and Commissions Room. It is a very important session for anyone interested in local baseball. —Yoga classes start tonight at Ganehsa Park Community Center at 7:30 p.m. There is a $10 fee for a 10-week program.

Wrestlers open busy SAL slate

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

The San Antonio League wrestling season is slated to begin Thursday, and it looks like a no-holds-barred battle between the six contending teams.

Defending champion Upland is again favored to repeat, but the Highlanders should run into stiff competition before the league season ends.

Claremont and Chino have both assembled some impressive individual performers, Gary is much improved over last season's 2-12 mark, while Ganesha and Montclair may lack depth but have some potentially tough wrestlers.

Upland coach George Beresford was delighted with a turnout of 150 student grapplers, and the Highlanders are hoping for a CIF title this season.

Among the many talented wrestlers for Upland are brothers Jack and Bill Glasheen in the lightweight divisions and football stars Corey Chapman and Ricardo Hermocillo in the heavier weights.

Claremont finished with a 5-1 league mark last season and coach Jim Broncatello has several key members back from last year's squad.

Mike O'Connor, a two-time SAL champion, returns for his senior year as a 178-pounder. O'Connor was undefeated in dual-meet competition last year and should place high in CIF again this season.

Gary Bronner, wrestling at 115 pounds, is also a defending SAL champ and was undefeated in 1973's dual meets. Bronner had an overall 24-2-2 record last season.

Robin Chew also figures to have a fine season this year. Chew was 18-4 overall last year and has excellent moves for a 157-pounder. Claremont has a young squad but the Wolfpack will be shooting to dethrone Upland.

Chino also has some potent performers headlined by 145-pounder Mark Roberts. Roberts was a CIF finalist last year and has yet to allow a point to be scored on him this year.

Roberts was named MVP in the recently-completed Northview Tourney.

The Cowboys also have a outstanding wrestler in Larry Imbach and hope to avoid last season's rash of injuries and challenge Upland and Claremont for the SAL top spot.

Garey High coach John Marti looks for a very experienced Viking squad to be much tougher than last year. The Vikings look especially strong in the lighter weights.

Ganesha has had a rough pre-season but the competition the Giants have been playing has also been mighty impressive. Coach Gerald Pitts of the Giants figures his squad will be ready for the league season.

Biggest bright note for coach Pitts so far has been the efforts of Charles Stewart, who is undefeated so far this year in the 175-pound class. Stewart has shown remarkable improvement according to Pitts and should place high in the loop and CIF finals.

Montclair has a young and inexperienced team but do have the defending SAL heavyweight champ in John Surby. Surby recently won first place honors in the Northview Tourney and figures to give the Cavaliers a very consistent point-winner.

Bush honored by U.S.T.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The U. S. Track Association has named Jim Bush of UCLA, Fred Dwyer of Manhattan College and Bill Dellinger of the University of Oregon as its Coaches of the Year.

The association made the announcement at the NCAA 68th annual meeting here.

Bush led UCLA to the national championship in outdoor track last year. Dwyer was named indoor track coach of the year, and Dellinger coached his team to the crosscountry championships this season.

Track association officials also named district coaches of the year:

Young agrees he deserves honor

HOUSTON (UPI) — Charley Young's belief in himself has been vindicated.

Young, the brash tight end of the Philadelphia Eagles, Wednesday was named the 1973 United Press International National Football Conference rookie of the year—an honor he's the first to admit he deserved.

He practically campaigned for the award. When he was asked about his chances during the season, he said, "sure I deserve it, was there any question?"

Young received 20 votes from a nationwide panel of 39 sportswriters across the nation —three from each conference city. He easily beat out Chuck Foreman, the Minnesota Vikings' running back who received 10 votes.

Lawrence McCutcheon, the Los Angeles Rams' running back, and Wally Chambers, the Chicago Bears' defensive lineman, each received four votes.

McCutcheon was with the Los Angeles team last year but he was officially listed as a rookie this season because he didn't see enough action in 1972 to get veteran qualification.

Young was the sixth player selected in last season's draft but it had to be a blow to his ego that he was the second player picked by Philadelphia. The Eagles' first choice was offensive lineman Jerry Sizemore before they grabbed Young, who'd been a standout at the Southern California in his collegiate days.

Young backed up his talk off the field by catching 55 passes for 854 yards and six touchdowns including an 80-yard bomb.

That made him the third leading pass receiver in the NFC and he combined with Hal Carmichael, who was the leader in the conference with 67 receptions, to give quarterback Roman Gabriel two excellent receivers.

Young never doubted his ability. "I'm without a doubt the greatest athlete who has ever played in Philadelphia," he insists.

The fact that Wilt Chamberlain played in Philadelphia doesn't faze him in the least.

"Wilt claimed but he never actually did anything but play basketball and run track. But I have taken part in other sports and I've proven how how great I can be."

He adds, "do you realize in high school I played five sports? That's right, five. Baseball, football, basketball, track and tennis. I was the first person in my school's history to be an All-American in two sports.

"I never picked up a basektball until my sophomore year in high school. That first year I was on the freshman team because I didn't know anything about the game. By the time I was a senior, I was high school All-American. It takes a great athlete to do something like that."

BLAZING BECK — Canadian Gary Beck hopes to avenge a recent setback at Ontario's Supernationals when arch-rival Don Garlits stole the show. Beck, current NHRA National Top Fuel Champ, has added a new Keith Black aluminum engine to his already potent arsenal for Irwindale's Grand Premiere set for Saturday and Sunday.

Grand Premiere will try again

IRWINDALE — California's worst winter storm in 25 years forced postponement of the Third Annual Grand Premiere drag races. With the Crager five-second Club heading the strongest field of entries ever, Irwindale Raceway has now re-scheduled the event for next Saturday. Says Steve Evans, "It's a damn shame that we had to postpone this, but we'll go next Saturday and Saturday night, and I have a feeling the spectator is going to end up the real winner. They are going to witness the world's biggest one day drag race—I guess you could call it "Super Bowl Saturday" since everybody will be qualifying and competing in one day.

From all indications the rescheduled version of the Grand Premiere will be bigger and better than before. Many new cars that were not completed for the original dates will be ready for this week-end. Don "the Snake" Prudhomme, Tom "the Mongoose" McEwen, "T.V. Tommy" Ivo, and Billy Meyer hope to showcase their new mounts.

Veteran rocket car driver, John Paxson, of Arcadia, is optimistic that the delay will allow additional refinement that can boost his "Revell Rocket" past the 350 mph mark. Paxson has sprinted down the quarter-mile in his 950-pound lightweight, hydrogen peroxide powered vehicle at 326 mph, a record for Exhibition vehicles.

The new schedule of events differs drastically from the original format, in that two days activities will be condensed into a single day. Gates will open at 8 a.m. with qualifying all day until 5 p.m. First round of eliminations is now scheduled for 6 p.m. Saturday evening.

With the additional hour of daylight, due to the recent time change, combined with the long-range forcast of "unseasonably warm" temperatures, spectators are expected to enjoy the new format.

There will be no increase in admission prices. Spectator tickets will be $5 for adults, children under eight free, while kids 8-12 will be admitted for $2.

Western 500 has Indy look

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — NASCAR's 1974 inaugural—the $103,000 Winston Western 500 here Jan. 20—is taking on the look of an Indianapolis 500.

Gary Bettenhausen, Jerry Grant and Dick Simon, familiar names to U.S. Auto Club championship car racing fans, have entered the 13th annual stock car race.

Bettenhausen's first stock car race at Riverside International Raceway will be in the American Motors Matador.

Winternationals opens up NHRA's eight-race schedule

NORTH HOLLYWOOD — Beginning with its 14th annual Winternationals next month, the National Hot Rod Association will again sanction and produce an eight-race scedule of National drag races in its 1974 season, according to NHRA president Wally Parks.

"As a member of ACCUS and the National Motorsports Committee we are supporting efforts to conserve fuels in the current energy crisis by practical trimming in our operations," Parks said.

"But we are accomplishing this without deleting important events that have been on the annual NHRA calendar for years," he added, pointing out that there has been apprehension in some quarters and even an erroneous report that one of the eight major meets had not been rescheduled for '74.

Parks said that, while the number of National meets remains the same as in previous years, an appreciable percentage of the energy normally expended can be saved by reducing the actual running time.

"In reality, drag racing uses very little in energy-producing fuels," Parks pointed out, "and the amount of gasoline used by fans attending our events is no more wasteful than similar amounts required for pleasure trips to the ball game, ski resort or other forms of normal leisure time activities."

The Winternationals, slated for February 1-2-3 at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds has been trimmed from four to three days, with similar cutbacks planned for the Gatornational in March and at other National meets which follow.

Traditionally the lid-lifter for NHRAs annual schedule, the Winternationals has become one of Southern California's biggest sports attractions. A purse of more than $225,000 has already been posted for the 1974 renewal, with capacity entries anticipated from the sport's top stars, including defending champion Don Garlits who was among the first to file an application this year.

Winternationals championships will again be available in the seven Eliminator categories continued from 1973, plus NHRA's new Pro-Comp bracket which was added this year.

Tickets for the Winternationals are on sale now at all Ticketron outlets in Southern California, plus Liberty Ticket Agencies and Wallich's Music City Stores.

Allison shooting for two victories

RIVERSIDE — Bobby Allison, America's driver of the Year in 1972, will drive a new car in an old race and an old car in a new race January 19 and 20 at Riverside International Raceway.

The 36-year-old veteran stock car driver from Hueytown, Ala., is bringing two cars with him to Riverside as he tries to become the first man to win both the Permatex 200 and Winston Western 500.

Allison, who enjoys the best overall finishing record of any active stock car driver at Riverside, will try a brand new 1974 Chevrolet in the $103,000 Winston Western 500 on January 20.

The day before that, however, he will challenge 30 of the West Coast's top sportsman drivers with a 1966 Chevelle in the Permatex 200.

Although the Permatex race is now eight years old, it's a brand new event for Allison. This is the first year that the Permatex race has been open to national sportsman drivers.

"Permatex racing is my fun kind of racing," Allison says, "and the most competitive there is, without a doubt."

Allison has only raced the 1966 Chevelle four times, winning twice and finishing fourth once. However, those races were on short oval tracks and he'll have a number of adjustments to make on the car for Riverside's road course.

Qualifying for the $20,000 Permatex will be held this Sunday and race time January 19 is 1 p.m.

Allison will be among 60 other drivers next week trying to qualify for the Winston Western 500, as well. There, he will be up against drivers like Richard Petty, David Pearson and Cale Yarborough in the more familiar Grand National cars.

Allison has never won the January race at Riverside, but has been runner-up the last three years in a row. He won the Tuborg 400 last June, his second victory in that race.

The Winston Western 500 will start January 20 at 11 a.m.

Trojans name publicity man

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jim Perry, a member of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner sports staff the past six years, has been named sports information director at University of Southern California, USC athletic director John McKay announced Tuesday night.

Perry, a 1964 USC graduate, is a former United Press International newsman here.

CMC 1974 debut

Motorbikes visit Irwindale

IRWINDALE — Many of Southern California's finest motorcycle riders will converge on Irwindale Raceway this Friday night for the debut of the 1974 CMC night-time sanctioned motocross program on the challenging ⅝ths mile dirt track.

Since this will be the very first points paying night affair for the season, an extra large turnout of Juniors, Intermediates and Experts is ecpected with each being promised a full set of three motos per each class.

In addition to the top-notch racing program over the nine-turn and four-jump course, Irwindale Raceway will also be unveiling to the public a bunch of new permanent facilities designed for both racer and spectator convienience, including the new restroom facilities.

The entire program gets underway immediately at 7:30 with the running of the CMC's 16-and-under set on the fast little Minicycles. Grandstand seating provides 100-percent viewing of the entire track and your $3 adult admission ($1 children 8-12) includes free parking and admission to the pit area.

Irwindale Raceway is located just one mile east of the 605 Freeway to the south of the 210 Freeway. For additional information, phone 334-4949.

Laguna Seca halts Can-Am race scheduled for October

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — The Laguna Seca 1974 Can-Am sports car race scheduled for next October 12-13 was called off Tuesday.

The Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula, whicch sponsors the Laguna Seca events, said it was asking the Sports Car Club of America to take the race off its calendar.

In place of the Canadian-American Challenge Cup on the October date, the local sponsors want to move their Formula 5,000 race, now scheduled for May 4-5, to the fall weekend.

Bub Hugill, general manager of Laguna Seca, said the Can-Am is being cancelled because a sponsor was lost and because of uncertainties about whether Porsche would participate.

Hugill said top drivers would be on hand for the Formula 5,000 event and that another race was being planned for the spring.

HAPPY CHINESE NEW YEAR

Chinese Beef and Beans is a perfect dish to make for celebration of the Chinese New Year Jan. 25. Also a good party dish is Oriental Barbecued Spareribs, pictured at top. For the first dish, slice 1 pound round steak diagonally into thin strips.Combine with contents of 1 envelope brown gravy mix, 1 tablespoon soy sauce, ½ teaspoon sugar and ⅛ teaspoon ground ginger. Heat 1 tablespoon oil in large skillet. Add 1 package frozen French-style green beans, thawed. Cook and stir 5 minutes then remove beans. Heat another 2 tablespoons of oil in same skillet. Add steak and cook 3 to 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add cooked beans and 1-3rd cup water. Cook and stir until sauce thickens. For the spareribs, place 3 pounds ribs on broiler pan. Combine contents of an envelope of au jus gravy mix, ¼ teaspoon minced garlic. Brush over both sides of ribs. Let stand an hour at room temperature, then roast at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Increase oven to 450 degrees and roast another 15 minutes. Serve with plum sauce made by boiling together in small pan ½ cup plum preserves, 1 tablespoon soy sauce and 1 tablespoon vinegar.

Try cottage cheese to stretch protein

A stop at the supermarket meat counter has come to mean a painful lunge at the pocketbook. The same stop-for that all-important animal protein sometimes also means breaking the daily budget of calories for the weight-conscious. These dual dilemmas have prompted many people to turn to cottage cheese for high-quality protein without spooning up the calories.

Just one-half cup of cottage cheese fills more than 25 per cent of an adult's daily requirement of protein. That same half-cup contains just about the same amount of protein as two eggs or a medium, two-ounce serving of fish, poultry or lean meat.

The protein of cottage cheese is considered "high quality" in that it contains all of the essentials necessary to build and maintain the human body. Conversely, many vegetable proteins are incomplete, which means that they don't do a fully adequate job of tissue maintenance. Yet even those proteins can be used better by the body with the addition of a source of complete protein, such as cottage cheese.

While the protein of cottage cheese is high, its calorie content is less than half that of a comparable serving of many kinds of meat. The uncreamed variety of cottage cheese, with its generous 19 grams of protein (daily requirement for an adult woman; 55 grams), has a stingy 98 calories per serving. Even creamed cottage cheese, containing four per cent fat has only another 22 calories per serving.

One of the most ancient of foods, cottage cheese has a versatility unmatched by many other sources of protein. It fits in easily with the traditional fruit salads, but also adapts to meat dishes and casseroles. Have you ever considered topping pancakes with cottage cheese and jelly? Or adding it to lunchtime sandwiches? Such tangy varieties as cottage cheese with chives make excellent additions to vegetable dishes. Even baked potatoes become more exciting when eaten with cottage cheese.

So adaptable is cottage cheese that it can be used either to give variety to the milk portions of the diet or as a meat substitute. Officially, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, cottage cheese is classed as part of the milk group in the four food group classification (meat, milk, vegetables and fruits, breads and cereals). But it is so high in protein that cottage cheese can actually be used in place of meat or fish in a meal, allowing it to fit easily into the meat group.

Time was that the Pennsylvania Dutch made their cottage cheese by letting three quarts of skimmed milk stand in a warm (not hot) place for three days. When the solids began to separate from the liquid, boiling water was added and cooled. The whey floated to the top while the curd sank to the bottom. A little salt for seasoning helped force out the rest of the whey. A touch of cream was used to moisten the curd if it was too dry.

Today, the same basic process is followed in the commercial production of cottage cheese, although of course on a much larger and more scientific scale. The main difference now is that producers add lactic acid to get the process started sooner.

SERVE SUMMER ALL WINTER

Longing for the fresh fruits of summer? The papaya is available through the dark, dreary days of winter. Try them in this shortcake. Peel and slice 1 banana and 1 avocado, toss with lemon juice and refrigerate. Peel, seed and halve 1 papaya. Press 1 half through sieve and set aside. Slice and cool other half. Beat 4 egg yolks until thick and set aside. In pan, combine 1-3rd cup water, 1 cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar. Cook without stirring to softball stage, then pour syrup very slowly into egg yolks. Beat constantly 8 to 10 minutes until mixture is cool and thick. Beat in 1½ cups butter in 4 additions, then fold in sieved papaya. Chill 30 minutes. Heat oven to 450 degrees. Combine 2 and 1-3rd cups biscuit mix, 3 tablespoons sugar, 3 tablespoons melted butter and ½ cup milk to form a soft dough. Knead 8 times on floured surface. Pat out on a cookie sheet into a 10-inch oval, building up edge to make a small rim. Bake 15 minutes until golden. Cool slightly. To serve, spread butter cream mixture on shortcake. Arrange papaya, avocado and banana slices, 2 cups thawed strawberries and 1 cup pineapple chunks on top.

Sensible diet plan gives needed energy

DEAR SELMA:

I am bored . . . unhappy . . . and fat. I pretend that it doesn't bother me, but my husband is disgusted with the way I look. With four kids to take care of I need all the fattening snacks for energy to keep me going. Right? — Mrs. V. F.

Dear Mrs. V. F.:

Wrong. For real energy you should follow a sensible plan that provides you with all the nutrients needed for good health. If you feel you need fattening snacks then you will have to take all that comes with it. Do you really need tired feet? A spare tire around your middle? Damaged ego? A black coat to hide it all? Shapeless tents? I'm sure you would rather feel totally alive with a zest for life. Lose your fat and learn what self-accomplishment can do for your ego.

DEAR SELMA:

Help. I must lose 25 pounds fast in order to be a bridesmaid at my best friend's wedding. All the other members of the bridal procession are thin. I will feel ridiculous. Any suggestions? — Miss L. E.

Dear Miss L. E.:

What do you plan to do when the wedding is over . . . put it on fast? For quick weight loss I once went on a diet that had me eating bananas three times a day. I didn't lose much weight, but I could have climbed any tree in Southern California. I suggest that you learn a sensible eating plan, whereby you can lose weight and stay slim, Start taking it off immediately and I'm sure you'll look and feel better for your friend's wedding.

Actor becomes cook in his own defense

Each year more men take to the kitchen in what often started as a measure of self-defense. For example, actor-producer Darren McGavin said, "I hate to cook but I do it well. I love fine food so I find myself drawn to that stove."

McGavin explained with a wry smile, "My first wife ruined anything she tried so I learned to cook. Actually, any idiot can turn out something eidble from a good cookbook. It's the ones who add their own touches and come up with a seductive dish who are the real chefs."

An early brush for him with cooking was in college. McGavin claimed he knew nothing about food but took a cook's job in a girl's school.

"I lasted two indigestible weeks. Too many girls and not enough short order skills. I made stews and meat loaves that must have been awful."

While acting in various cities, he said, he introduces himself to the hotel chef where he is staying and asks about his specialties. McGavin said he picks up cooking tips and also gets the best food in the house this way.

The present Mrs. McGavin, actress Kathie Brown, also is a gourmet diner. A fond memory she recalled was an auto trip in France where the couple stopped at six five-star restaurants. "It took us five days and 15 pounds to get from Nice to Paris," she said.

At home the McGavins take turns preparing dinner. He prefers it when Kathie cooks and he says he sits back, "with some Famous Grouse scotch on the rocks and acts as if there is no such thing as women's lib."

When he cooks McGavin prepares a favorite recipe such as minted lamb chops. Like most men he cooks by eye, not measurement, he said: "You mash a garlic clove and saute it in a knob of butter. Chop up some fresh mint or use a tablespoon of dried mint. Sear the raw chops in a skillet very quickly in the butter and garlic, remove and dredge them in the mint until coated and broil 1½ or 2-inch chops at high heat, 5 to 6 minutes a side for rare; 10 to 12 for medium well.

McGavin's pet peeve in the United States is restaurants that will not take reservations.

"They want to shove you like cattle into the bar so they can make some more money out of you. I don't know why people take such treatment."

46,000 blame crisis for losing jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department's Manpower Administration said Friday that for the week ended Dec. 22, nearly 46,000 persons drawing unemployment compensation or filing claims for unemployment pay said they lost their jobs because of the energy crisis.

The number of persons filing initial claims for benefits during that week increased 83,300 to a total of 423,700, the Manpower Administration said. Many of these were automobile workers, clothing workers and construction and other outdoor workers.

Try mixed nuts for the perfect wintertime snack

Question. Which foods from the West Coast, the South, the Southwest, and Brazil get together to form a flavorful wintertime quintet? Answer—mixed nuts!

Almonds, filberts, and walnuts from the West Coast, pecans from the South and Southwest, and Brazil nuts from Brazil make up the handy packages you'll find in your markets. The United States Department of Agriculture says that mixed nuts of good quality should have clean, unbroken shells. Avoid nuts with oil-stained or moldy shells; these are signs that the kernels may be rancid or decayed.

Several companies that package mixed nuts in the-shell use USDA's continous inspection service to assure the quality of the nuts they package for consumers. This means that the nuts are carefully checked for quality and size. You can find the USDA shield with the grade—U.S. Extra Fancy or U.S. Fancy—on package of mixed nuts of the highest quality. These grades must have at least 10 per cent and not more than 40 per cent of each kind of nut in the mixture.

You may also find mixed nuts labeled U.S. Select or U.S. Commercial. The quality requirements for these nuts are not as strict as for those in the higher grades. The nuts may be smaller and the mixture may contain as little as 5 per cent of any one kind of nut. Packages of these nuts may be labeled USDA-inspected but do not carry any grade shields. The grade shield is your assurance of high quality.

It takes only a little imagination and a sprinkle of nuts to make gourmet fare of plain food. Nuts are nutritious and go well in most any company. Serve sour cream with nuts on meat or baked potatoes. Add nuts to meat, poultry, or seafood salads, or put nut slivers in a tossed vegetable salad. And be sure to keep a supply on hand for those happy times when the baking bug hits!

SWEETS GO TO SCHOOL

Sweet potatoes will be on school lunch menus this winter. The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service has purchased canned sweet potatoes and instant sweet potato flakes for distribution to child nutrition programs.

Golden sweet potatoes excel as a source of vitamin A, one of the nutrients needed for a balanced diet. Let the entire family enjoy this nutritious, delicious vegetable often. Choose fresh sweet potatoes, canned sweet potatoes, and instant sweet potato flakes for interesting menu variety.

Sweet potato-date balls are tasty party - time hors d'oeuvres.

SWEET POTATO-DATE BALLS

- 1½ cups mashed cooked sweet potatoes
- 1 beaten egg
- ½ cup finely chopped dates
- 2 tablespoons butter
- Pinch of cinnamon
- Salt to taste
- Finely chopped nutmeats, as needed

Combine all ingredients except nutmeats and chill. Shape into tiny balls and roll in finely chopped nutmeats. Bake on buttered baking sheet at 375 degrees for 10 to 15 minutes, or until nipped with brown. Serve hot or cool, using toothpicks for easy serving.

Glazed sweet potatoes are easily prepared — company perfect.

GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

- 2 cups canned sweet potatoes in syrup
- 2 tablespoons fat (Margarine or butter)
- cup white or brown sugar
- Water, if needed

Drain syrup from sweet potatoes into a frypan. Add fat and sugar, and mix over low heat.

Cut or slice sweet potatoes in large pieces and put in fry pan. Cook over low heat, turning often, until syrup is very thick and covers the potatoes. Add a little water during cooking if needed to keep from sticking. Serves 4.

QUALITY CONTROL APPROVAL

Public comments have been invited on a U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) proposal that would provide for the approval and use of quality control systems voluntarily installed by meat and poultry processing plants. The deadline for submitting such comments is March 22, 1974.

These plant quality control systems would in turn be monitored by federal meat and poultry inspectors to augment their own observations and sampling of processed products in checking for wholesomeness and accurate labeling.

Dr. Francis J. Mulhern, Administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), emphasized that the proposal would not reduce the inspection of carcasses or processed products; rather, it would increase such inspections.

He explained that many meat and poultry processing plants now operate their own quality control systems. These plant systems and the results of plant testing on products can provide a means for plant inspectors to more effectively monitor plant operations and products to determine the wholesomeness and accuracy of labeling.

Dr. Mulhern also announced that Nancy Harvey Steorts, special assistant to the secretary for consumer affairs, has initiated plans to bring together consumer representatives at various points across the country so they can view first hand some of the plant quality control systems presently in existence, to see how such a system could be utilized by inspectors. "This is a new effort on our part, at the suggestion of Mrs. Steorts, to give consumers the background for commenting on proposals involving meat and poultry inspection," Dr. Mulhern said. Details of these plans will be announced later, he added.

To gain approval of its quality control system, an individual plant would have to demonstrate that the system was statistically sound, properly implemented, and carried out by trained personnel. The quality control procedures would have to cover the full range of operations carried out by the plant, and the results of all observations and analyses made available at all the federal inspectors at all times, according to Dr. Mulhern.

USDA would design a system for monitoring each plant's system, and would routinely check the results of the plant's analyses against their own. The approval of the plant system could be discontinued at any time by either the plant management or by USDA.

Copies of the full text of the proposal, published in the Nov. 8 Federal Register, are available from APHIS, Room 1653-South, USDA, Washington, D. C. 20250.

Comments on the proposal should be sent in duplicate by March 22, 1974, to the USDA Hearing Clerk, Washington, D. C. 20250. Anyone interested in presenting his comments orally should contact the Systems Development and Sanitation Staff, APHIS, USDA, Washington, D. C. 20250, to arrange for presenting his comments before the deadline. Written comments and transcrips of oral comments will be available for public review in the Hearing Clerk's office.

BUFFERED PREMIXES

The U.S. Departments of Agriculture (USDA) and Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) have announced joint action to prohibit use of premixed seasonings and curing agents in processed meat and poultry products.

This action, to be implemented by HEW's Food and Drug Administration (FDA) in an order published in the Federal Register, is intended to eliminate the possibility of nitrosamine formation in such premixes. It is based on recent tests which disclosed the presence of nitrosamines in three of twelve samples of chemically buffered premixes.

The FDA order will require manufacturers to package the curing agents and seasonings separately. Meat and poultry processors will be allowed to use currently available buffered premixes until replacement stocks can be provided but not later than Nov. 30, 1973. USDA, which has inspection authority over meat and poultry processing plants, will monitor the change to separately packaged products in federally inspected meat and poultry plants.

Premixed ingredients are presently used to make some luncheon meats, wieners, and other processed meat and poultry products. They include spices, such as pepper and paprika, and nitrite-nitrate curing agents. Some manufacturers have used a chemical "buffer" to prevent the ingredients from interacting before the premix is added to the processed products.

Nitrosamines apparently were formed when nitrite-nitrate in the curing mix combined with the amines in the seasoning. Levels of nitrosamines found ranged from 24 to 231 parts per billion. Nitrosamines are a family of chemicals, some of which have been shown to cause cancer in test animals.

Last July 17, FDA ordered manufactuers of unbuffered premixed to package the nitrite-nitrates and seasonings separately or with a chemical buffer. Data available at that time indicated that the chemical "buffering" used in some premixes prevented the formation of nitrosamines. More extensive testing under a variety of temperature and storage conditions known to exist in commercial operations revealed the possibility of nitrosamine formation, though the buffering agent did retard nitrosamine formation.

Nitrates and nitrites have been used for centuries in the curing and preservation of meat. They inhibit the development of botulinal toxin in semi-perishable products and benefically affect flavor, texture and color.

Prayers go out for some cool nights

Cold weather is usually the curse of the citrus industry. It can destroy an orange crop in one sweep, drastically reducing the availability of citrus. Almost everyone knows that. Then why are Florida's citrus growers imploring Mother Nature to send down a few nights of cold weather?

It all has to do with the color of Florida's oranges. It's a known fact that cool weather at night gives oranges their rich, golden color. In some countries, like Thailand, the weather is never cold enough to turn the oranges a deep orange and the Thais know the orange as a green-skinned fruit.

Florida has a nearly subtropical climate, so unless the weather turns cool for a few nights before picking, the ripe oranges can remain a pale orange on the outside, instead of developing their familiar rich tone.

Skin color has nothing to do with ripeness. Citrus does not ripen after it is picked, as many other fruits do. Florida oranges must meet all maturity standards set by the Florida Department of Citrus before being shipped to market.

But so far this season there has not been enough cool night weather yet to brighten the orange color. That is why citrus growers are hoping for a few nights of lower temperatures before the ripe oranges are picked.

However, if their prayers aren't answered, you may be seeing lighter-colored oranges at your market. But be assured, they are fully ripe, sweet and juicy and still one of your best food buys.

Honey prices not so sweet

Enjoy honey on hot biscuits? Use honey and lemon juice when your throat is sore or to sweeten your coffee?

Alas, honey, once a modest contender for part of our food dollars, is growing scarcer and jumping in price.

Two big causes are the growing number of health food enthusiasts and demand from the Japanese market.

Most nutritionists admit that honey is no better than sugar nutritionally. It does contain very small amounts of minerals and vitamins, plus enzymes and some pollen from the bees. For these reasons the health food people embrace honey as a valuable food.

According to Dr. Roger A. Morse, "The wholesale price of honey has tripled since 1971, from 15 cents a pound to 46 cents a pound.

The shortage of honey will intensify during the next few months and the price will go even higher. It's about 90 cents a pound in super markets today." (Morse is professor of entomology at Cornell University.)

"The price at health food stores is generally very much higher," and, he added, "the increased demand for honey around the world is definitely related to the general growth of the natural foods movement. Not just in the U.S. but everywhere.

California is the largest U.S. producer of honey. Then comes Florida, Minnesota and Texas. However, there are fewer flowering plants to attract bees with agricultural emphasis on large areas of corn, soybeans and cotton.

"The Japanese are the greatest purchasers of American honey. They head for California with pockets stuffed with money. This year California had a particularly good crop and the Japanese were delighted," reported Dr. Harry, A. Sullivan, economic analyst of the Department of Agriculture's honey program.

"Each year they buy more. They began seven or eight years ago when important restriction of honey exports were removed. They have gone from zero pounds to 40 million pounds a year," he said.

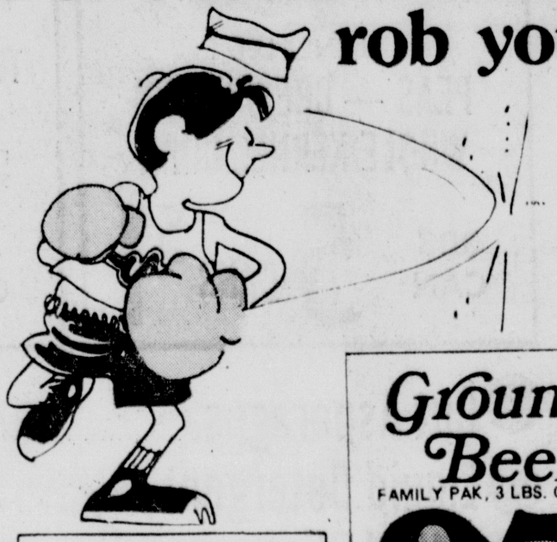

R. B. Willson & Co. are dealers in millions of pounds of honey and honey products. Anthony Willson comments: "The Japanese profited by the devaluation of our dollar. They looked about and saw that health food craze using honey instead of sugar was growing in popularity in the U.S. So since they had a lot of money to spend, they spent much of it on honey. In fact, they helped run up the price for honey considerably."

Honey products have other uses. Bees' wax is used industrially in candle making and in cosmetics. Royal jelly, a substance taken from young worker bees, is used in synthetic vitamins and cosmetics.

This party quiche won't break budget

For those who entertain, having a happy time not only depends on who's coming but on how much it costs. For those who attend, the food that's served can make or break a party.

You can set an immensely attractive table (or buffet)—and wow your guest—with specialty dishes made with canned tuna in vegetable oil that positively won't dent the old exchequer. One such dish is elegant Tuna - Mushroom - Tomato Quiche. The quiche is one of the current "in" party foods and the reason for its popularity with hosts and hostesses, in addition to its lusciousness, is that it is remarkably easy to make. Adding tuna to the filling makes it as nourishing and satisfying as a meat course since tuna has complete protein comparable to lean beef.

To make the quiche, you start with pastry for a nine-inch pie crust. It can be made from a mix or your own recipe, or it can even be a frozen pie crust. You bake the pastry shell, prepare it for the filling, then you arrange layers of mushroom slices, tuna and tomato slices in it. Next, you put together a quick cheese custard mixture, pour it over the ingredients in the pie shell, and bake 45 minutes at 325 degrees.

Serve the quiche with a tossed green salad, follow it with a fruited dessert—a wine-flavored compote is a good choice—and beverage—and you have the makings of a beautiful spread, one your guests will remember.

Another deliciously easy dish borrowed from the French is Tuna Broccoli Omelet. As basic as the omelet is, it's well known that the perfect omelet is the test of a great chef. The Tuna Broccoli Omelet is ready to eat in a short time, any time of the day. And for a late afternoon or evening "drop-in" visit, it adds substance (and variety) to the usual service of coffee or tea. As a matter of fact, a wedge of omelet is a popular cocktail-hour tidbit in Spain. It's an intriguing idea if you want to have something different.

TUNA MUSHROOM AND TOMATO QUICHE

Pastry for 1-crust 9-inch pie
4 eggs, divided
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
¼ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
1 large tomato, peeled and sliced
1¼ cups milk
1 cup (4 ounces) grated Swiss cheese
½ cup (2 ounces) grated Gruyere cheese
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon grated onion

Line a 9-inch quiche dish or pie plate with pastry, making sure that the side is 2 inches high. Prick holes in the bottom of shell with fork and line bottom with waxed paper. Spread a generous amount of uncooked rice over waxed paper and bake in 425 degrees F oven 5 minutes. Remove rice and waxed paper from shell and bake an additional 5 minutes. Cool, then brush with 1 slightly beaten egg white. Set aside.

In a skillet melt butter; add mushrooms and cook until tender, but still crisp. Layer mushrooms, tuna and tomato in pastry shell. Set aside. In a saucepan heat milk; add grated cheeses and stir until cheese is melted. Add salt, paprika and onion. Remove from heat and beat in remaining 3 eggs and egg yolk one at a time. Pour cheese mixture over tuna in pastry shell and bake in a 325 degree oven 45 minutes, until custard is set and tip of knife inserted in center comes out clean. Serves 6.

TUNA BROCCOLI OMELET

½ cup well-drained cooked chopped broccoli
2 tablespoons soft bread crumbs
3 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried leaf savory
⅛ teaspoon sugar
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
½ teaspoon lemon juice
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons chopped onion

In a large bowl mix together broccoli, bread crumbs, milk, salt, savory and sugar. Add tuna and lemon juice and stir until tuna is broken into fine flakes. Add eggs; mix well. Melt butter in large skillet; add onion and cook until tender. Pour in tuna mixture and cook without stirring over medium heat 3 to 5 minutes, or until set and brown on bottom. Place briefly under broiler to brown top. Cut into wedges to serve. Serves 4.

Choose the relishes and the meal's made

Meal planning is easy when it comes to choosing the main course. The tricky part is deciding on the accompaniments and doing the little touches that complement and show off your entree. And, then to juggle time, energy and budget to bring it all off.

Here are two tart and tangy relishes developed by the home economists for the California grape growers that satisfy all criteria. Crisp California grapes, tangy cranberries, nuts, oranges and raisins are all "in season." And these relishes can be made in 15 minutes and ahead of all the last-minute, pre-dinner rush.

Grape-Cranberry Relish capitalizes on the fact that fresh and dried California grapes have always been flavor companions — from the vine to the table. For this one, just combine all the ingredients in one pot, cook briefly and put it away in the refrigerator to forget until serving time.

Grape-Orange Cranberry Relish is just as easy; only no cooking is involved. All the ingredients are mixed in one bowl and then refrigerated until serving time.

California grape growers also remind us that a beautiful glass bowl or compote full of red, white and blue grapes and other fruits of the season makes a lovely centerpiece for holiday tables. After a hearty meal, it can do double duty and serve as a light and refreshing dessert, too.

GRAPE-ORANGE CRANBERRY RELISH

1 pound (4 cups) fresh cranberries
1 whole orange, quartered and seeded
½ cup sugar
3 cups grapes (about 1½ pounds)
1 package (2 ounces) chopped peaches or walnuts

Grind cranberries and orange through fine blade of food chopper or chop finely in blender. Pour mixture into a bowl, add sugar and let stand 10 minutes to allow juices to form. Toss grapes and nuts together with cranberry-orange mixture. Cover and chill until serving time. Serve as a relish with meat course. Makes about 6 cups.

GRAPE-CRANBERRY RELISH....

1 pound (4 cups) fresh cranberries
1 cup sugar
½ cup raisins
1 cup water
¼ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon ginger
2 cups (about 1 pound) grapes

In medium saucepan, combine all ingredients except grapes. Bring to a boil. Cook over medium heat, uncovered, 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in grapes; heat through. Cool. Serve chilled, to accompany meat course. Makes 4 cups.

Everybody delights in homemade cookies

Fresh, homemade cookies are one of life's most distinct pleasures. From the minute their rich, mellow aroma sweeps through the kitchen, till the time they come out of the oven ready to eat, they elicit such a feeling of expectation. And it's always a toss-up as to which is the most delicious moment — that first aromatic whiff from the oven or the first chewy mouthful.

Now that you're ready to experience this delightful feeling, here are a couple of cookie ideas that will turn a snack or dessert into something special — Orange Blond Brownies and Orange-Date Drops.

The Blond Brownies are bar-type cookies, rich and hearty and a favorite with children. Light brown sugar and concentrated orange juice combine into an unbeatable flavor — fresh, sweet and luscious. It's natural ingredients, like orange juice, that give homemade cookies such distinctive flavor.

Orange Date Drops are another favorite anytime. Dates, freshly squeezed orange juice and orange rind, nutmeg and almonds are some of the delicious things that go into making these delicacies. They bake in just minutes and are perfect to keep on hand for hungry youngsters or unexpected company.

ORANGE-DATE DROPS

1 ¼ cups cut pitted dates
1 ¼ cups orange juice
½ cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 ½ cups unsifted all purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup chopped blanched almonds

Combine sugar, dates, orange juice and butter in medium saucepan. Bring slowly to a boil over medium heat, stirring frequently. Boil 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Cool completely. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Add orange rind. Sift together flour, baking soda, salt and nutmeg; stir into date mixture. Stir in almonds. Drop by heaping teaspoons onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 350 degrees 8 to 10 minutes, until center of cookie springs back when pressed lightly with finger. Immediately remove cookies from baking sheets and cool on racks.

Makes approximately 4 dozen cookies.

ORANGE BLOND BROWNIES

½ cup butter or margarine
2 cups (1 pound) packed light brown sugar
½ cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted
4 eggs
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt

In large saucepan melt butter. Remove from heat; stir in brown sugar and undiluted concentrated orange juice. Beat in eggs one at a time. Blend in flour, baking powder and salt. Turn into greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees 40 to 45 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool. Cut into 2-inch squares.

Makes 24 squares.

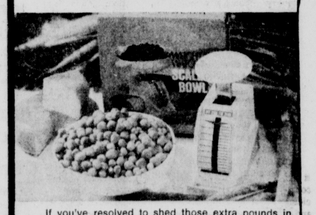

Energy saving action costly

LINCOLN, Ill. (UPI) — Paul Rom, 21, Chicago, was stopped by state police Wednesday night for driving without headlights.

Rom told arresting officers he had driven all the way from St. Louis, Mo., without his lights to conserve energy but troopers gave him a ticket anyhow.

CHICKEN NOODLE VEGETABLE STEW

- 3 pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut into serving pieces
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 2 cups water
- 1 can (28 ounces) tomatoes, undrained
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
- 1 teaspoon basil leaves
- ½ teaspoon oregano leaves
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas and carrots
- 8 ounces uncooked medium egg noodles (about 4 cups)

Brown chicken in hot oil in large pot; pour off oil. Add all remaining ingredients except peas and carrots and noodles to pot. Bring mixture to a boil; cover and simmer for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. stir in peas and carrots and uncooked noodles; bring mixture to a boil. Cover and simmer about 10 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Serve immediately. Makes 6 main dish servings.

Delicatessen meats have many uses

Sausage and ready-to-serve meats give easy-to-do qualities to casseroles. Diced in ½-inch squares or sliced, they may be added to lasagna, macaroni, baked or lima beans, sauerkraut, corn pudding, rice, winter squash, mixed vegetables and potatoes to make hearty economical main dishes. A combination of two or more sausages will add a unique flavor to any meal in a dish.

Weight-watchers can avoid the hungry feeling that comes an hour or two after eating a salad meal by adding sausage or ready-to-serve meats to favorite vegetable salads. Hard, Genoa, or cotto salami, bologna, ham or New England brand sausage are just a few of the meats which give a gourmet touch to vegetable salads.

Cut the sausage into thin strips, squares or wedges, and add it to the salad along with dressing. Allow two ounces (two slices) to each cup of vegetables in the salad to be sure each serving supplies enough protein to stave off those mid-meal hunger pangs.

Sausage and ready-to-serve meats for evening snacks or party hors d'oeuvres are limited only by imagination. Small sausages, such as cocktail wieners or frankfurters or cocktail smoked sausage links, may be prepared on a small hibachi. A zesty dip adds the finishing touch.

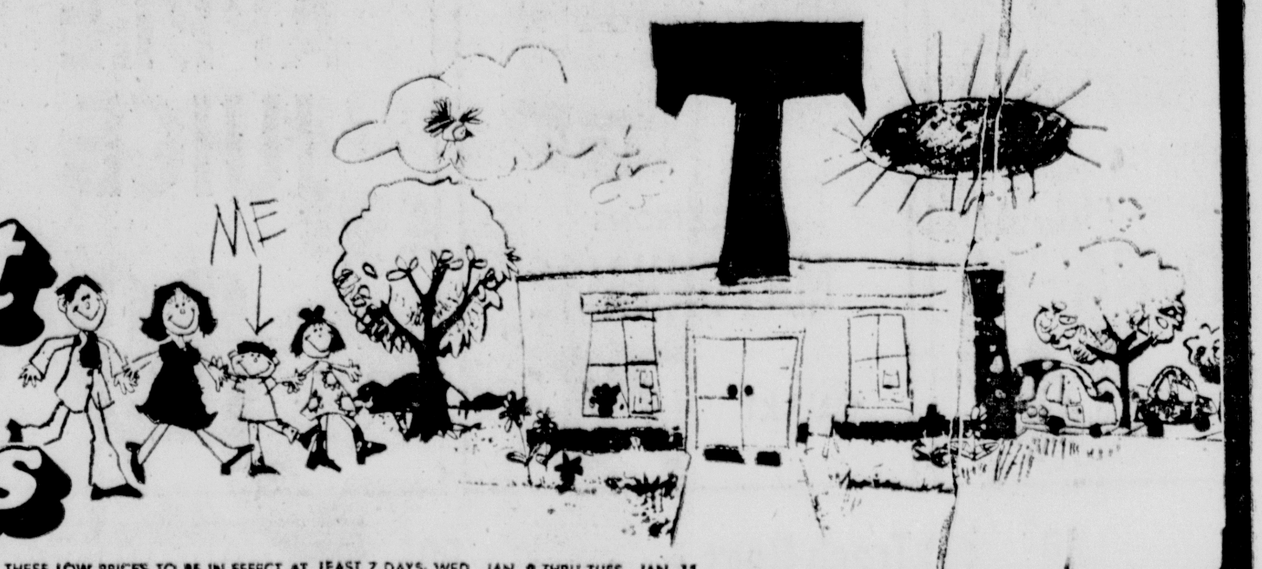

Sliced sausage or ready-to-serve meats can be spread with a cream cheese mixture, rolled or stacked, and cut into wedges. Sausage cornucopias held with a small wooden pick may be filled with cottage cheese, potato salad, an olive or a cocktail onion.

Soft sausages, such as braunschweiger or liver sausage, rolled into tiny balls and covered with crushed nuts, are attractive as well as delicious to eat. Add a pretzel stick just prior to serving for ease in handling. Cooked sausage, ground and combined with cheese, onions and a small amount of pickle juice, makes a delightful spread for crackers.

Man mostly made of water

The body of a 160-pound man consists of about 100 pounds of water, 29 pounds of protein, 25 pounds of fat, 5 pounds of minerals, 1 pound of carbohydrate and one-quarter ounce of vitamins.

Know varieties of apples for utmost in pleasure

The U.S. Department of Agriculture says that there are many different varieties of apples so you should know which kind is suitable for a particular use. For fresh eating, look for Delicious, Jonathan, McIntosh, Stayman, or Winesap, all red varieities. Or, look for the Golden Delicious, a yellow variety that is fine for eating out-of-hand.

You will want a tart or slightly acid variety for pies and applesauce. Gravestein and Jonathan, both reds; Grimes Golden, Yellow Transparent, both yellows; or Newtown, a green variety, are good for use in pies, tarts, and applesauce.

Baked apples make a good fall dessert and for this prupose you will need a firmer-fleshed variety of apple. For baking, look for the Northern Spy, Rome Beauty, Winesap or York Imperial, all red varieites. A green apple, the Rhode Island Greening, is also good for baking.

When buying apples check for quality. The U.S. Department of Agriculture or similar state grades are sometimes shown on packages of apples. U.S. Extra Fancy apples are top quality. They have the best color, shape, and general appearance. U.S. Fancy apples are next best. U.S. No. 1 apples may have less color and more russeting, a lacy or solid netting on the skin, than U.S. Fancy, but this does not affect the flavor.

When the grade is not given on apples, look for firm, crisp apples with good color for the variety. Avoid apples that yield to slight pressure and those with bruises.

And remember that all-season good advice, buy only what you can use or store without waste. Apples should be stored in the refrigerator.

Cranberry time

Cultivation of the native American cranberry originated in the bogs of Massachusetts and gradually spread, between 1816 and 1885, to New Jersey, Wisconsin, Washington, and Oregon. These five states now produce the bulk of the nation's cranberry crop — this year likely to exceed more than two million barrels. Because of the fine quality and size of American cranberries, plantings have been introduced to England, Germany, and a number of other countries in Europe, Asia, and South America.

Many American Indians used wild cranberries for medicinal purposes. The medicine man of the tribe brewed cranberry poultices, which were used to draw poison from arrow wounds. The squaws also had a nonfood use for cranberries, employing the juice of the berries as a dye for blankets and other fabrics.

Fresh cranberries are normally on the market from September through January, with the harvest peaking in November. In some years, however, small amounts may be marketed in February and as late as March, if growing conditions are right. The 1973 crop is promising an abundant supply of more than 2 million barrels.

When minutes count, canned jellied cranberry sauce, whole berry cranberry sauce, and cranberry-orange relish in the kitchen cupboard instantly add colorful, zesty goodness to any meal.

Canned grapefruit

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced that revised quality standards for canned grapefruit have become effective. The revised standards are the same as proposed in the August 13 Federal Register.

According to USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), under the revised standards 65 per cent rather than 75 per cent of the segments in a can of grapefruit must be whole or almost whole to receive the U.S. Grade A designation. (An "almost whole" grapefruit segment is at least 75 per cent intact.) Also in Grade A, the restriction on loose floating cells (the small sacs of juice that make up grapefuit segments) will be eliminated. These changes are to allow for increased breakage due to mechanized segmenting and filling operations.

In the revised standards, USDA is adopting the Food and Drug Administration's minimum-fill-of-container requirement. This reduces the minimum drained weight requirement for Grade A canned grapefruit from 56 per cent of the container's water capacity to 53 per cent. The minimum required for Grade B is also 53 per cent.

In addition, drained weight, or weight of the grapefruit segments when the packing liquid is removed from them, will no longer be a quality factor. Drained weight may be variable from container to container and is not necessarily related to quality.

The revised standards have been published in the Oct. 23 Federal Register. Copies are also available from the Fruit and Vegetable Division, AMS, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Use of USDA's grade standards and grading services is voluntary, and the cost of the grading services is paid for by the user.

Upstate natural gas use rises

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Northern and Central Californians have reacted to the cold snap by using soaring amounts of natural gas.

Pacific Gas & Electric Co. said Wednesday that during a 24-period starting Tuesday it had sent out 2.9 billion cubic feet.

Mexican papers get boasts from terrorist chief

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UPI) — Marxist guerrilla leader Lucio Cabanas has sent a New Year's letter to two newspapers boasting about attacks on the Mexican army and promising more of the same in 1974.

The newspapers said Cabanas claimed credit for two 1973 incidents in which Mexican army units were ambushed in the Sierra Madres outside Acapulco. Both incidents had been reported by unofficial sources but were never confirmed by the Mexican army.

The letter said 300 soldiers were routed Nov. 18 and a smaller group was attacked Aug. 24.

The letter, which carried the signatures of Cabanas and five lieutenants, scolded soldiers for "serving the powers that oppress the poor" and promised that the 1973 attacks "are only the beginning of what will be the revolution of the poor classes."

Setting good table economically can still be done

NEW YORK (UPI) — Adeline Garner Shell remembers when people took pride in getting the most for their money and setting a good table.

It still can be done, Mrs. Shell tells consumer groups here and classes at the University of Wisonsin-Stout, where she is a guest lecturer and consultant on consumerism. A dietitian with a degree in chemistry and New York state teaching certificates in chemistry, mathematics and home economics, she also worked for Bess Myerson during part of her term as New York consumer affairs commissioner.

In addition to teaching, Mrs. Shell has written "Supermarket Counter Power" (Warner Paperback Library), which shows by example ways to save money on your food budget while upgrading your nutrition.

A chapter on costly food shopping mistakes suggests among other things flexibility in shopping lists to avoid high-priced, low-quality items; use of unit pricing where available to get the best buys: and careful examination of anything marked down for quick sale.

Wilted produce may be contaminated. But any that's only slightly bruised can be a bargain when the bad spots are removed.

In an interview, Mrs. Shell said advertised specials, cents-off and refund coupons and special packaging such as aerosol cans be budget busters.

"Most people who read food ads think advertised specials mean best buys," she said, adding that sometimes they're only seasonal products with prices normal for the period.

As for canned goods specials, she said even an expert cannot make the best decision if the label doesn't list drained weight and other information, such as nutritional content.

"Most consumers say they take advantage of coupons. Again, they may be the biggest budget buster. They're used to introduce new products which usually are more expensive. Or they may be used to recoup a share of the market if a manufacturer has lost part of it."

Mrs. Shell criticized the food industry and its advertising agencies of products and ads that emphasize time and labor-saving characteristics without telling consumers about cost in terms of nutrition, additives and "wonderful taste and aroma."

She said many consumers are unaware that many add-your-own-meat products actually take more time to prepare than comparable ones made from scratch.

"Teaching buymanship isn't enough," she said. "The best buyers can have the worst nutrition. I found in my classes that people really don't have any concept of nutritional value."

She added that a study she did in the northeast showed that people who were asked to identify junk foods named such things as potato chips, doughnuts, packaged soft drink mixes, substitutes for breakfast orange juice, sauce mixes and most commercial cookies and cakes.

But the same consumers said they continued to buy theseproducts because they're cheap.

Urging advertisers to have more of a social conscience, Mrs. Shell added that consumers also have an obligation to act responsibly.

"Don't go plowing through shelves like a truck. Where food is stolen, the customer pays. The store doesn't absorb the loss when a customer takes two boullion cubes from a package and puts the package back on the shelf.

"I think people think the stores and manufacturers have ripped them off," she said, adding that retaliation by pilferage only makes the situation worse.

Working with low-income community groups in Brooklyn, she found consumers thought they were getting even with food companies when they learned to buy better food for less money than they'd been accustomed to spending.

Nothing's nutty about peanutburger

If your family boos the ideas of a meatless meal, challenge them with Peanut Protein Patties. Even the strictly meat-and-potatoes fan will be surprised by these peanutburgers, smothered in a smooth, creamy peanut-butter based sauce.

Peanuts and peanut butter team up with whole wheat bread, cheese, eggs and milk to make the patties and the sauce a really different entree. And as a protein source, it's hard to beat.

Plan to include this peanutty dish on your next party menu. Topped with the savory peanut butter sauce and garnished with chopped peanuts and served alongside spears of bright green broccoli and wedges of red tomato, Peanut Protein Patties will make a big hit with anyone who appreciates good food served attractively.

PEANUT PROTEIN PATTIES

4 cups soft whole wheat bread crumbs
2 cups cocktail peanuts, finely chopped
2 cups shredded American Process cheese
½ cup onion, minced
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon ground coriander, optional
½ cup milk
2 eggs, beaten
1½ cups soft whole wheat bread crumbs
Butter or cooking oil

SAUCE

1¼ cups milk
½ cup cream peanut butter
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 clove garlic, crushed
Dash of cayenne pepper

In a bowl toss together 4 cups bread crumbs, peanuts, cheese, onion, parsley, paprika and coriander. Combine milk and eggs and stir into bread mixture. Divide mixture into 6 portions and shape into patties. Dip patties in 1½ cups bread crumbs to coat. In a skillet over medium low heat brown patties in butter or cooking oil until heated through.

SAUCE: Combine milk, peanut butter, soy sauce, garlic and cayenne in a small saucepan. Place over medium heat and bring mixture to a boil, stirring constantly until thickened. Serve sauce over burgers. Makes 6 servings.

State designates 2 landmark sites

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The site of the first and second state Capitols has been designated a historical landmark by the state Historical Landmarks Committee.

The first Capitol built on the site (at the corner of 7th and I Streets in Sacramento) was used by the legislature between 1851-53 before it was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt and used between 1855 and 1969, when the legislature moved to the current Capitol.

The committee has also designated as state landmarks the Winchester House and Luis Maria Peralta Adobe in San Jose and the Preston Castle in Ione.

Evening wedding vows recited in Montclair

Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Montclair was the setting for the evening marriage of Miss Donna Mae Anderson and Gary David Christensen.

The double-ring rites were performed by the Rev. Phillip O'Carroll.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Anderson of Upland was escorted to the altar by her father. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Christensen of Fontana.

For her marriage, the bride chose a Juliet styled gown with lace-capped full sleeves and a lace bodice beaded with pearls. Lace extended down the skirt and along the long train. A Juliet cap accented with pearls and aurora borealis held the bride's elbow-length veil.

She carried a cascade of white baby roses, blue delphinium, baby's breath and fern.

Mrs. James Schmid was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rudy Van Mil, sister of the bride; Mrs. Robert Anderson, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Dennis Christensen, sister-in-law of the groom; Mrs. Guy Eisenbrey and Miss Emmy Hoossien.

Darla and Vanessa Van Mil, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Ring bearers were Danny Van Mil and Timmy Christensen, nephews of the couple.

The groom's brother, Dennis Christensen, was best man. Ushers were Robert Anderson, brother of the bride; James Schmid, brother-in-law of the bride; Walt Jones, Scott Starkey and Bob Brewster.

The bride's brother-in-law, Rudy Van Mil, was soloist and Karen Minthorne and Michelle Bergman handled the guest book.

A reception at Mackey Memorial Hall honored the newlyweds before they departed for a honeymoon at Lake Tahoe. Mr. and Mrs. Christensen will reside in Alta Loma.

More fullness

There's more fullness in the skirts of the fall and winter silhouettes. Designers get the effect either with flat-pressed pleats or with gores. Designer Donald Brooks likes unbleted princess shaped coats ending with a huge flare, done with as many as 17 gores all around. Favorite tone: camel.

Mother of the Year nominations now open

Nomination blanks for the selection of the 1974 California Mother of the Year are now being distributed by the American Mothers Committee Inc. of California.

Groups of organizations are invited to submit the names of worthy candidates. Any person may send in the name of a candidate through the recommendation of a recognized organization.

The mother's youngest child must be over 15 years of age. Not only must the 1974 state mother be a woman of achievement, her children must also have fine records. She must be a member and be in regular attendance in either her church or synagogue.

The American Mothers Committee Inc. of the United States, a distinguished national organization, establishes a jury of widely known persons to choose from the 50 selected state mothers the national Mother of the Year.

Entry blanks may be obtained from the first vice president of American Mothers Committee of California. Mrs. Phyllis L. Roberts, 10756 Camarillo St., North Hollywood, Calif. 91602.

GUARANTEED BY PARENTS' MAGAZINE

People talk openly about sex, even VD. Can we now talk openly about the poor kid who wets the bed? For the sake of that unfortunate child, we're going to tell it like it is!

THE DAMAGE IS TERRIBLE! Bedwetters can't have friends over to spend the night or can't stay overnight with friends. Or go to camp. Their mothers get exasperated—and physically worn out—by the extra loads of laundry. The poor kid is overwhelmed by guilt, excluded from normal relationships with peer groups and is frequently teased by cruel companions. Self-confidence is lost, ego is lowered and withdrawal is usual. An explosive mixture.

WAIT FOR IT TO BE OUTGROWN? Well, here's the bad news. Statistical data is now available which shows that out of 100 kids 5 years old wetting the bed, 50 of them will still be wetting at age 11! WE'RE HERE TO HELP and we've been doing it for nearly a quarter of a century.

If you want to help your child . . . and the man or woman that child will grow up to be . . . send this coupon today. We'll mail you our booklet entitled "BEDWETTING—WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT AND HOW TO END IT." No obligation. If the bedwetting is not caused by organic defect or disease, we can help your child . . . and wouldn't that be a relief!

Ask Dr. Brothers

Counterfeit lover

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I've fallen in love five times in this last year and every one of these relationships has proved disappointing. I'd like to think that there would be some woman who wouldn't fade out after a brief affair. Maybe the problem is in me. I try to stick with one woman but it's almost impossible once the relationship starts to go downhill. When I'm not involved with some woman I get depressed and a beautiful woman always makes me feel good and alive again if only for a brief period.

I really want to find something permanent but I don't know how. — P. L.

Dear P. L.: It sounds as if you may be using love or sex to lift you out of depressions and to avoid a real analysis of yourself. The kind of relationship you describe is not really love, but a sort of counterfeit love.

Dr. Preston McLean says many people accept counterfeit love rather than the real thing because they lack knowledge about real love. Many adults never had an example of the real thing in their early lives with their parents, from whom they should have learned what love is. Counterfeit love is merely accepting or putting up with a bad bargain.

It is difficult to learn about love if we've never seen it in our own homes, because so much emphasis is put on the sexual aspect of love. Often, what we see in films and read in books lead us to have unrealistic expectations of our relationships with the opposite sex. We expect and demand perfection or some kind of romantic ideal that no one could live up to.

Sometimes a person misses love through fear of any truly close, deep relationship. The moment a relationship starts to become close, he breaks it off or behaves in a way that is bound to be destructive and that is guaranteed to make the other person behave in an equally destructive manner. He may have a feeling of inability to obtain the genuine thing or to keep it. He may feel so insecure that he's convinced his own inner badness would automatically destroy any real love.

Another cause of counterfeit love is that people try to fool themselves so that they will have an excuse to get to know a person sexually. In other words, people train themselves to go through the act of loving, so they will not feel that they are faking. In reality, they may go to bed with various women merely out of a passing curiosity that has almost nothing to do with love or even affection. They may find it difficult or embarrassing to persuade a woman to go to bed with them out of curiosity so they try to convince themselves and the woman that they feel love when it is not really there.

Vanity is another trap that can prevent real love. Your emphasis on a "beautiful woman" leads me to believe that you see a woman only as an object rather than as an individual. Some men are attracted to unusually beautiful women because their own weak ego demands this boost. Having a wife or girl friend that other men admire helps to improve their opinion of themselves.

Love should not be used to repair self-esteem. To be able to love, it is essential that you see others as complete individuals who have separate needs of their own. Don't give up, but take some time out to re-examine your own expectations and your own feelings about women as individuals.

At present volunteers are needed to help address envelopes. This work is scheduled for completion within the next two weeks, then other workers will be asked to stuff the envelopes with a letter appealing for funds.

Volunteers can work at the Pomona Regional Center, 480 S. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, any weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information, call 621-4727.

Great Books group meets today

The Great Books Discussion Group will meet today to continue the theme of "The Language of Morality" with the reading of the play, "Ghosts," by Ibsen.

The meeting will be held at the Pomona Public Library from 1 to 3 p.m. and in the evening from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the home of the leader, Mrs. Muriel Dunnett, 1886 Wright St.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Library, the series is open to persons interested in reading and discussing classic writing.

Wall Street Chatter

The American economy is the major victim of the energy crisis with curtailments and mandatory shutdowns of offices and factories likely to become widespread, says The Gallagher Presidents' Report Inc. In a recent telegram to the nation's 500 top corporations, Secretary of Commerce Frederick Dent urged immediate adoption of "strongest energy conservation measures possible within (these) companies," the letter continues. It also says Dent warned the corporations that failure to act immediately "will aggravate the extent of shutdown in months ahead, with serious economic consequences for companies, employes and country."

"When this bear market moves towards its final phases, there will be an astonishing increase in volume to well over 30 million shares, followed by debilitatingly low volume levels," according to the Dines Letter. Investors who are just worried now will be struck with fear and sell in the coming bust, it says. "The bottom of this collapse will be the buying point of the century," the letter adds.

"It is bad enough that the energy crisis is unprecedented and consequently unassessable, but investor psychology is not being helped by a melange of conflicting statements by government officials," says E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. In view of the market's oversold condition, the technical rebound Tuesday that wiped out some of the deeper losses incurred in recent sessions could continue but its life depends on news of the energy crisis, the firms adds. With presidential advisor Melvin Laird suggesting taxes on energy sources, Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent predicting business failures and plant shutdowns, and Treasury Secretary George Shultz chiding people for overreacting to the energy problem, the market has also overreacted, it concludes.

"The Arab oil squeeze has changed our projected business curve from one that is flat in real terms to one that moves down over the six to nine month period which began last month," Lionel D. Edie and Co says. The firm's revised inflation estimates, which include energy costs, predict inflation will rise to 8.2 per cent in the fourth quarter, then drop to 6.4 per cent in the first quarter of next year. "It will be a rough winter for business and the consumer, but with the help of a somewhat less restrictive monetary policy, a recovery should begin to develop by next summer," it adds.

See improved management, labor talks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Conference Board, a nonprofit business research group, has issued optimistic predictions for labor-management negotiations during the coming year.

However, the board, which issued its annual forecast in its monthly magazine Record, said the situation could change later in the year.

The Conference Board based its optimism partially on early bargaining on union contracts for three major industries.

"A hopeful sign for amicable and early settlements are the advance discussions in can, aluminum and basic steel industries," it said. "Bargaining talks have been moved up by about three months in each of these industries."

Among the big labor contracts expiring this year are those for steelworkers, mine workers, longshoremen and building trades.

The United Steelworkers (USW) and the Aluminum Workers International Union (AWIU) are the unions involved in negotiating contracts that expire Feb. 14 in the can industry, May 31 in aluminum and Aug. 1 in basic steel.

The USW, which has 1.4 million members, also will be negotiating in the nonferrous metals industry of copper, lead and zinc this year.

The overall schedule for major contracts to be negotiated this year covers approximately 5 million workers. Their contracts will either expire, or they contain clauses reopening them on wage issues.

The Conference Board magazine noted that labor had exerted some restraint on its own accord as well as that which was imposed on it last year. And although the opening is currently bright, it said, the current year could be unpredictable.

"Labor's militancy may also be influenced by the continuation, amendment or removal of wage controls," said the Record.

"The Economic Stabilization Act expires April 30, and a widespread aversion to continued economic controls has been expressed by major labor and business groups alike. There is little agreement about what will happen if controls are removed.

Continuing inflation may prompt unions to attempt to reopen contracts on the wage clauses, it said, and the energy crisis is expected to toughen their stands on job security to protect against further forced layoffs, cutbacks and plant closing.

Large but empty

Australia's state of South Australia is larger than Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana combined but has fewer people than Denver, Colo.

Auditions set for lead roles in Ramona play

HEMET — Auditions for the two lead roles of Ramona and Alessandro will be held in the outdoor Ramona Bowl at Hemet starting at 9 a.m. Jan. 26 and 27.

The roles of Ramona, a part-Indian girl of 19, and Alessandro, a full-blooded Indian man of about 25, are open to anyone.

The dates for the 1974 production, based on Helen Hunt Jackson's book "Ramona," are April 20, 21, 27 and 28, and May 4 and 5, matinees only. This is the 51st anniversary of the first production of the play on April 13, 1923, and will be the 47th season in which the production has been held in the natural outdoor amphitheater in the foothills near Hemet.

Those interested in receiving application blanks for either of the two roles or for information on tickets, which go on sale Jan. 15, can call 658-3111 between 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, or write P.O. Box 755, Hemet, 92343.

'Threepenny Opera' film to be screened at Scripps

CLAREMONT — The German faculty of Scripps College will present the 1931 award-winning film, "The Threepenny Opera," in the Humanities Center auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 17. Admission is free.

Produced on the eve of Hitlers seizure of power the movie was destroyed by the Third Reich. This German language film, with English subtitles, was reconstructed and restored many years later.

It is an adaptation of Bertolt Brecht's social satire with music by Kurt Weill derived from John Gay's "The Beggar's Opera." A colorful world of beggars, thieves and prostitutes in an imaginary London of the 1890s offers a theme of ironic disenchantment and wry optimism which Brecht felt reflected Berlin between 1928-1931.

Directed by G. W. Pabst, the film stars Lotte Lenya, Rudolph Forester, Carola Neher and Reinhold Schunzel.

Such songs as "Mack the Knife" and "Pirate Jenny" have become classics since Miss Lenya sang them in the movie.

"The Threepenny Opera" was named the Best Foreign Film of the Year by the National Board of Review in 1931 and "One of the Top 10 in Cinema History" by the Brussels World Poll of Film Critics and Film Directors in 1948.

Insane sanity is Broadway show fare

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sanity has returned to the Broadway theater in the form of insanity — sanity in this case meaning entertainment in the first degree.

This is provided by a pair of English nuts named Peter Cook and Dudley Moore in their two-man satirical little revue at the Plymouth Theater. It is a question as to whether they are nuttier as their own writers or as performers. Probably the latter.

These two fellows were part of the "Beyond the Fringe" revue foursome of the early 1960s that ran and ran and ran. The same type of humor is involved in this new one.

They do sketches on a wide range of subjects — no use going into them here since a mere listing beggars the results they get.

Moore, a little fellow, while Cook is a lean, tall, angular type, varies the proceedings occasionally with a piano-playing and-or singing number. He is a most accomplished musician, as well as being a funny man and why he hasn't branched out in the one-man piano-and-jokes bit a la Victor Borge is a mystery.

Anyway, go see them if you want to laugh. It is rare indeed that a show, no matter how funny it may be much of the time, has audiences laughing without stop. This is one of those.

Stars match beach sand

As far as science can estimate, the universe contains about 100,000 million billion stars—about as many as grains of sand on all the world's beaches.

Happiness means many things to many people. In their constant search for happiness, they have eaten more steaks, drank more wine, gathered, danced, joined clubs, and are now using computers to match-mate, and get together. Some say it is cold and impersonal. The question on everyone's lips today is, "can a machine help sincere, fun-loving adults find true happiness?" We think they can! Many adults, both young and old, tell us that our machines do bring true and everlasting happiness. Here at Pomona Valley Datsun on Holt across from Zodys in Pomona, we sell fun and 240Z's, happiness and Datsun 610's, contentment and new B-210's. Come see do a fun thing today!

MEETIN' & EATIN' AT BETSY ROSS

Hi, Neighbors,

Do we have competitors? Yes, and many fine ones, too. I thought you might like to know how many units there are in each chain. Here are some figures: McDonalds — 2,272; Kentucky Fried Chicken — 4,808; A & W—2,510; Burger King—923, Burger Chef—1,110; Denny's—885; Jack-in-the-Box—716; International House of Pancakes—407; Pizza Huts—1,149; Shakey's—448; Sambo's — 285; Baskin-Robbins — 1,157; Taco Bell—493; Carl's Jr.—90; Sir George's—53; and a lot of others that I just couldn't get the facts on for this week's column.

Now, many of these are franchised and/or owned by the companies. Many have managers and personnel from all parts of the country who move around a good deal of the time; some of the foods they make are made well ahead of time before customers come in; and none of them is headquartered in the Greater Pomona Valley area.

Well, we have only 5 ice cream and coffee shoppes and we are far from being the biggest in anything except perhaps quality, service and friendliness, brought to you by people who live, work and care about you and what goes on in Pomona, Upland, Claremont, and Glendora. We earn our money here and we spend it here. We use as many local suppliers as possible, and when we need anything from stationery, printing, hardware, plumbing, contractors, professional personnel and all other trades and businessmen and women, we keep to our local people. We belong to local civic, trade and school associations and are always ready to help worthy charities.

At Betsy Ross we feel that our business is both personal and local, and we have been doin' it since 1926. So,
Stop in and say hello . . .

Pianist, violinist combine in tribute to Stravinsky

LOS ANGELES — Pianist Leo Smit and violinist Eudice Shapiro will present a musical tribute to the late Igor Stravinsky in UCLA's Schoenberg Hall at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 18.

The program, which includes five of Stravinsky's works is the second event in UCLA's first Contemporary Music Festival. Repertoire includes the Suite for violin and piano, after some themes, fragments and pieces of Giambatista Pergolesi (1925), Serenade en La pour piano (1925), Duo Concertant pour violin et piano (1932), Sonata for piano (1924) and the Divertimento for violin and piano (1928-34).

Smit first became acquainted with Stravinsky in 1937 when Smit was working for the American Ballet Company preparing the opera ballets for the Metropolitan, and Stravinsky's newly completed ballet, "Jeu de Cartes" was being given along with "Apollon Musagette" and "Le Baiser de la Fee", with the composer conducting.

Stravinsky obviously was pleased with Smit's playing, for the latter was appointed assistant conductor, Smit was 15 at the time.

Smit's formal piano debut took place in 1939 in Carnegie Hall in a recital that included the first performance of Nabokoff's "Contrastes et Developments." Since that time he has performed and conducted new works by Bela Bartok, Arthur Berger, Leonard Bernstein, Aaron Copland, Paul Hindemith and others.

Smit's first major composition, "Virginia Sampler," written in 1947, was commissioned and presented in premiere by the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo with Valerie Bettis as choreographer. His Symphony No. 1, commissioned by the Koussevitzky Foundation, received its premiere by the Boston Symphony with Charles Munch conducting. It won the New York Critics' Circle Award.

Formerly head of the Piano Department at UCLA, Smit also has been associated with Sarah Lawrence College and was a member of the board of directors of Monday Evening Concerts for four years. Currently he is professor of music at the State University of New York at Buffalo and composer-in-residence at the American Academy in Rome.

Last year in Rome he worked on a commission by the National Academy of Sciences to compose a piece in collaboration with the astrophysicist Sir Fred Hoyle. The work, which commemorated the Copernicus quincentenary was presented last April in Washington and later recorded by Desto.

Miss Shapiro has performed with many of the world's leading orchestras, working with such conductors as Feiner, Steinberg, Klemperer and Stokowski, as well as Stravinsky. Her chamber music activities have been with equally impressive musicians, among them, Heifetz, Piatigorsky, Schnabel and Bruno Walter.

She has performed premieres of works by Copland, Foss, Kirchner, Milhaud and Stravinsky. Now chairman of the USC violin department, Miss Shapiro combines teaching with a concert career with the Alma Trio, now in residence at USC.

Reserved seats for the Smit-Shapiro concert may be obtained now at the UCLA Central Ticket Office, 650 Westwood Plaza, and all Mutual and Wallichs Music City-Liberty agencies.

Canadian is rare female film maker

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Maxine Samuels, so far as recorded history is concerned, is the only Canadian woman motion picture producer, which is not so small a claim to fame as one might think.

Miss Samuels, an attractive brunette, may be the only feminine motion picture producer in the Western Hemisphere.

"I've been fighting the battle of the sexes for years," she said on a business trip to Hollywood to promote "The Pyx," her murder mystery, dealing with satanism and drugs.

"And I'm not a woman's libber either. A producer is a driving force, totally dedicated to getting a movie made. And being a driving force isn't exactly a favored feminine trait.

"Most actors, directors and crew members look on the producer as a father figure. For this picture I became a mother figure. It worked."

Miss Samuels raised almost $500,000 in Hollywood to finance "The Pyx" only to have the backer pull out two weeks before the picture began shooting in Montreal. A few hours before the movie was to be canceled the Royal Bank of Canada came to her rescue.

All of the cast and crew are Canadians, save Karen Black who plays the central figure, a prostitute.

"I think there is a big future for women producers," Miss Samuels said. "The reason there haven't been many in the past is the male-created barriers."

Postmaster names town

Thomas Graham, the first postmaster of Bly, Okla., named the town, explaining he "Snatched the name out of the air" as being short and easy to remember.

'Royal' guitarists set concert

WALNUT — The Romero family of guitarists — father Celedonio, and sons Celin, Pepe and Angel — will present a concert in the Social Sciences Building of Mt. San Antonio College at 3 p.m. Jan. 20. Admission is $2.50.

Often termed "the royal family of the guitar," the Romeros have been performing together in concert throughout the United States and Europe for more than 10 years.

Their program, one of MSAC's Sunday Afternoon Concert Series, will include classical and flamenco numbers played in solos, duets and quartets.

The program will include the premiere of a new work by Maraina Torroba, the Vandenburg Concerto No. 5, the Telleman concerto and a series of numbers representing various aspects of Spanish life.

FIRST FAMILY — The four Romeros, who have been billed as "the royal family of the guitar," will present a concert in the Social Sciences Building at Mt. San Antonio College at 3 p.m. Jan. 20. From left are father Celedonio and sons Celin, Pepe and Angel. Admission to the concert is $2.50.

Victor Borge on stage at big Bridges

CLAREMONT — Victor Borge, humorist, pianist and conductor, will perform in Bridges Auditorium of the Claremont Colleges Jan. 18 at 8:15 p.m.

Borge is known throughout the world for his unique blending of satire and musical virtuosity. He won Broadway's Shubert Award for "Comedy in Music," which holds the record for the longest solo run in the history of the theater.

With him will appear coloratura Marylyn Mulvey, who has sung with major eastern opera companies. Tickets are available through Ticketron, Liberty and Mutual Agencies, and at the boxoffice.

SERVICE IN OPERATION — Al Goldenberg examines tally tapes and Mrs. Jerry Lemma enters figures in a machine. Goldenberg sorts and redeems merchandise coupons, a service for grocery stores.

Counting coupons made Al rich

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The manufacturer's promotion gimmick, the housewife's ticket to a few cents savings and the grocer's handling headache have been converted by Al Goldenberg into a business handling $30 million a year.

Goldenberg counts coupons.

By doing so he saves grocers untold hours of work and provides manufacturers an accurate picture of the acceptance of their products and effectiveness of their promotions.

It all began in 1959 when Goldenberg, then a salesman for a business machines firm, read a one-sentence item in a national business report. It said grocers didn't like the thousands of merchandise coupons they were forced to redeem on a variety of products.

Goldenberg decided he could provide a service and make a little money in a part time venture. He persuaded the owner of a chian of five stores to give him a trial.

Goldenberg collected all the coupons the chain had redeemed and spread them on his living room floor. Then he put his parents, his wife and his children—age 5 and 7—to work sorting and counting them. Goldenberg then calculated how much the chain had coming from each manufacturer, sent the grocer a check for the total amount—less an amount for his service—and shipped the coupons off to the various manufacturers, who eventually paid Goldenberg.

Basically the system is still the one used by Goldenberg's American Clearing Service, which has long since expanded out of the living room. Each coupon, in addition to the face value which gives the buyer a reduction on the item purchased, also carries a note to the store that a handling fee — usually 3 cents—will be paid to the store. Goldenberg takes a portion of that handling fee for his services.

By the end of the first month of his trial the owner of the grocery chain told Goldenberg, "It was relief for his office staff and it speeded up the flow of money."

With that initial encouragement Goldenberg sent a letter to 350-400 grocery stores in Oregon, Washington and Idaho, outlining his idea. Thirty-five per cent responded that the idea was a good one. "We signed 90 per cent of those," Goldenberg said.

He kept his job, moved the counting process into his garage and kept the family at work, stretching his own work day to 18-20 hours to keep up with the new business.

In 1961 he expanded into all the western states and in 1966 went national.

American Clearing now serves 8,000 stores in all 50 states and has one signed in Japan.

In addition—for a fee, of course—he provides services to the manufacturers analyzing what percentage of coupons are redeemed, what type of coupon brings best response, what type of store redeems the most coupons and socalled internal redemptions.

The firm employs 30 persons with an annual payroll of $250,000. Coupons with face value of $30 million pour through the company each year.

The company has long since moved from the Goldenberg garage into a one-story building in a suburban area just outside Portland. Goldenberg gave up his business machines job in 1962 about a year after the firm expanded beyond the garage.

American Clearing clients range from corner grocery and drug stores, which redeem coupons valued at $30-$50 a month, to major supermarkets, which take in coupons worth $2,000-$3,000 a month, and chains.

Before Goldenberg and some similar firms came along, many grocers would simply toss their coupons into a drawer and let them pile up until someone had time to count them—sometimes for months. Then there was often a similar wait until the various manufacturers sent the grocer or druggist his money.

Now, the store just bundles up all its coupons and ships them off to American Clearing, where parcels arrive daily by the truckload. As soon as the firm has tallied the coupons, a check for the entire amount goes off to the store. Goldenberg then collects from the manufacturers.

Among his services is spotting fraud. With coupons a multimillion dollar business, coupon fraud has a multimillion dollar potential. Goldenberg knows of one eastern ring involving several million dollars which was broken up not long ago.

"My people can spot a phony coupon right now," Goldenberg said. They can also spot the coupon which has been redeemed as part of a volume gimmick rather than by an individual shopper getting his 10 cents off.

Ironically Goldenberg, the former business machines salesman, has a business which remains almost entirely a hand operation. Six machines are used in tallying the coupons but the actual sorting and counting must all be done by hand.

The 40-50 million coupons which flow through American Clearing each year just come in too many sizes, shapes and types of paper to be handled by machine. It takes people.

Ford more of insider than his predecessor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House is building up Vice President Gerald R. Ford as a key policy adviser in domestic affairs.

He is being treated with kid gloves and accorded the deference of being much more of an insider than his predecessor, Spiro T. Agnew.

Ford extracted a promise from President Nixon that they would confer each day, either face to face or by telephone. Weeks often went by when Nixon and Agnew did not confer.

Furthermore, Ford and Nixon are old friends; they see eye to eye on most issues, and take the same moderate conservative line on the role of the federal government.

Ford said recently that "for whatever reason, Nixon and I have never seriously disagreed on any vital, substantive issue."

While Ford was highly partisan on the administration's behalf as House Republican leader, as vice president he is quoted as saying, "What I have to watch out for is not to become a Nixon apologist. That wouldn't help either of us."

In his role as post-Watergate vice president Ford has been sitting in on critical energy strategy and economic review sessions with Nixon.

In addition, he is presiding at a series of meetings set up by Nixon's chief legislative adviser, William Timmons, on the main issues to be explored in the State of the Union address by the President.

Aides insist that Nixon is not grooming Ford to take over as President, with resignation in mind. Almost daily Nixon has passed word that he has no intention of giving up the Presidency.

Only recently, supporters of the President from Louisiana visited the White House carrying a petition signed by 46,000 persons. Calling it a "Christmas present," Nixon told them: "You can tell every one of the 46,000 I will be here for three years."

With the White House stressing its close ties to him, Ford will be Nixon's No. 1 lobbyist with Congress.

Melvin Laird and Bryce Harlow, who returned to the administration to give Nixon a hand when the Watergate scandal exploded last summer, are waiting for Ford to dig in his heels before they depart — something both are anxious to do.

White House aides indicated that they would pick his staff to better control the operation. But Ford has named a 45-man staff of his own choice.

It also is doubted that he will immediately sacrifice his popularity with the Democrats by becoming Nixon's "point man" in the congressional election campaign next year.

Agnew was thrust into the role of an aggressive critic of the political opposition and news media—with many of his speeches written by White House aides —from the moment he became vice president.

Asserting his independence, Ford last week told a group of reporters he was "not going to take direction" from the White House, while saying "I will speak affirmatively for the administration and the Republican Party."

"I'm not going to criticize the Democrats," Ford added. "Their record can stand or fall on its own."

As for his own ambitions, Ford contends they are limited. He likes being vice president and shows it. But should fate catapault him into first place, he will be prepared.

Maryland to contest suspended air service

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Maryland Aviation Administrator Robert Aaronson says the state will contest Pan American Airlines' plan to suspend service to Baltimore.

Aaronson said he will meet with Pan American officials to discuss alternatives to dropping service to the city. If that fails, he said he would ask the Civil Aeronautics Board to refuse the airline permission for the one-year suspension of the international flights.

The airline said its decision was based on the need to conserve fuel.

No oil shortage in east Europe; at least not yet

BRATISALVA, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Eastern Europe is an oasis almost unaffected by the worldwide oil shortage and the familiar sight of long lines of cars waiting for gas is mostly caused by a lack of filling stations.

Although the governments of Poland, Romania and Bulgaria have introduced speed restrictions and the latter two have added gasoline rationing, government officials said there is no oil shortage in Eastern Europe —at least not yet.

Eastern Europe's oil needs are met basically by the Soviet Union which, according to Western estimates, exported 57 to 60 million tons to its allies last year. It imported 7.8 million tons from Arab countries —"to help the Arabs pay for Soviet aid," the Soviet weekly magazine Novoye Vremya said.

Nikolai K. Baibakov, chairman of the Soviet planning commission, told the Supreme Soviet (parliament) there would be "normal and uninterrupted supply" of fuel and electricity in 1974. At the same time he urged citizens not to squander supplies, and there were indications the Soviets were concerned about their ability to meet oil demands.

The Soviets have told oil customers there may be some delay in deliveries due to "technical reasons," Western sources said. And in the Soviet Union itself, although there were no major signs of an oil shortage, foreign residents said two gasoline stations in central Moscow which usually have high-octane gas have been out of supplies several times in recent days.

Under a trade agreement signed in Moscow in November, Czechoslovakia will import more than 14 million tons of crude oil from the Soviet Union next year. The oil flows through the 3,400 mile Drushba (friendship) pipeline feeding Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland and East Germany.

"Czechoslovakia has far less oil problems than other countries because of long-term trade agreements with the Soviet Union," Slovak Prime Minister Peter Colotka told a news conference in Bratislava, where the Slovnaft refinery processed about 7.8 million tons of Soviet crude oil this year. In three years' time, on completion of the "Adriatic" pipeline, another 20 million tons of Middle East oil will flow from Yugoslav ports through Hungary to Czechoslovakia.

Contracts for imports of Iraqi crude oil were cancelled "some time ago," according to Frantisek Huba, technical director of Slovnaft.

Western diplomats said Romania, which produces more than 14 million tons of oil, imposed rationing in order to keep up its deliveries to the West and earn hard currency. For Bulgaria, whose output is somewhere around 300,000 tons annually, and Poland, which produces no oil at all, the situation could be different. Poland imports about 12 million tons of crude oil from the Soviet Union and another 2.5 million tons of petroleum from Norway and Denmark, both countries themselves hit by a fuel crisis.

Elsewhere in Eastern Europe, there was business as usual.

"No restrictions will be imposed," said Hungarian Deputy Prime Minister Istvan Huszar in a television statement. Hungary produces about two million tons of crude annually and recently uncovered what Hungarian experts called "the richest oil fields in the country" near Pusztaapati in the western part of the country. Chief Engineer Bela Bardocz said the well produced 2,000 tons of high-quality crude in a ten-day trial period.

Yugoslavia produces some three million tons of crude of its own and imports the major part of another seven million tons a year from the Middle East.

Being old in America

Money is not the answer

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Throughout history there have been societies in which age was a reward to be coveted. The ancients of old China were venerated for their wisdom and experience. Women of Africa have long looked on seniority as a deserved respite from hard labor. Even today in western civilization, some few healthy-minded and well-to-do see retirement as the chance to accomplish that for which youth did not afford the time.

Yet in the United States of the day, the outlook is largely otherwise. As French novelist and critic Simone de Beauvoir writes: "The vast majority look upon the coming of age with sorrow or rebellion. It fills men (and women) with more aversion than does death itself."

And no wonder. Many of the nation's 20 million people over 65, while still largely affluent in comparison to their peers of other nations, are living by all American standards in scandalous discomfort. According to congressional figures, one of four senior citizens lives below federally acceptable living conditions. The aged poor account for fully one third of the nation's poverty families. Half of the 3.6 million aged who live alone have less than $1,000 a year income. Thirty per cent of America's elderly lack flush toilets, 40 per cent have no hot water plumbing.

Some relief

In recent years, some attempt has been made to rectify the situation. Nine major government agencies now administer to various problems of old people. A $543 million Older Americans Act has been passed. Social Security payments have risen several times. The present administration boasts that some $46 billion is spent annually on the 10 per cent of American people who are elderly.

The figures, however, are nowhere satisfactory. The $46 billion, for one thing, includes $34 billion in Social Security, which is not charity, and $7 billion for various pension programs such as government and railroad retirements. Thus the federal government is actually allocating only about $5 billion to programs which deal with special problems (the current appropration for elderly education amounts to about 11 cents per capita).

Yet even if sufficient money were being spent to alleviate elderly hardship in America, there would still be a monstrous old-age problem. For the dilemma of the aged in this nation is not so much one of funds but priorities. America, says psychologist Robert Lifton, "started out as a young country and we've been trying to remain young ever since." This insistence has its charm and even its benefits, but it has also worked to the detriment of everyone who must eventually outlive the national image.

Must be profitable

The truth is that the American society largely cares for the individual only so long as he is profitable. The government even mandates the approximate stage for the individual's fall from favor: age 65. From then on, and there is no denying it, most are forgotten. Rousseau once asked: What is the point of having worked so hard if one finds in the end all his labor lost? The answer is there is no point. Once retired, many Americans wait to die, many others hasten death either physically or psychologically.

Not all, of course, If one in four elderly Americans is poor, if 825 men per 100,000 commit suicide after age 85, then three in four must be living fairly comfortably and 99,154 octogenarians are not taking gas. The majority of Americans, indeed, are probably as Goethe would have it: "He is happiest who can see the connection between the end and the beginning of his life."

But graceful old age is how it should be in a nation with a trillion-dollar GNP and a history rich in social achievement. And that several million each year are not enjoying grace is all the more unacceptable because of the majority that do. Besides, if things are left as they are the problem of the minority will become even more staggering. The elderly are the fastest growing segment of the American population; by the year 2000 there will be at least eight million more, including many reading this article.

The question is how to prepare for the larger population to share a more equitable and meaningful old age. More money is important, but it is probably not to come in the amounts needed (youth is traditionally reluctant to pay for age). A better answer is: the less costly change of attitudes toward our old.

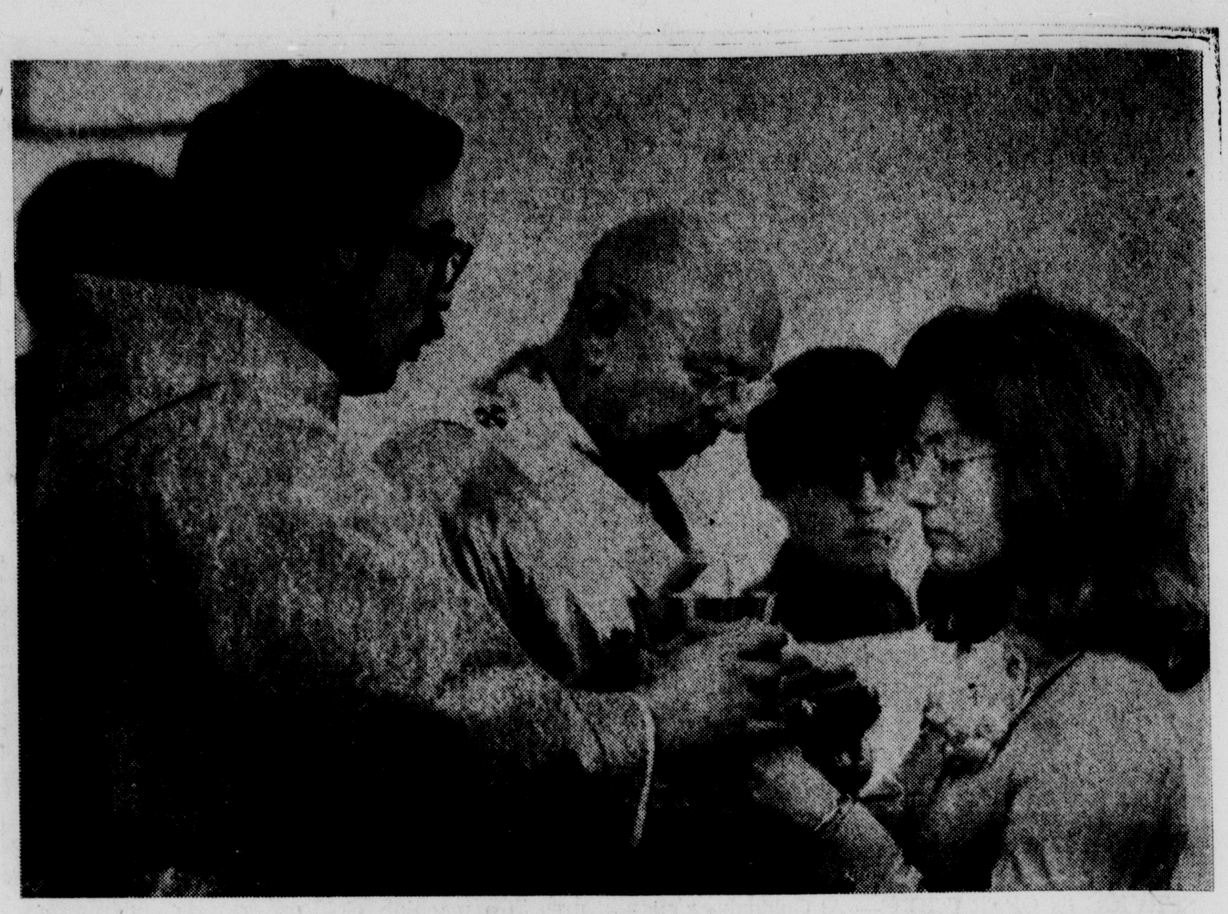

Complete change

The attitudinal change, say some, should be complete. De Beauvoir says that old age exposes the failure of our entire civilization, thus "It is the whole man that must be remade, it is the whole relationship between man and man that must be recast." Once we have understood what the state of the aged is, we cannot satisfy ourselves with the calling for a more generous old age pension. It is the whole system that is at issue. "Change life itself."

Though meritorious, her thought is impractical. Psychologists believe that far less and far easier changes might work as well. But whatever course taken, it must have as its goal the destruction of the idea that people can be surplus. Casanova was going strong at 65; Shaw wrote some of his greatest plays in his late 70s; had Angelo Roncalli died before 60 we'd not have known him as Pope John XXIII.

Gerentological utopia, of course, is not the goal. Age is filled with too much unavoidable terror to permit that. Yet a society can be built in which all participate, as long as they are able, and where life satisfaction can continue to the end. As writer Bernard Berenson phrased it at age 83:

"So life is a continuously progressive restriction until if I live much longer I am confined to my bed. And yet, free from pain and above all nausea, I can believe it worth living, for an infinity of ideated sensations remain in memory to be combined and recombined in charming ways."

BREAKS TRADITION — Even as debate waxes and wanes over having married priests in the Roman Catholic Church, the first married deacon in the Pacific Northwest gives communion in the form of wine to his wife. Loris Buccola, left, gives his wife Jane communion as Archbishop Robert J. Dwyer, center, watches. Dwyer, moments before, raised Buccola to the deaconate, just one level away from priesthood.

Magazine trade still much alive

NEW YORK (UPI) — With three major magazines folding in the last three years, why would Downe Publishing, Inc., bring out a new photo magazine? Even more to the economic point, how could that magazine show a profit from the first issue, as Downe says it did, without one line of advance promotion?

One reason may surprise people who have been referring to the magazine industry in the past tense since the demise of "Life," "Look" and the weekly "Saturday Evening Post." It is, in fact, very much alive. Advertising revenue for the first 10 months of 1973 totaled $1.054 billion, up 8 per cent from the same 1972 period, according to the Publishers Information Bureau. Americans, it seems, have more leisure time and money to indulge their hobbies and special interests. And today's magazines are catering to those interests.

"Photo World"—the new publication by Downe which sells 605 million magazines annually, including "Ladies Home Journal" and "Family Week"—has taken dead aim at a booming segment of the American economy. The 2.75 million U.S. photo hobbyists snapped more than 5 billion pictures in 1973 and, in the process, spent about $3 billion on photo products and photo finishing services. Each spends about $550 per year on equipment.

Professional photographers number about 110,000 and more are on the way. About 65,000 students of still and motion picture photography are enrolled in U.S. universities and colleges.

In the case of Photo World, the reverse was true. It borrowed from a European magazine in a joint agreement with Photo, the popular French magazine owned by Daniel Filipacchi, 45, who has built a $70 million fortune with a string of 15 publications. Filipacchi, the French son of a Greek, started out as a magazine photographer. Turning to radio, he became France's number one disc jockey but eventually settled into publishing after bringing out several magazines aimed at young people.

Under terms of the agreement generated by Edward R. Downe Jr., chairman of the Downe Communications Board, Photo World gets its pack of any material carried in the French magazine and Filipacchi gets royalties on sales and advertising revenues.

"We also will be providing input for Mr. Filipacchi's magazine," said A. Edward Miller, president of Downe Publishing, a subsidiary of the New York Co. "We'll carry artistic nudes, but essentially we will be a showcase for great photography, past and present, as well as technical material of interest to the growing numbers of photographers."

Miller, 16 years with Time, Inc., former publisher of McCall's Magazine and former president of World Publishing Co., was asked if he detected any economic trends in the magazine industry.

"Yes," he said, "the reader, not the advertiser, will be carrying the financial ball for magazines."

Noting that the advertiser traditionally has provided most of a magazine's revenue dollar, with the reader getting a relatively free ride, Miller said the breakdown at Ladies Home Journal was about 50-50.

"I can see that becoming 75 per cent from the reader and 25 per cent from the advertiser," Miller said.

Device turns cow manure into heat

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Farmers have a miracle fuel under their feet they can use to fry eggs, run tractors and heat homes.

It is cow manure.

In a startling demonstration at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, cow manure is converted in methane gas used to power machines and cook eggs.

The machine was constructed by Lebanon County Agricultural Agent Glenn Miller, Assistant Agent Newton Blair and Don Harter, all of Penn State's extension service.

Agriculture Secretary James McHale said Pennsylvania's cows could produce enough fuel to supply the natural gas needs of 210,000 people.

The machine is filled with cow manure and water. Excrement from other animals, leaves or grass also can be used. An electric heating element heats the mixture to 100 degrees.

The machine actually is a digest in which animal waste is converted into methane gas by organisms that live in heated, oxygene free atmosphere.

Texas area draws plants

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The nearby cities of Dallas and Fort Worth, dubbed the Southwest Metroplex, led the state in attracting new manufacturing plants during the first six months of 1973.

The Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas reported the Metroplex also had 31 plant expansions during this period.

Sears Highway Passenger Tire Guarantee

If you do not receive the number of miles specified because of your tire becoming unserviceable due to (1) defects, (2) normal road hazards, or (3) tread wearout.

We will: At our option, exchange it for a new tire or give you a refund charging in either case only the proportion of the then current selling price plus Federal Excise tax that represents mileage used. If the tire is unserviceable due to any of the above causes before 10% of the guaranteed mileage is received, the replacement or refund will be made with no charge for mileage received.

Nail punctures will be repaired at no charge. Guarantee applies to tires on vehicles used for private family purposes.

Here's What Sears Brake Experts Do:

- Fit brand new brake shoes or disc pads
- Carefully rebuild hydraulic wheel cylinders or front caliphers
- Resurface brake drums or reface rotors
- Arc grind all brake shoes
- Bleed all lines and add fluid
- Replace return springs
- Repack front wheel bearings
- Inspect master cylinder, grease seals, hoses and all brake hardware
- Disc brakes for front wheel drive, trucks and some foreign and sports cars excepted
- Under no circumstances will Sears do less than a "First Quality Brake Job"

SAVE $5! 48-Month Guaranteed Sears Battery

High Voltage means straight-through-the-partition cell connectors deliver more initial starting power than an otherwise identical battery with up-and-over cell connectors.

Battery Guarantee

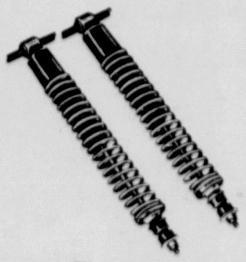

Free replacement within 90 days of purchase if battery proves defective. After 90 days we will replace it with a new battery if defective, charging only for the period of ownership. Your monthly charges for ownership will be computed by dividing the current selling price less trade-in at the time of return, by the number of months of guarantee.
